A GANGSTER, name unknown, fired a "slug" into the liver of another gangster, Arthur Flegenheimer, alias "Dutch Schultz." That bullet puts Schultz into his grave and in the language of Will Rogers, "chased Haile Selassie right of the front page of New York newspapers."

Future historians will want to know that a bullet in a criminal interests millions of 1935 Americans more than an actual war in Africa, and a possible war in Europe.

"DUTCH SCHULTZ" is dead, consoled, at the last, by the rites of the Catholic church, to which he became converted on his death bed.

His family will be called upon to show why Uncle Sam should not have a part of what he left behind him for unpaid income tax. Your government, collecting income tax even from bootleggers and criminals, does not "look too closely" at "tainted money."

TO YOUR LIST of "death bed sayings" of well known men, "More light" of Goethe, "My country, now I leave thee," of Pitt, "Tete d'armee," of Frederick the Great, talking French to the last, you may add some "last words" of "Dutch Schultz" Flegenheimer, shot to death by a rival gangster.

Police stenographers took down all his dying words, here are some, all uttered in half-delirium:

"George, don't make no moves. What have you done with him?"

"Now listen, Phil, fun is fun."

"Oh, oh, he done it. Please."

"You promised a million-sure."

"Please make it quick, fast and furious, please fast and furious."

"Please help me get out."

"Please tell him you got no case."

"Cut that out! We don't owe a nickel; hold it."

Police questioned him as he talked. "What did they shoot you for? Did the big fellow give it to you?"

Answer: "Yes, he gave it to me."

"Do you know who this big fellow was?"

Answer: "No." And death came soon after.

No clue for the police there, but doubtless, the Angel Gabriel will read the true meaning of these "last words."

L. P. ABERNATHY WILL SEEK POST IN STATE SENATE

Monroe Business Man To Oppose Wood Thompson And James A. Noe

CANDIDATE WELL KNOWN IN LOUISIANA'S POLITICS

To Make Campaign Strictly On Platform Supporting Administration

L. P. Abernathy, secretary-treasurer of the Standard Office Supply company, announced Saturday night that he would be a candidate for state senator from the twenty-ninth senatorial district, comprising Ouachita and Jackson parishes. Mr. Abernathy, who was Ouachita parish campaign manager for O. K. Allen in his race for governor four years ago and also for John Overton as the Huey P. Long candidate for United States senator in 1930, will support the state administration in the coming campaign, he said last night. He was closely associated with the late Senator Long, who in 1930 appointed him to the board of supervisors of the Louisiana State university.

The announcement of Mr. Abernathy places three candidates in the field for the office of state senator from the 29th district. Lieutenant-Governor James A. Noe, present senator from the district, is a candidate to succeed himself, endorsed by Governor O. K. Allen. Wood Thompson, of Monroe, former first assistant attorney general under Judge Percy Saint, will be the anti-administration candidate. The final date for filing qualifications for the race will be Tuesday, October 29, at midnight. Whether any other candidates would enter the race was unknown Saturday night.

Announcement that Mr. Abernathy would enter the race came as no surprise to local observers of the political scene, who had heard rumors to that effect during the week. The

FARMERS FAVOR CORN-HOG PLAN

Heavy Majorities For AAA Program Indicated In Referendum Vote

(By Associated Press)

Heavy majorities in favor of continuance of an AAA corn-hog program in 1936 were recorded last night in the first fragmentary returns from the national corn-hog referendum.

Scattered returns from a dozen states, recorded even before the formal closing of the ballot boxes, showed the AAA running ahead by better than six to one.

An early count from these states listed a total of 14,292 for a control program in 1936, and 2,055 against.

LEGALITY CONTESTED

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Contesting constitutionality of the agricultural adjustment act under which the processing taxes are collected, four Louisiana rice millers today filed petitions in federal district court here asking that the government be restrained from further collection of the rice processing tax.

WOUNDED BANDIT NOW APPEARS ON WAY TO RECOVERY

The condition of W. L. Applin, Port Gibson, Miss., youth, who was shot and severely wounded here last Monday night by Henry C. Mickie, whom he attempted to rob, last night was described by his physician as satisfactory. The youth appears to be on the road to recovery, it was stated, and is expected to be removed from St. Francis sanitarium to the parish jail within a few days.

Applin suffered a severe wound caused by a bullet which struck an inch below his right eye and emerged below his right ear. Shortly after he was brought to the hospital he said he could not hear plainly with his right ear, but indications are that the function of the ear will not be impaired, his physician said. There remains a possibility, however, that Applin's right eye may be permanently impaired to some extent.

The youth also suffered a minor wound in his shoulder, a minor wound in his right leg and a similar wound in the fleshy part of his hip.

He was shot when he attempted to hold up and rob Mickie as the latter returned to his residence, 401 Breard street, shortly after midnight.

2 ESCAPED CONVICTS RETURNED TO ANGOLA

RUSTON, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Officers of the state penal farm at Angola left here this afternoon with Cecil Methvin and Robert Renfro, escaped convicts of the Louisiana state penitentiary who were arrested near Ruston Friday afternoon by Sheriff A. J. Thigpen, and deputies, of Lincoln parish. The convicts were to be returned to the penal farm.

It was disclosed this afternoon that Methvin and Renfro held up and robbed a Coushatta resident of $40 and a pistol on October 16. The pistol was in Renfro's possession when he was arrested near here.

LEAVE U. S. TO FIGHT FOR ITALY

One hundred and seventeen young reservists from New York, Philadelphia and midwestern cities sailed from New York aboard the Italian liner Rex in response to Premier Mussolini's call to the colors in the war against Ethiopia. Cheering and singing, they are shown as the Rex, with only 194 other passengers aboard, pulled away from the pier. Only a few Americans disregarded President Roosevelt's withdrawal of government protection of citizens traveling on ships of warring nations.

Truck Driver Killed In Highway Mishap

Jim DeFee, 21, of Marion, La., was instantly killed and Lucius Brown, his companion, was slightly injured when a truck in which they were riding to Monroe was sideswiped by a Chevrolet sedan, driven by Curley Richard, Fowler negro, and occupied by four other negroes, on the Sterlington highway about a quarter of a mile off DeSiard street, at 9:30 o'clock last night.

DeFee's skull was split wide open by the impact. Brown was taken to Riverside sanitarium where he was treated for minor cuts and bruises. He was released a short time later. None of the negroes was injured.

DeFee's truck was completely demolished and the automobile was damaged almost beyond repair. Richard was held by the police for questioning by Coroner C. L. Mengis, who made an investigation of the accident shortly after it happened. The coroner said he would be unable to fix blame for the accident until he had made further investigation.

Brown, dazed from the collision, could add little to the details of the accident but was to be further quizzed by Coroner Mengis.

Two youths were injured in another accident which occurred at about the same time at DeSiard and Twenty-third streets. A small truck and an automobile collided.

The identity of the injured men could not be learned last night but they were taken to St. Francis sanitarium. They suffered minor cuts and bruises. Both the truck and the automobile were badly damaged.

SHUSHAN QUITS HIS LEVEE JOB

Tells Governor He Is Leaving Post To Retire To Private Business

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Abraham L. Shushan, acquitted last Wednesday night of charges of attempting to evade and defeat the federal income tax laws, today left his high command in the political machine of the late Senator Huey P. Long by resigning from the presidency of the Orleans levee board which has handled millions of dollars of construction projects in New Orleans.

Shushan sent his formal letter of resignation to Governor O. K. Allen, chief political ally of the late Long, and the governor accepted the resignation, effective immediately.

"I am retiring to my private business, which I have neglected for years

MISSISSIPPI SOLONS WILL FACE REVISED TAXATION PROGRAM

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A revised program of state taxation will confront the Mississippi legislature when that body reconvenes here Tuesday afternoon to begin the fifth week of an extraordinary session.

The house ways and means committee, under the guidance of its chairman, T. G. McCallum of Laurel, will bring to the floor of the house early in the week, a broad new program of state taxes designed to bring relief to "small farmer" and the "small business man."

The McCallum plan, as outlined by the committee chairman before the house Thursday, provides for: (1), exemption of personal property in the home and farm implements from all property taxes; (2), raising of homestead exemptions from state taxes from $1,000 to $2,500, and on land from 40 acres to 160 acres; (3), reduction of the ad valorem tax from five mills to four mills; (4), reduction of the state privilege taxes approximately 25 per cent.

ALLEN PARISH COMMITTEE REQUESTS FAIR ELECTION

LAKE CHARLES, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—By a five to four vote, the Allen parish Democratic executive committee adopted a resolution requesting the parish board of election supervisors to select poll officials in accordance with the previous state laws in order to assure a fair election in the January Democratic primaries.

ALEXANDRIA, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—One of the largest political gatherings ever to assemble in Alexandria was present here this afternoon to witness the formal launching of the campaign of Congressman Cleveland Dear and his "home rule" ticket in opposition to the state machine.

When Mr. Dear rose to speak he was accorded an ovation which lasted for several minutes and he was applauded at frequent intervals throughout the delivery of his address. He assailed the present state administration and pledged himself and the members of his ticket in the event of their election to restore constitutional government to Louisiana and also to repeal all dictatorial laws.

He assailed particularly the laws which he said have given the state administration control over police juries, municipal governments and politicalized the schools. He declared

FEAR 1,000 LIVES LOST IN FLOODS

Belated Reports Show Hundreds Perished In Haiti Hurricane

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Belated reports that hundreds of persons were drowned in floods accompanying a hurricane last weekend caused officials today to fear that as many as 1,000 lives may have been lost.

The latest report from Jacmel was that 200 bodies had been recovered. The first word was received today from the southern peninsula, isolated since Monday, of the heavy loss of life.

An entirely unofficial estimate was that there are 1,500 dead in Jeremie, which apparently was the heaviest hit.

The disaster in both cities was caused by a flood Monday night, after several days of abnormal rains.

Thousands were reported to be homeless and hungry, with crops destroyed. The government is trying to get aid into the stricken area.

(The hurricane presumably was the same one that passed through eastern Cuba and Jamaica last Monday, resulting in the deaths of four persons. Damage in Jamaica was estimated at $2,500,000.)

Roads are impassable to Haiti's southern peninsula. Fragmentary news is coming through by couriers who are traveling overland with the greatest difficulty.

A dispatch from Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, said winds of hurricane velocity which damaged crops around Cape Gracias yesterday had moderated today. Heavy seas, however, still endangered shipping.

In Honduras, hurricane winds and floods did much damage to banana crops but no loss of life was reported, a dispatch from Tegucigalpa disclosed.

PROCESSING TAXES WILL BE UPHELD, ATTORNEYS THINK

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Oscar Johnson, assistant secretary of the treasury and head of the government's cotton pool, said here today that the east's best lawyers believe the supreme court will uphold the processing taxes, and declare the Bankhead cotton allotment act unconstitutional.

Before leaving today for his home at Scott, Miss., Johnston said in an interview:

"The concensus of the best constitutional lawyers in the east is that the supreme court will uphold the processing taxes and throw out the Bankhead bill.

"The principal good done by the Bankhead bill was in getting farmers to sign the acreage reduction contracts. Now the bounty plan has the same effect, is more easily administered, and suits both the farmers and the cotton men better.

"If the court holds that the Bankhead act is constitutional, another election will be held, just as last season, to let the farmers decide for themselves if they want the measure."

Hoodlum Suspected In Schultz Murder Takes His Own Life

DEATH IS CAUSED BY GAS POISON, STRANGULATION

Shabbily Dressed Gangster Described As Meanest Since Vincent Coll

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Albert Stern, the 21-year-old hoodlum police suspected as the major executioner in the bloody warfare that smashed the once powerful Dutch Schultz mob, was found dead today in a cheap hideaway.

Suicide was the tentative verdict of Chief Medical Examiner Harrison S. Martland, who said the chances that further investigation would point toward murder were "very small."

Described by New York detectives as "the meanest killer since the late Vincent Coll," Stern in death looked anything but the well-paid hired assassin. His clothes were shabby and worn. There were no soles on his shoes. His room rent was unpaid.

Stern's death, apparently caused by illuminating gas poisoning and strangulation, blasted police hopes that his apprehension would start them on the road to the solution of the tavern massacre in which Schultz and three henchmen were mortally wounded Wednesday night.

Hunted ever since the ruthless war on the Schultz gang began, Stern took whatever he knew with him in death. He did leave a scrawled pencil note, but all it contained was a farewell to a girl he addressed as "darling." Some bloodstained newspapers and rags were found in his room, but they proved a meaningless clue.

Police sought new leads from Max Silverman, Dutch Schultz' bail bondsmen, who was closeted with him in the downtown tavern before it was swept by the fatal fusillade of gunfire.

LINCOLN PARISH DEATH UNSOLVED

Mystery Still Shrouds Killing And Robbery Of Farmer Friday

RUSTON, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Mystery still shrouded the identity of the slayer of John Sims Evans, 30, a farmer, who was found shot to death on a lonely road a quarter of a mile from his home Friday night, as a coroner's jury continued to probe the murder and parish authorities carefully investigated evidence.

Evans, who was returning to his home in a wagon after selling a bale of cotton here Friday, was apparently shot from ambush, since evidence revealed that his assailant approached the wagon from the rear and fired two shots into Evans' back. He then either attempted to jump or fell from the wagon and his slayer then fired a shot into his head as he lay on the ground.

A hastily empaneled coroner's jury met at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning and was temporarily adjourned at noon without having reached a ver-

COTTON INQUIRY TO OPEN MONDAY

Creekmore And Williamson Leave To Testify At Government Probe

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, and other association officials planned to leave tonight for Memphis to appear before the senate committee created to "investigate the expenditures of the federal government for cotton cooperatives."

N. C. Williamson, president of the American Cotton Cooperative association, was to lead a group of farmers from his home, Lake Providence, La.

Before his departure Mr. Williamson issued a statement in which he characterized the investigation as "another hysterical attempt of the private cotton trade to attack the cooperative program."

"The cotton trade has fought every effort to increase the returns to the producer," Mr. Williamson said.

CREEKMORE TO BE FIRST WITNESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, will be the first witness to take the stand here Monday at the opening of a senatorial investigation of cotton cooperatives.

Senator McKellar (Democrat, Tennessee), chairman of the senate subcommittee authorized to inquire into the activities of the cooperatives and their use of federal funds, said today that he and Senator Bankhead (Democrat, Alabama) will open the inquiry at 10 a.m. Monday with Mr. Creekmore as the first witness.

The other member of the committee, Senator Townsend (Republican, Delaware) will arrive later in the week, Senator McKellar said, adding that members of the committee will do all the questioning without the aid of investigators or trial counsel.

BOYCOTT PLANS ARE FLAYED IN FASCIST SPEECH

ROMAN LEGIONS MAY SOON THREATEN CITY OF HARAR

English Treasury Department Orders Money Penalties Effective

By Dale Harrison
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Benito Mussolini, with fervent and heroic phrase, declared war Saturday on the League of Nations' program of boycott.

The boycott, he cried, is "the most odious of injustice."

History, he shouted to his blackshirt followers, will brand the "economic seige" as an "absurd crime."

"They (the nations of the league) will perceive," he declared, "that the Italian people are capable of heroisms like those of the soldiers who avenged Aduwa with glory and carried civilization to the soil of Africa!"

He was sounding the praises of fascism which celebrates its fourteenth anniversary Monday.

In Africa his men at arms were becoming restless for lack of battles. There have been advances on both the northern and southern fronts, but nothing approaching a battle. Even Aduwa and Adigrat, were occupied without much more than shiping, skirmishing resistance.

Inside the disputed boundaries of Haile Selassie's kingdom the black warriors move by the tens of thousands, some northward, others southeastward from Addis Ababa. They have no intention of letting the Italian soldiers' wish for action go unanswered.

Overhead swim the planes of Rome—some spying out enemy troop movements and others letting fall the bombs which the Roman generals hope may be of great military importance in the campaign.

At last Mussolini's minister to Ethiopia, the stubborn Count Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, has left Addis Ababa. It may be that after he is safe beyond the borders in Djibouti, toward which a train is carrying him today, Italian planes may no longer hesitate to strike with bombs at the vital Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad—and maybe at Addis Ababa itself.

The peace talk that cheered a worried world a week ago had faded to a whisper Saturday night.

LOUISIANA RAPIDLY GETTING SHARE OF WORK RELIEF FUND

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Although stricken from the public works rolls, Louisiana rapidly is procuring working funds from the $22,902,054 in projects approved by President Roosevelt from the works progress administration.

To date the president has approved out of this group projects valued at $11,674,682, and Comptroller General McCarl has authorized issuance of treasury warrants for this group amounting to a total of $5,957,672.

Among these projects the comptroller general has released $729,779 through the WPA for highway construction in the state. This sum came from a total allocation for highways of $2,890,429.

Although the state has allocated $3,213,467 for grade crossing eliminations officials said no application for grade crossing elimination has been received from state officials.

Up to the time Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, called a halt on Louisiana projects, the state had received $1,180,548 for PWA projects. When they were wiped from the PWA rolls, because of certain state laws, the state had applied for $3,951,083 in public works projects from the latest appropriation.

BARRYMORE SUFFERING FROM NERVOUS AILMENT

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Supposedly suffering from a nervous breakdown, John Barrymore was reported to be here today in strict seclusion.

Dr. Walter Harper, the actor's physician, said Barrymore, recently divorced by the blonde Dolores Costello, was highly nervous and may have to enter a hospital for rest if his condition does not improve.

Barrymore was reported to have slipped into San Pedro bay aboard his yacht, the Infanta, after a cruise from Florida.

Mountain Fire Is Beyond Control In California Area

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Southern California's greatest mountain fire raged beyond control in its fifth day today.

Several hundred residents of the area embracing Seminole Hot Springs and Malibu Lake were prepared to flee from their endangered homes on a moment's notice.

The fire, together with other blazes and winds, has wrought $10,000,000 damage since last Tuesday night's windstorm.

The sheriff's office reported the east crest of the flames was within a mile and a hilf of the Malibu Lake colony.

This colony is in the heart of the mountains, seven miles from the famous million dollar beach movie colony. The movie colony was saved from the flames Thursday night—firemen fighting the blaze within 100 feet of one of the palatial strand residences.

The west crest of the fire was within two miles of Seminole Hot Springs, three miles west of Malibu Lake. A front of flames extending from the Castro Peak area to Mesa Peak was advancing at the rate of a mile in ten hours over a five-mile front, sheriff's forces reported.

More favorable weather conditions were reported by Spence Turner, county fire warden. He expressed hope the 2,000 CCC fire fighters, working under direction of army officers, supplemented by firefighting experts from the county, state and federal forestry departments, have stemmed the eastward drive of the flames which had theratened to sweep through the mountains toward Santa Monica and Beverly Hills.

U. S. Reaffirms Neutrality Stand On Italian Conflict

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The United States through Secretary Hull tonight reaffirmed its stand of independent neutrality toward the Italo-Ethiopian war, but expressed "sympathetic interest" in efforts by others to bring a halt to armed conflict.

In a formal communication to the League of Nations, the secretary of state gave this reply to an invitation to comment upon the program of sanctions against Italy and to outline steps taken by this government.

Carefully, Hull refrained from making any direct commitments on the league's efforts to halt the African conflict through economic pressure. In fact, the "interest" expressed in halting war was so drafted as to apply to any or all wars.

In substance, the American reply to the league's communication was a summarization of steps taken by this government under the neutrality law. To this was added a reiteration of America's intention to remain uninvolved, and of its desire for an early halting of hostilities.

In the lengthy note, delivered through Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, to Dr. Augusto de Vasconcellos, president of the league's committee of coordination, Hull said:

"Realizing that war adversely affects every country, that it may seriously endanger the economic welfare of each, causes untold human misery, and even threatens the existence of civilization, the United States, in keeping with the letter and spirit of the pact of Paris and other peace obligations, undertakes at all times to not only exercise its moral influence in favor of peace throughout the world, but to contribute in every practicable way within the limitations of our foreign policy to that end.

"It views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace or to localize and shorten the duration of war."

In recapitulating the moves made

FARMERS FAVOR CORN-HOG PLAN

LEAVE U. S. TO FIGHT FOR ITALY

One hundred and seventeen young reservists from New York, Philadelphia and midwestern cities sailed from New York aboard the Italian liner Rex in response to Premier Mussolini's call to the colors in the war against Ethiopia. Cheering and singing, they are shown as the Rex, with only 194 other passengers aboard, pulled away from the pier. Only a few Americans disregarded President Roosevelt's withdrawal of government protection of citizens traveling on ships of warring nations.

Truck Driver Killed In Highway Mishap

Jim DeFee, 21, of Marion, La., was instantly killed and Lucius Brown, his companion, was slightly injured when a truck in which they were riding to Monroe was sideswiped by a Chevrolet sedan, driven by Curley Richard, Fowler negro, and occupied by four other negroes, on the Sterlington highway about a quarter of a mile off DeSiard street, at 9:30 o'clock last night.

DeFee's skull was split wide open by the impact. Brown was taken to Riverside sanitarium where he was treated for minor cuts and bruises. He was released a short time later. None of the negroes was injured.

DeFee's truck was completely demolished and the automobile was damaged almost beyond repair. Richard was held by the police for questioning by Coroner C. L. Mengis, who made an investigation of the accident shortly after it happened. The coroner said he would be unable to fix blame for the accident until he had made further investigation.

Brown, dazed from the collision, could add little to the details of the accident but was to be further quizzed by Coroner Mengis.

Two youths were injured in another accident which occurred at about the same time at DeSiard and Twenty-third streets. A small truck and an automobile collided.

The identity of the injured men could not be learned last night but they were taken to St. Francis sanitarium. They suffered minor cuts and bruises. Both the truck and the automobile were badly damaged.

SHUSHAN QUITS HIS LEVEE JOB

Tells Governor He Is Leaving Post To Retire To Private Business

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Abraham L. Shushan, acquitted last Wednesday night of charges of attempting to evade and defeat the federal income tax laws, today left his high command in the political machine of the late Senator Huey P. Long by resigning from the presidency of the Orleans levee board which has handled millions of dollars of construction projects in New Orleans.

Shushan sent his formal letter of resignation to Governor O. K. Allen, chief political ally of the late Long, and the governor accepted the resignation, effective immediately.

"I am retiring to my private business, which I have neglected for years

MISSISSIPPI SOLONS WILL FACE REVISED TAXATION PROGRAM

JACKSON, Miss., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A revised program of state taxation will confront the Mississippi legislature when that body reconvenes here Tuesday afternoon to begin the fifth week of an extraordinary session.

The house ways and means committee, under the guidance of its chairman, T. G. McCallum of Laurel, will bring to the floor of the house early in the week, a broad new program of state taxes designed to bring relief to "small farmer" and the "small business man."

The McCallum plan, as outlined by the committee chairman before the house Thursday, provides for: (1), exemption of personal property in the home and farm implements from all property taxes; (2), raising of homestead exemptions from state taxes from $1,000 to $2,500, and on land from 40 acres to 160 acres; (3), reduction of the ad valorem tax from five mills to four mills; (4), reduction of the state privilege taxes approximately 25 per cent.

College President Introduces Group Pledged To End Ballot Tyranny

ALEXANDRIA, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—One of the largest political gatherings ever to assemble in Alexandria was present here this afternoon to witness the formal launching of the campaign of Congressman Cleveland Dear and his "home rule" ticket in opposition to the state machine.

When Mr. Dear rose to speak he was accorded an ovation which lasted for several minutes and he was applauded at frequent intervals throughout the delivery of his address. He assailed the present state administration and pledged himself and the members of his ticket in the event of their election to restore constitutional government to Louisiana and also to repeal all dictatorial laws.

He assailed particularly the laws which he said have given the state administration control over police juries, municipal governments and politicalized the schools. He declared

FEAR 1,000 LIVES LOST IN FLOODS

Belated Reports Show Hundreds Perished In Haiti Hurricane

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Belated reports that hundreds of persons were drowned in floods accompanying a hurricane last weekend caused officials today to fear that as many as 1,000 lives may have been lost.

The latest report from Jacmel was that 200 bodies had been recovered. The first word was received today from the southern peninsula, isolated since Monday, of the heavy loss of life.

An entirely unofficial estimate was that there are 1,500 dead in Jeremie, which apparently was the heaviest hit.

The disaster in both cities was caused by a flood Monday night, after several days of abnormal rains.

Thousands were reported to be homeless and hungry, with crops destroyed. The government is trying to get aid into the stricken area.

(The hurricane presumably was the same one that passed through eastern Cuba and Jamaica last Monday, resulting in the deaths of four persons. Damage in Jamaica was estimated at $2,500,000.)

Roads are impassable to Haiti's southern peninsula. Fragmentary news is coming through by couriers who are traveling overland with the greatest difficulty.

A dispatch from Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, said winds of hurricane velocity which damaged crops around Cape Gracias yesterday had moderated today. Heavy seas, however, still endangered shipping.

In Honduras, hurricane winds and floods did much damage to banana crops but no loss of life was reported, a dispatch from Tegucigalpa disclosed.

PROCESSING TAXES WILL BE UPHELD, ATTORNEYS THINK

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Oscar Johnson, assistant secretary of the treasury and head of the government's cotton pool, said here today that the east's best lawyers believe the supreme court will uphold the processing taxes, and declare the Bankhead cotton allotment act unconstitutional.

Before leaving today for his home at Scott, Miss., Johnston said in an interview:

"The concensus of the best constitutional lawyers in the east is that the supreme court will uphold the processing taxes and throw out the Bankhead bill.

"The principal good done by the Bankhead bill was in getting farmers to sign the acreage reduction contracts. Now the bounty plan has the same effect, is more easily administered, and suits both the farmers and the cotton men better.

"If the court holds that the Bankhead act is constitutional, another election will be held, just as last season, to let the farmers decide for themselves if they want the measure."

Hoodlum Suspected In Schultz Murder Takes His Own Life

Shabbily Dressed Gangster Described As Meanest Since Vincent Coll

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Albert Stern, the 21-year-old hoodlum police suspected as the major executioner in the bloody warfare that smashed the once powerful Dutch Schultz mob, was found dead today in a cheap hideaway.

Suicide was the tentative verdict of Chief Medical Examiner Harrison S. Martland, who said the chances that further investigation would point toward murder were "very small."

Described by New York detectives as "the meanest killer since the late Vincent Coll," Stern in death looked anything but the well-paid hired assassin. His clothes were shabby and worn. There were no soles on his shoes. His room rent was unpaid.

Stern's death, apparently caused by illuminating gas poisoning and strangulation, blasted police hopes that his apprehension would start them on the road to the solution of the tavern massacre in which Schultz and three henchmen were mortally wounded Wednesday night.

Hunted ever since the ruthless war on the Schultz gang began, Stern took whatever he knew with him in death. He did leave a scrawled pencil note, but all it contained was a farewell to a girl he addressed as "darling." Some bloodstained newspapers and rags were found in his room, but they proved a meaningless clue.

Police sought new leads from Max Silverman, Dutch Schultz' bail bondsmen, who was closeted with him in the downtown tavern before it was swept by the fatal fusillade of gunfire.

Mystery Still Shrouds Killing And Robbery Of Farmer Friday

RUSTON, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Mystery still shrouded the identity of the slayer of John Sims Evans, 30, a farmer, who was found shot to death on a lonely road a quarter of a mile from his home Friday night, as a coroner's jury continued to probe the murder and parish authorities carefully investigated evidence.

Evans, who was returning to his home in a wagon after selling a bale of cotton here Friday, was apparently shot from ambush, since evidence revealed that his assailant approached the wagon from the rear and fired two shots into Evans' back. He then either attempted to jump or fell from the wagon and his slayer then fired a shot into his head as he lay on the ground.

A hastily empaneled coroner's jury met at 9:30 o'clock Saturday morning and was temporarily adjourned at noon without having reached a ver-

COTTON INQUIRY TO OPEN MONDAY

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, and other association officials planned to leave tonight for Memphis to appear before the senate committee created to "investigate the expenditures of the federal government for cotton cooperatives."

N. C. Williamson, president of the American Cotton Cooperative association, was to lead a group of farmers from his home, Lake Providence, La.

Before his departure Mr. Williamson issued a statement in which he characterized the investigation as "another hysterical attempt of the private cotton trade to attack the cooperative program."

"The cotton trade has fought every effort to increase the returns to the producer," Mr. Williamson said.

CREEKMORE TO BE FIRST WITNESS

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—E. F. Creekmore, general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative association, will be the first witness to take the stand here Monday at the opening of a senatorial investigation of cotton cooperatives.

Senator McKellar (Democrat, Tennessee), chairman of the senate subcommittee authorized to inquire into the activities of the cooperatives and their use of federal funds, said today that he and Senator Bankhead (Democrat, Alabama) will open the inquiry at 10 a.m. Monday with Mr. Creekmore as the first witness.

The other member of the committee, Senator Townsend (Republican, Delaware) will arrive later in the week, Senator McKellar said, adding that members of the committee will do all the questioning without the aid of investigators or trial counsel.

BOYCOTT PLANS ARE FLAYED IN FASCIST SPEECH

ROMAN LEGIONS MAY SOON THREATEN CITY OF HARAR

English Treasury Department Orders Money Penalties Effective

By Dale Harrison
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Benito Mussolini, with fervent and heroic phrase, declared war Saturday on the League of Nations' program of boycott.

The boycott, he cried, is "the most odious of injustice."

History, he shouted to his blackshirt followers, will brand the "economic seige" as an "absurd crime."

"They (the nations of the league) will perceive," he declared, "that the Italian people are capable of heroisms like those of the soldiers who avenged Aduwa with glory and carried civilization to the soil of Africa!"

He was sounding the praises of fascism which celebrates its fourteenth anniversary Monday.

In Africa his men at arms were becoming restless for lack of battles. There have been advances on both the northern and southern fronts, but nothing approaching a battle. Even Aduwa and Adigrat, were occupied without much more than shiping, skirmishing resistance.

Inside the disputed boundaries of Haile Selassie's kingdom the black warriors move by the tens of thousands, some northward, others southeastward from Addis Ababa. They have no intention of letting the Italian soldiers' wish for action go unanswered.

Overhead swim the planes of Rome—some spying out enemy troop movements and others letting fall the bombs which the Roman generals hope may be of great military importance in the campaign.

At last Mussolini's minister to Ethiopia, the stubborn Count Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, has left Addis Ababa. It may be that after he is safe beyond the borders in Djibouti, toward which a train is carrying him today, Italian planes may no longer hesitate to strike with bombs at the vital Addis Ababa-Djibouti railroad—and maybe at Addis Ababa itself.

The peace talk that cheered a worried world a week ago had faded to a whisper Saturday night.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Although stricken from the public works rolls, Louisiana rapidly is procuring working funds from the $22,902,054 in projects approved by President Roosevelt from the works progress administration.

To date the president has approved out of this group projects valued at $11,674,682, and Comptroller General McCarl has authorized issuance of treasury warrants for this group amounting to a total of $5,957,672.

Among these projects the comptroller general has released $729,779 through the WPA for highway construction in the state. This sum came from a total allocation for highways of $2,890,429.

Although the state has allocated $3,213,467 for grade crossing eliminations officials said no application for grade crossing elimination has been received from state officials.

Up to the time Secretary Ickes, PWA administrator, called a halt on Louisiana projects, the state had received $1,180,548 for PWA projects. When they were wiped from the PWA rolls, because of certain state laws, the state had applied for $3,951,093 in public works projects from the latest appropriation.

BARRYMORE SUFFERING FROM NERVOUS AILMENT

Dr. Walter Harper, the actor's physician, said Barrymore, recently divorced by the blonde Dolores Costello, was highly nervous and may have to enter a hospital for rest if his condition does not improve.

Barrymore was reported to have slipped into San Pedro bay aboard his yacht, the Infanta, after a cruise from Florida.

Mountain Fire Is Beyond Control In California Area

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Southern California's greatest mountain fire raged beyond control in its fifth day today.

Several hundred residents of the area embracing Seminole Hot Springs and Malibu Lake were prepared to flee from their endangered homes on a moment's notice.

The fire, together with other blazes and winds, has wrought $10,000,000 damage since last Tuesday night's windstorm.

The sheriff's office reported the east crest of the flames was within a mile and a hilf of the Malibu Lake colony.

This colony is in the heart of the mountains, seven miles from the famous million dollar beach movie colony. The movie colony was saved from the flames Thursday night—firemen fighting the blaze within 100 feet of one of the palatial strand residences.

The west crest of the fire was within two miles of Seminole Hot Springs, three miles west of Malibu Lake. A front of flames extending from the Castro Peak area to Mesa Peak was advancing at the rate of a mile in ten hours over a five-mile front, sheriff's forces reported.

More favorable weather conditions were reported by Spence Turner, county fire warden. He expressed hope the 2,000 CCC fire fighters, working under direction of army officers, supplemented by firefighting experts from the county, state and federal forestry departments, have stemmed the eastward drive of the flames which had theratened to sweep through the mountains toward Santa Monica and Beverly Hills.

U. S. Reaffirms Neutrality Stand On Italian Conflict

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The United States through Secretary Hull tonight reaffirmed its stand of independent neutrality toward the Italo-Ethiopian war, but expressed "sympathetic interest" in efforts by others to bring a halt to armed conflict.

In a formal communication to the League of Nations, the secretary of state gave this reply to an invitation to comment upon the program of sanctions against Italy and to outline steps taken by this government.

Carefully, Hull refrained from making any direct commitments on the league's efforts to halt the African conflict through economic pressure. In fact, the "interest" expressed in halting war was so drafted as to apply to any or all wars.

In substance, the American reply to the league's communication was a summarization of steps taken by this government under the neutrality law. To this was added a reiteration of America's intention to remain uninvolved, and of its desire for an early halting of hostilities.

In the lengthy note, delivered through Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, to Dr. Augusto de Vasconcellos, president of the league's committee of coordination, Hull said:

"Realizing that war adversely affects every country, that it may seriously endanger the economic welfare of each, causes untold human misery, and even threatens the existence of civilization, the United States, in keeping with the letter and spirit of the pact of Paris and other peace obligations, undertakes at all times to not only exercise its moral influence in favor of peace throughout the world, but to contribute in every practicable way within the limitations of our foreign policy to that end.

"It views with sympathetic interest the individual or concerted efforts of other nations to preserve peace or to localize and shorten the duration of war."

EXCESS CANE IS TO BE MARKETED

Producers Complying With Acreage Provisions Will Get Benefits

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—An administrative ruling to permit Louisiana sugar cane producers, who have complied with acreage provisions of their adjustment contracts, to market excess sugar cane was announced today by the AAA.

Some producers, the AAA said, complied with acreage provisions of the contract but their production of sugar cane this year was in excess of their base production because of high yields of cane per acre.

The producers, the AAA said, may market excess cane by agreeing to make corresponding reductions next year in their acreage and production allotments or by taking deductions in their benefit payments. However, a producer's total marketing may not be greater than 120 per cent of his base production.

The producer may enter into a contract for 1936 in which he will agree to a reduction in his 1936 allotment for tonnage equal to the tonnage marketed in excess of this year's base production, to a proportionate reduction in his acreage allotment and to the withholding by the secretary of agriculture of the final 1935 crop payment until after proof of compliance with respect to his acreage allotment for 1936.

Or, the producer may elect to have deducted from his 1935 crop payment $2 per ton for each ton of standard sugar cane he markets in excess of his base production up to 10 per cent $3 per ton of standard sugar cane for the excess between 10 per cent and 20 per cent.

MONROE INFANT IS SERIOUSLY BURNED

Emily Martin, 10-months-old daughter of Mrs. Rosa Martin, 108 South Sixth street, Monroe, was in a critical condition at the St. Francis sanitarium yesterday afternoon, suffering general body burns, caused by hot lye water.

The infant was scalded at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Jack McMullen, of Rayville, while Mrs. Martin was visiting there Friday afternoon. The hot water, which contained lye and soap powder, was in a container on a hearth fire, and the child was on her stomach on the floor. When the firewood on which the contained was located burned down, causing the container to fall outward, the water was thrown onto the floor and upon the infant.

Yesterday the infant was brought to the hospital here.

FARM HAND KILLS GIRL AND HIMSELF

GOUVERNEUR, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Ruth Clark, a 13-year-old girl, was shot to death in her sleep today by a 50-year-old farm hand who then committed suicide.

Walter Phippins who shot the girl, was employed as a hired hand on her father's farm, Coroner Frank D. Allen said in giving a verdict of homicide and suicide.

He said Phippins' body was found slumped across the girl's cot in a front room of the farmhouse at Talcville.

There was no evidence that there had been any attempt at assault, the coroner said.

"We can't explain what happened," he said. "Phippins left a note saying he had no money, and could not find a good job and that there was no use living. There was nothing in it about the girl. I found nothing to indicate that he had any attachment for her.

"He went down to the barn with her parents early today. A little while later he came back alone, went into the girl's room, shot her with a .38 caliber pistol and then shot himself. He fell across the cot where she slept."

Between 8 p. m. and midnight are the best hours for natural sleep, according to a British scientist.

'POW WOW' STAFF MEMBERS RETURN

Jason Berry, editor, and Carl Davis, business manager of the "Pow Wow," publication of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, have just returned from Chicago where they attended the fourteenth annual meeting of the American Collegiate Press, held at the Medinah club in that city.

Special interest attached to the trip, as it was the first time that the "Pow Wow" has been represented at these annual meetings.

There were 325 members of college newspaper staffs present, coming from institutions in nearly every state in the Union. Lectures, round table discussions and luncheons occupied the time each day.

One of the interesting talks was that by Sterling North, literary critic of the Chicago Daily News, who discussed "What the Young Writer Must Face." He narrated some of his personal experiences which began as a "cub" reporter and has led to his advancement to his present position.

Another address of interest was that by Leland Stowe, Paris correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune on "The European Versus the American Press."

Berry stated that the trip was one that was calculated to give a broadened vision to all men who were privileged to attend.

PASCAGOULA, Miss., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Charged with the shooting Friday night of Roger Necaise, residing near Ocean Springs, Jim Atwell, of the same community, was held in the Jackson county jail here tonight. Necaise, meanwhile, was in a Biloxi, Miss., hospital where his condition was considered serious.

The shooting occurred at the St. Matin school, where the pair were attending a play. Atwell was quoted by officers as saying Necaise struck him with a pistol when Atwell went to the door of the school to throw out a cigarette. In a scuffle which followed, Atwell is said to have obtained a pistol and to have fired five times at Necaise. Physicians would not allow officers to question the wounded man.

EXCESS CANE IS TO BE MARKETED

Producers Complying With Acreage Provisions Will Get Benefits

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—An administrative ruling to permit Louisiana sugar cane producers, who have complied with acreage provisions of their adjustment contracts, to market excess sugar cane was announced today by the AAA.

Some producers, the AAA said, complied with acreage provisions of the contract but their production of sugar cane this year was in excess of their base production because of high yields of cane per acre.

The producers, the AAA said, may market excess cane by agreeing to make corresponding reductions next year in their acreage and production allotments or by taking deductions in their benefit payments. However, a producer's total marketing may not be greater than 120 per cent of his base production.

The producer may enter into a contract for 1936 in which he will agree to a reduction in his 1936 allotment for tonnage equal to the tonnage marketed in excess of this year's base production, to a proportionate reduction in his acreage allotment and to the withholding by the secretary of agriculture of the final 1935 crop payment until after proof of compliance with respect to his acreage allotment for 1936.

Or, the producer may elect to have deducted from his 1935 crop payment $2 per ton for each ton of standard sugar cane he markets in excess of his base production up to 10 per cent $3 per ton of standard sugar cane for the excess between 10 per cent and 20 per cent.

COUNCIL OF WAR AT BATTLEFRONT

FARM HAND KILLS GIRL AND HIMSELF

GOUVERNEUR, N. Y., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Ruth Clark, a 13-year-old girl, was shot to death in her sleep today by a 50-year-old farm hand who then committed suicide.

Walter Phippins who shot the girl, was employed as a hired hand on her father's farm, Coroner Frank D. Allen said in giving a verdict of homicide and suicide.

He said Phippins' body was found slumped across the girl's cot in a front room of the farmhouse at Talcville.

There was no evidence that there had been any attempt at assault, the coroner said.

"We can't explain what happened," he said. "Phippins left a note saying he had no money, and could not find a good job and that there was no use living. There was nothing in it about the girl. I found nothing to indicate that he had any attachment for her.

"He went down to the barn with her parents early today. A little while later he came back alone, went into the girl's room, shot her with a .38 caliber pistol and then shot himself. He fell across the cot where she slept."

Between 8 p. m. and midnight are the best hours for natural sleep, according to a British scientist.

MONROE INFANT IS SERIOUSLY BURNED

Emily Martin, 10-months-old daughter of Mrs. Rosa Martin, 108 South Sixth street, Monroe, was in a critical condition at the St. Francis sanitarium yesterday afternoon, suffering general body burns, caused by hot lye water.

The infant was scalded at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Jack McMullen, of Rayville, while Mrs. Martin was visiting there Friday afternoon. The hot water, which contained lye and soap powder, was in a container on a hearth fire, and the child was on her stomach on the floor. When the firewood on which the contained was located burned down, causing the container to fall outward, the water was thrown onto the floor and upon the infant.

Yesterday the infant was brought to the hospital here.

'POW WOW' STAFF MEMBERS RETURN

Jason Berry, editor, and Carl Davis, business manager of the "Pow Wow," publication of the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university, have just returned from Chicago where they attended the fourteenth annual meeting of the American Collegiate Press, held at the Medinah club in that city.

Special interest attached to the trip, as it was the first time that the "Pow Wow" has been represented at these annual meetings.

There were 325 members of college newspaper staffs present, coming from institutions in nearly every state in the Union. Lectures, round table discussions and luncheons occupied the time each day.

One of the interesting talks was that by Sterling North, literary critic of the Chicago Daily News, who discussed "What the Young Writer Must Face." He narrated some of his personal experiences which began as a "cub" reporter and has led to his advancement to his present position.

Another address of interest was that by Leland Stowe, Paris correspondent of the New York Herald-Tribune on "The European Versus the American Press."

Berry stated that the trip was one that was calculated to give a broadened vision to all men who were privileged to attend.

PASCAGOULA, Miss., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Charged with the shooting Friday night of Roger Necaise, residing near Ocean Springs, Jim Atwell, of the same community, was held in the Jackson county jail here tonight. Necaise, meanwhile, was in a Biloxi, Miss., hospital where his condition was considered serious.

The shooting occurred at the St. Matin school, where the pair were attending a play. Atwell was quoted by officers as saying Necaise struck him with a pistol when Atwell went to the door of the school to throw out a cigarette. In a scuffle which followed, Atwell is said to have obtained a pistol and to have fired five times at Necaise. Physicians would not allow officers to question the wounded man.

ROGERS PREFERRED BEANS, CORN PONE TO FANCY DISHES

Fat Meat And Raw Onions Also Among Favorite Foods

SAND SPRINGS, Okla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Beans and fat meat, corn pone and raw onions are finer food than turkey and cranberries, the late Will Rogers believed.

Rogers expressed his ideas on food in a letter to Mrs. F. M. McFall of Sand Springs in reply to her request for a recipe to be used in a Sand Springs women's club cook book, she recently disclosed.

"I don't know any recipe (we used to call it receipt for making some)," the letter read. "Well, I don't know either one. Navy beans cooked with plenty of ham or fat meat and kept kinder watery, or soupy, served with corn bread (no egg, just corn pone) and plenty of raw onions. If you get this you can turn your turkey loose, and let the cranberries stay on the trees, or bushes, or whatever it is they hibernate on."

MOURNING GHOSTS

Shades Of Hanged Pirates Lose Haunt In London

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Shades of many old-time pirates who closed their careers at the end of stout ropes will feel personal losses at the closing of one of London's historic hostelries, The Turk's Head.

Its back steps lapped by the Thames, The Turk's Head for 400 years has been a hangout for sea-faring men—including pirates. It offered a convenient landing, a sudden getaway.

But it was the pirates who finally ran second to the law who could claim the greatest sentimental attachmen to the ancient pub. Over its bar they enjoyed their last "can of bitter."

En route to the gallows, the condemned sea-rovers were permitted to stop for one final quart—no more, no less. It was supplied by the Turk's Head under a contract with the government.

It brought a pleasant break in the procession and gave the miscreant an opportunity to tell his cronies where he'd be seeing them.

EVERY ETHIOPIAN HOME IN PERIL

In the great Ogaden district where Italy's southern armies strive to drive back defending forces, every home is in peril from air raids and artillery attack, so Chief Bakala Ayele, most influential man in a region near Wal Wal, has trained his family and retainers as home guards. Even his wife (right) and young sons bear arms for use against raiding planes or land foes.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS SEEN BY JOHNSON

Former NRA Chief Predicts 6,000,000 Jobless When Normalcy Returns

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator, said today that at the present rate of re-employment there might still be 6,000,000 jobless when business returns to normal.

"You can see from a glance at the figures that re-employment is not keeping pace with recovery," he said in an interview.

"I don't deny that employment is increasing. There is a dispute over unemployment figures, but say there were 12,000,000 at one time, and that the total is now down to 9,500,000. Business has meantime gone back 60 per cent of the way from the low point.

"If a 60 per cent recovery has absorbed only 2,000,000, you are going to have at least 6,000,000 unemployed when you get all the way back, at the very least."

As he talked, Johnson paced back and forth in his office here, under a picture of President Roosevelt which occupies the most prominent spot on the wall. Despite his criticism of administration policies, Johnson said that he was still a supporter of the president.

Miss Frances Robinson, his secretary and assistant, was busy in the outer office fixing lunch. Occasionally he called to her to find some book or paper, and at such times she suddenly reverted to secretarial duties, despite the apron she wore preparing the meal.

Johnson said one reason employment was not increasing as fast as business was improving, was because of lengthening of work hours through departure from code standards. He said there would be hundreds of thousands of additional jobs today if hours had not been lengthened.

"There is no question but that in the city of New York wages have been reduced 20 per cent and hours extended about the same amount," Johnson said. "I say that on the information of Mrs. Anna N. Rosenberg, NRA director for New York.

"That has been her report, and in addition I conducted a series of conferences with employers to work out some method for getting relief workers back into private employment. I did not get any denial that that was about what had happened there."

Johnson said that the labor department report yesterday showing that factory payrolls had increased 24.3 per cent in September, 1935, over September, 1934, while employment had gained 10.1 per cent was evidence of lengthening of hours.

Some Indians scalped their foes long before the coming of the white man.

PROBLEM SOLVED

Natives Of Congo Can Use Old Razor Blades

PARIS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The world's old razor blade problem has been solved by the Rev. H. Jenkinson, English missionary in the Belgian Congo, who would be glad to have all he can get.

The Congo natives yearn for razor blades—old or new—and the missionary says there is "no limit to the uses they can find for them."

They shave with them, use them to dig out venomous jiggers and thorns, fashion household utensils and make hunting instruments.

When there is a death in a native family, Jenkinson explained when he stopped here on his way home, the demand for any kind of razor blade arises. All the friends and relatives are expected to shave off their stiff and wiry hair. They do it by pressing it back with one hand and running the blade through it near the roots.

Jenkinson, who said he can dispose of an unlimited quantity of old blades, lives at 100 Richmond road, Raynes Park, S. W. 20, London, England.

Immense London Docks Give Six Hundred Jobs

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Work is proceeding rapidly on the new five-year $8,550,000 development scheme to widen and deepen the Thames at the London docks.

Steady work will be given 600 men for five years on the project, which is designed to make the facilities at Royal Victoria and Royal Albert docks the most modern in the world.

The depth of water in the basin will be increased from 28 to 31 feet, and electric cranes installed to replace the present steam ones.

Particular interest attaches to the Royal Victoria dock, whose famous old jetties, built in 1855, are being replaced by 6,000 feet of new quayage. Able at one time to accommodate the largest ships afloat, these piers now barely berth vessels of 20,000 tons.

Royal Albert dock will have new quays totaling 5,350 feet.

Apartment Building Boom Persists In Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Argentine's liking for the comforts of the American apartment mode of living has kept a respectable building boom going here through the depression.

Almost 700 new apartment buildings have gone up within two and a half years.

Last year, says the municipal statistical department, 261 apartment buildings were constructed, and there were even more in 1933. Building in 1935 has gone forward with the same impetus.

The apartment building boom, coupled with widening of several streets and construction of a new subway, has helped keep Argentine employment to insignifcant figures.

Expert Advises Vacation For Worn-Out Farmland

MANHATTAN, Kansas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Back to the "grass ropts" is not merely a political exhortation of farmers and agricultural experts of the dust-blown region of the southwest.

E. A. Clevenger of Manhattan, crop specialist of Kansas State college, advocates grass as offering the best chance for rebuilding rundown farms and fields.

"It is nature's way of restoring worn-out, cultivated soils," he said, stating much land could be materially benefited by being "retired to pasture."

THREE-DIMENSION MOVIES ACHIEVED BY USE OF LINES

Pictures Are In Colors More Natural Than Ordinary

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Three-dimensional movies, as good as the stereopticon grandma used, have been perfected by Edgar I. Fuller, Dallas engineer.

His pictures are in color more natural than some of those shown on movie screens in the past.

His film, which he exhibited after showing the three-dimensional pictures, had no visible detail whatever. The frames on the film were only a mass of parallel lines. There were, he said, 10,500 of these lines to a little more than an inch.

The lines he said reproduce the picture the same as dots or the mesh in a photo-engraving. On his film the lines are obtained by covering his camera lens with a glass grid containing the lines.

The lines he said are necessary for third-dimension projection. The stereoptic appearance he explained as due to double refraction of light from the screen. He did not go into detail about the refraction.

Refraction is the change in direction a ray of light assumes when it passes from one transparent medium to another which is more or less dense than the first.

Adds One Primary Color

Fuller claimed that the colors came from the break-up of his photographic image into fine, parallel lines. A photograph taken with ordinary black and white, he changes into color by re-photographing the fine lines upon the negative.

When he makes prints from this line negative, he says he adds to it one primary color which was in the scene photogrtphed. Only one color is added.

When he develops the print to show this one color he insists that the other colors all appear automatically.

Prenatal Diet Of Pigs Seen Influencing Sight

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Fred Hale, chief of the swine husbandry division at the Texas agricultural experiment station, reports experiments with 12 litters of pigs farrowed over a period of more than three years demonstrated improper feeding of the dam during pregnancy was a cause of blindness.

Litters of blind pigs were produced, and as a double check, blind dams and sires were given normal rations and produced normal pigs.

Medical men have expressed interest in his experiments. Last June Hale addressed the Association for Research in Ophthalmology.

Roman Statue In Africa Relic Of Nero's Stepdad

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A rare archeological discovery is reported from Tangiers with the digging up of a fine Roman statue.

The statue, more than six feet high, is of a woman wearing a crown and is dated from the time of Emperor Claudius by local archeologists. It was uncovered by a laborer digging the foundations of a new building.

City Fulfills Agreement By Burying G. A. R. Vet

MIAMI, Okla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The city of Miami has fulfilled an agreement made with the disbanded Grand Army of the Republic post here by burying one of its members in the city cemetery.

Thirteen years ago, when the post was disbanded, it deeded to the city a plot it owned in the cemetery, with the reservation that the city should bear the expenses of burial for each of the six surviving members.

Zadoc Pratt Freeman, who died last August 5, in Frankfort, Kansas, was the first of the six Civil war veterans to die.

Two hundred and fifty dollars of the $1,500 the city had set aside for the funeral services for the six was used to pay the expenses.

Mayor Repulses Cupid With Anti-Necking Rule

PICHER, Okla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Cupid is getting little encouragement in this Ottawa county, Oklahoma, mining town.

Mayor Fred Gray has ordered strict enforcement of the city's "anti-necking" ordinance. All persons caught "necking" in parked automobiles on Picher streets will be arrested and prosecuted "to the fullest extent of the law," says the mayor.

The mayor declared that some young people "apparently have lost their self-respect."

Forty members of the Children's theater, sponsored by the Monroe recreation department, were in attendance Saturday afternoon when the election of officers was held. The next meeting will be held Saturday at 1:30 p. m. and on Friday night at 7 o'clock the Hallowe'en party will be held, which will be open to members only.

Both books deal with the World war and both come from actual experiences. Irvin S. Cobb wrote from his experiences with the German army before America entered the war, while Humphrey Cobb wrote from his experiences with the French army.

Each got his title from Gray's "Elegy."

GLASGOW, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A church law that puts dancing among the forbidden sins, and which dates back to 1649, only 28 years after the voyage of the Mayflower, is being invoked by the Scottish Free Presbyterian church.

The controversy followed the suspension from church rights for six months of Provost Murray, a lay preacher, for permitting dancing at a children's party in his home.

ROGERS PREFERRED BEANS, CORN PONE TO FANCY DISHES

Fat Meat And Raw Onions Also Among Favorite Foods

SAND SPRINGS, Okla., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Beans and fat meat, corn pone and raw onions are finer food than turkey and cranberries, the late Will Rogers believed.

Rogers expressed his ideas on food in a letter to Mrs. F. M. McFall of Sand Springs in reply to her request for a recipe to be used in a Sand Springs women's club cook book, she recently disclosed.

"I don't know any recipe (we used to call it receipt for making some)," the letter read. "Well, I don't know either one. Navy beans cooked with plenty of ham or fat meat and kept kinder watery, or soupy, served with corn bread (no egg, just corn pone) and plenty of raw onions. If you get this you can turn your turkey loose, and let the cranberries stay on the trees, or bushes, or whatever it is they hibernate on."

MOURNING GHOSTS

ades Of Hanged Pirates Lose Haunt In London

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Shades of many old-time pirates who closed their careers at the end of stout ropes will feel personal losses at the closing of one of London's historic hostelries, The Turk's Head.

Its back steps lapped by the Thames, The Turk's Head for 400 years has been a hangout for sea-faring men—including pirates. It offered a convenient landing, a sudden getaway.

But it was the pirates who finally ran second to the law who could claim the greatest sentimental attachmen to the ancient pub. Over its bar they enjoyed their last "can of bitter."

En route to the gallows, the condemned sea-rovers were permitted to stop for one final quart—no more, no less. It was supplied by the Turk's Head under a contract with the government.

It brought a pleasant break in the procession and gave the miscreant an opportunity to tell his cronies where he'd be seeing them.

EVERY ETHIOPIAN HOME IN PERIL

In the great Ogaden district where Italy's southern armies strive to drive back defending forces, every home is in peril from air raids and artillery attack, so Chief Bakala Ayele, most influential man in a region near Wal Wal, has trained his family and retainers as home guards. Even his wife (right) and young sons bear arms for use against raiding planes or land foes.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS SEEN BY JOHNSON

Former NRA Chief Predicts 6,000,000 Jobless When Normalcy Returns

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA administrator, said today that at the present rate of re-employment there might still be 6,000,000 jobless when business returns to normal.

"You can see from a glance at the figures that re-employment is not keeping pace with recovery," he said in an interview.

"I don't deny that employment is increasing. There is a dispute over unemployment figures, but say there were 12,000,000 at one time, and that the total is now down to 9,500,000. Business has meantime gone back 60 per cent of the way from the low point.

"If a 60 per cent recovery has absorbed only 2,000,000, you are going to have at least 6,000,000 unemployed when you get all the way back, at the very least."

As he talked, Johnson paced back and forth in his office here, under a picture of President Roosevelt which occupies the most prominent spot on the wall. Despite his criticism of administration policies, Johnson said that he was still a supporter of the president.

Miss Frances Robinson, his secretary and assistant, was busy in the outer office fixing lunch. Occasionally he called to her to find some book or paper, and at such times she suddenly reverted to secretarial duties, despite the apron she wore preparing the meal.

Johnson said one reason employment was not increasing as fast as business was improving, was because of lengthening of work hours through departure from code standards. He said there would be hundreds of thousands of additional jobs today if hours had not been lengthened.

"There is no question but that in the city of New York wages have been reduced 20 per cent and hours extended about the same amount," Johnson said. "I say that on the information of Mrs. Anna N. Rosenberg, NRA director for New York.

"That has been her report, and in addition I conducted a series of conferences with employers to work out some method for getting relief workers back into private employment. I did not get any denial that that was about what had happened there."

Johnson said that the labor department report yesterday showing that factory payrolls had increased 24.3 per cent in September, 1935, over September, 1934, while employment had gained 10.1 per cent was evidence of lengthening of hours.

Some Indians scalped their foes long before the coming of the white man.

PROBLEM SOLVED

Natives Of Congo Can Use Old Razor Blades

PARIS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The world's old razor blade problem has been solved by the Rev. H. Jenkinson, English missionary in the Belgian Congo, who would be glad to have all he can get.

The Congo natives yearn for razor blades—old or new—and the missionary says there is "no limit to the uses they can find for them."

They shave with them, use them to dig out venomous jiggers and thorns, fashion household utensils and make hunting instruments.

When there is a death in a native family, Jenkinson explained when he stopped here on his way home, the demand for any kind of razor blade arises. All the friends and relatives are expected to shave off their stiff and wiry hair. They do it by pressing it back with one hand and running the blade through it near the roots.

Jenkinson, who said he can dispose of an unlimited quantity of old blades, lives at 100 Richmond road, Raynes Park, S. W. 20, London, England.

Immense London Docks Give Six Hundred Jobs

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Work is proceeding rapidly on the new five-year $8,550,000 development scheme to widen and deepen the Thames at the London docks.

Steady work will be given 600 men for five years on the project, which is designed to make the facilities at Royal Victoria and Royal Albert docks the most modern in the world.

The depth of water in the basin will be increased from 28 to 31 feet, and electric cranes installed to replace the present steam ones.

Particular interest attaches to the Royal Victoria dock, whose famous old jetties, built in 1855, are being replaced by 6,000 feet of new quayage. Able at one time to accommodate the largest ships afloat, these piers now barely berth vessels of 20,000 tons.

Royal Albert dock will have new quays totaling 5,350 feet.

Apartment Building Boom Persists In Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The Argentine's liking for the comforts of the American apartment mode of living has kept a respectable building boom going here through the depression.

Almost 700 new apartment buildings have gone up within two and a half years.

Last year, says the municipal statistical department, 261 apartment buildings were constructed, and there were even more in 1933. Building in 1935 has gone forward with the same impetus.

The apartment building boom, coupled with widening of several streets and construction of a new subway, has helped keep Argentine employment to insignifcant figures.

Expert Advises Vacation For Worn-Out Farmland

MANHATTAN, Kansas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Back to the "grass roots" is not merely a political exhortation of farmers and agricultural experts of the dust-blown region of the southwest.

E. A. Clevenger of Manhattan, crop specialist of Kansas State college, advocates grass as offering the best chance for rebuilding rundown farms and fields.

"It is nature's way of restoring worn-out, cultivated soils," he said, stating much land could be materially benefited by being "retired to pasture."

Pictures Are In Colors More Natural Than Ordinary

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Three-dimensional movies, as good as the stereopticon grandma used, have been perfected by Edgar I. Fuller, Dallas engineer.

His pictures are in color more natural than some of those shown on movie screens in the past.

His film, which he exhibited after showing the three-dimensional pictures, had no visible detail whatever. The frames on the film were only a mass of parallel lines. There were, he said, 10,500 of these lines to a little more than an inch.

The lines he said reproduce the picture the same as dots or the mesh in a photo-engraving. On his film the lines are obtained by covering his camera lens with a glass grid containing the lines.

The lines he said are necessary for third-dimension projection. The stereoptic appearance he explained as due to double refraction of light from the screen. He did not go into detail about the refraction.

Refraction is the change in direction a ray of light assumes when it passes from one transparent medium to another which is more or less dense than the first.

Adds One Primary Color

Fuller claimed that the colors came from the break-up of his photographic image into fine, parallel lines. A photograph taken with ordinary black and white, he changes into color by re-photographing the fine lines upon the negative.

When he makes prints from this line negative, he says he adds to it one primary color which was in the scene photogrtphed. Only one color is added.

When he develops the print to show this one color he insists that the other colors all appear automatically.

Prenatal Diet Of Pigs Seen Influencing Sight

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Fred Hale, chief of the swine husbandry division at the Texas agricultural experiment station, reports experiments with 12 litters of pigs farrowed over a period of more than three years demonstrated improper feeding of the dam during pregnancy was a cause of blindness.

Litters of blind pigs were produced, and as a double check, blind dams and sires were given normal rations and produced normal pigs.

Medical men have expressed interest in his experiments. Last June Hale addressed the Association for Research in Ophthalmology.

Roman Statue In Africa Relic Of Nero's Stepdad

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A rare archeological discovery is reported from Tangiers with the digging up of a fine Roman statue.

The statue, more than six feet high, is of a woman wearing a crown and is dated from the time of Emperor Claudius by local archeologists. It was uncovered by a laborer digging the foundations of a new building.

Claudius, who was stepfather of Nero, was emperor of Rome from 41 to 54 A. D.

The Monroe Morning World is an independent newspaper. It prints the news impartially. It supports what it believes to be right. It opposes what it believes to be wrong without regard to party politics.

Influence Of The Home

There is one thing this world does for each and every one of us: It gives every individual the golden opportunity to learn how to get along and work with his fellows.

Persons who cannot get along together cannot be said to be highly developed souls. Heaven is a place of harmony. There can be no harmony where there is contention and friction. Therefore, persons who cannot get along among themselves are not ready for heaven.

We deserve no credit when we are happy and harmonious among those who naturally make us happy and harmonious. It is when we keep conditions peaceful, and ourselves peaceful, among associates and under conditions which test our patience, poise and endurance that we deserve credit.

Probably one of the reasons for family life is the splendid opportunity offered for training in getting along together. Many persons lose sight of this great chance. On the slightest provocation they fuss and fight and fall out. Husbands and wives, instead of bearing with each other, become estranged from each other. Children are allowed to become a source of irritation instead of education. Children offer an excellent means for their elders to practice patience and exercise self-control, and instill the same qualities into the children. As things are now, children pick up most of their discordant habits and viewpoints from their elders—usually their parents.

The trouble with us is that we do not know what we are here for. We do not understand that the only excuse for our being on this earth is to make ourselves broader, deeper, and better. We fail to comprehend the many, many chances that are constantly being thrust on us to give us a means of improving our characters. Instead of overcoming difficulties that we are brought face to face with to overcome, we dodge or duck or run.

And we are not supposed to put up with evil conditions, either. We are supposed to combat evil, even when we are endeavoring to get along peaceably with evildoers.

Not every problem belongs to one or another individual; but there are problems which are definitely the responsibility of each. Such problems we should meet squarely and deal with courageously and constructively—for our own sakes if for no other reason. We are going to have to learn to do all these things before we shall ever be entitled to dwell on the higher and more beautiful planes of existence.

The home is the unit of everything worth while. A people can rise no higher than its homes. As the home life is, so will the national life be. What husbands and wives are to each other, what parents and offspring are to each other, so will the members of the nation be to one another. If you are helping to make a mess of your home life, then you are helping to make a mess of the national life, and of your life to come. And if you are helping to make a success of your home life, then you are helping to make a success of this nation's life and of your life hereafter.

TANKS CRASH THROUGH

One thing, at least, the fighting in Ethiopia is making clear; that our modern mechanization of warfare has vastly widened the gap between the trained army and the ill-equipped volunteer levy.

To date the Italians seem to have had no real obstacles in their path except those interposed by climate and terrain. The Ethiopian fighting men may be just as brave and determined as they ever were—but what, after all, can they do against airplanes and tanks and machine guns?

Forty years ago, when an Italian army was annihilated at Aduwa, the gap was not so wide. Civilized man had not yet perfected his killing machines. It was still possible for a horde of determined men to overwhelm a modern army.

But today—judging from developments thus far—that is not true. The mechanized army seems to hold an unbeatable advantage over any foe which lacks modern weapons, no matter how much valor the foe can muster.

LOWER FARES, HIGHER INCOME

Just how far the experiences of a tiny "jerkwater" railroad can be applied to the great trunk lines is probably a matter for argument. Anyway, people who travel on trains will undoubtedly hope that the big roads may take suitable cognizance of the recent experience of the Fonda, Johnstown and Gloversville railway in up-state New York.

This road recently tried out a cent-a-mile passenger fare, and the experiment has worked so well that it will be continued. Passenger service has showed an amazing increase, and cash revenue has also risen in spite of the slash in the rates.

It's an old business principle—when you can't sell your goods, cut your prices until you can sell them. To be sure, the great complexity of the modern railway rate structure makes that advice easier to give than to follow.

Nevertheless, it might pay the big eastern roads to try reducing fares and see what would happen.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

TO THE DEFENDER OF MY GARDEN

You're not a raving beauty
You have no grace or charm;
The average man
Your face would scan
And view you with alarm.
The little children shudder
Each time you pass them by—
They never find
The agile mind
That lies behind your eye.

But throngs of lovely flowers
Would droop beside the way
Were you not out
To hop about
Each spring and summer day,
To battle with the insects
You leave but few alive—
And capture bugs
And wicked slugs
And help the garden thrive.

Your tongue is like a dagger,
It thrusts out here and there
And evil things
On whirring wings
Are driven to despair.
There was a time I hated
To meet you on the road;
But now I'll praise
You all my days,
Heroic little toad.

Unite Against Criminals

BY BRUCE CATTON

One of the little oddities of present-day life is the fact that the individual states and cities are moaning low over the trend toward a centralized government, and simultaneously are turning more and more of the local crime prevention and detection work over to the federal government.

Centralization of police work seems to be an inescapable trend, and it is coming upon us because criminals are no longer living in the horse and buggy age. When a New York gang can import a killer from Chicago or Detroit to do a job in Brooklyn and can get him back to his own precinct before the police discover the body of the victim, the obsolescence of our old system of police work becomes too obvious to need much comment.

So far, we have left it to the federal government to provide a semblance of unification and cooperation in this situation. This has its drawbacks. The federal men could not jail Capone, for instance, until he forgot to pay his income tax; they could not go after so notorious a murderer as Dillinger until he took a stolen auto across a state line.

However, there are signs that a new deal in law enforcement is at hand. Delegates from 30 states met in Trenton, N. J., not long ago in an interstate crime conference called by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey; and they set up an interstate commission which is to try to work out some means of coordinating local police work all across the country.

Among the goals of this commission are methods of legalizing the pursuit of thugs across state borders, of returning key witnesses who have fled the jurisdiction of local courts, of supervising paroled prisoners who have likewise gone into other states, and of returning fugitives without the present involved extradition procedure.

It expects to set up an executive committee which, in cooperation with the federal department of justice, will draft and recommend uniform laws by which the individual states can make some such program effective.

A program of this kind ought to be a healthy step in the right direction. It is pure folly for us to go on depending on local police and sheriffs forces to cope with criminals who can slip from one state to another without hindrance; and the federal government cannot, in the very nature of things, fill the gap completely.

There must be detailed, organized cooperation between all the local units of detection and prosecution. The New Jersey conference seems to have discovered a way in which this can be brought about. It is to be hoped that the conferees make all speed to present the states with a far-reaching program.

New Deal In Washington

WASHINGTON.—There are two journalistic theories about Mr. Hoover.

One is that he seeks renomination by the Republicans.

The other is that he has neither thought nor expectation of renomination, but seeks only an influential voice in party policy and selection of the candidate.

The answer is this:

Hoover in recent months has summoned to him certain old friends, usually ex-officials here, who still exert some political influence in their home states. He has asked them point-blank whether he could obtain their state delegations for the next G. O. P. convention.

Frequently, one hears, the consultees have expressed polite doubts. Whereupon Mr. Hoover has been known to pull out a list of possible nominees and then, carefully outlining the disqualifications of each, cross the names off one by one until there was left only that of good old Herbert himself.

Will It Be Same Story?

Reminded that party politicians overwhelmingly oppose his nomination, Mr. Hoover replies that the professional politicians also opposed him in 1928. In that he is to a large degree correct. Where he may be wrong is in his belief that the popular demand for him in 1928, especially conspicuous among business men, will be repeated in 1936 as a result of general disillusionment with the glittering Roosevelt.

Confidants say Hoover suggests himself as another Grover Cleveland, who was voted out of office in 1888 and re-elected four years later. (A possible sidelight on that idea is the fact that Cleveland had a majority of 100,000 votes in 1888—despite his electoral college defeat, whereas Hoover was defeated by a majority of more than 7,000,000.)

Some of Hoover's friends believe his best chance would come in a deadlocked convention. Reports indicate an intention to achieve such a deadlock.

Vandenberg Looks Best

When political correspondents go into a huddle these dull days, they often arise agreeing that Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan looks, at this admittedly early date, like the most probable nominee for the Republican nomination.

This comes through a process of elimination, after the premise that the outstanding possibilities now are Vandenberg, Col. Frank Knox of Chicago and Gov. Alf Landon of Kansas.

Wrong as they may or may not be, most people here are unable to take the Knox candidacy very seriously. Faced with an obvious paucity of "available" material, politicians seek primarily a vote-getter of demonstrated ability. Colonel Knox has never had a chance to demonstrate his popular appeal at the polls.

Leary Of Liberal Landon

Landon, according to shrewd men who have been out to look him over, lives up to much of the current ballyhoo for him. While his stature scarcely overtops the Washington monument, it appears to be at least equal to that of Coolidge or Harding.

He is described as a man who would accept much of the liberal program Roosevelt has advanced to date—such as AAA, the power policy, banking reform, TVA and the labor dispute act—but would fight for a "New Deal at bargain rates."

But it is this liberalism of Landon's which already causes eastern leaders to look askance at him and it's said to be very doubtful whether Landon would make the concessions to them which they would demand in return for support.

Also, the boast that Kansas state and local taxes under the personally and publicly parsimonious Landon have been cut from $127,000,000 to $97,000,000 can be riddled by citation of New Deal millions—relief, benefit checks, public works and so on—which have poured into Kansas and made such a reduction possible. Other governors have similar records.

Vote-Getter, That's All!

That leaves, for the moment, Vandenberg, who has been absent in Europe and acting as if he didn't want the nomination.

Vandenberg has been the party's other outstanding vote-getter in a year of New Deal triumphs. Although he voted against AAA and the Wagner bill, which doesn't increase his availability, he is shrewd. He has a tinge of liberalism and probably would play ball with the eastern bosses.

A STAMPING CORNER

By W. J. KIRBY

The new Michigan stamp will make its appearance November 1, with Lansing as the first day city. It will be three-cent of the same size as the Boulder Dam stamp, but will be arranged horizontally.

The central design of the new stamp will be the Michigan state seal, draped at the sides and base with the American flag at the left and the Michigan state flag on the right, the staffs of the flags extending to the upper corners. In the space below the flags will appear a forest and lake scene at the left, while at the right will be a scene representing commerce.

Collectors desiring the first day cancellation should send covers at once to the postmaster at Lansing, with the request that he hold for first day cancellation. Three cents coin or money order should be sent for each cover sent. Do not send other stamps in payment.

It is said that a design has been selected for the Texas Centennial stamp to be issued early next year. The stamp will bear portraits of General Sam Houston and Stephen F. Austin, with the Lone Star flag in the center. This in conjunction with pictures of the Alamo and the Battle of San Jacinto. This is quite a lot to place on one stamp, yet it is possible that it can be made attractive.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE DUNBAR CURFEW—The day of the curfew passed into oblivion long ago, but there is in Bristol, Conn., atop the Dunbar Brothers factory, an old bell that rings 99 times every night of the year promptly at 9 o'clock. It is said that Col. Edward L. Dunbar wanted the bell to ring 100 times each night, but this was impossible because with the first pull of the bell there was one stroke and then two strokes with each additional pull. For 65 years it has been pealing out its 99 strokes, and the founder's will say it shall continue to ring just so.

Lights Of New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK.—Courtesy, New York style: In seclusion at the Hotel St. Moritz, the Count and Countess Covadanga of Spain are living modestly and in dread of interviewers.

The count is the eldest son of ex-King Alfonso and lost his crown prince title when he married a commoner, the present countess, a raven-haired Latin beauty. (He would have lost it, anyway, later, during the revolution.)

But here's the joker: When the ex-royal couple arrived at the St. Moritz, the hotel managers could not decide which flag to fly in their honor. A flag of their Spanish monarchy would offend the Spanish consulate here; a flag of the Spanish republic would offend the titled visitors, since they were, after all, tossed out of their country by the publicans. Finally, as a feat of extreme tact and diplomacy, the St. Moritz men flew a Cuban flag on the skyhigh mast-heads and struck a compromise. . . . Just another example of hotel hospitality.

Mountain Music

New York's hill-billies are in distress, crowded out of their jobs in night clubs by torch singers and cowboy yodellers. And so 200 nasal twangers of mountain music are meeting in the Village Barn to talk over their predicament. All feuds and washboard scraping barred. . . . Sports scribes from out of town are bewildered by the uncomfortable facilities they get at the football games in the Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds. Accustomed to glass-enclosed, heated press boxes in their home town ball fields, they work on out-of-door, draughty ledges here. But they dread most of all the ice-box conditions of the concrete press box in the Palmer Stadium at Princeton. . . . Shed a tear, also, for the men who cover the waterfront and who go down to the sea in cold cutters against lashing winds at 7 a.m. Winter is no lark for the ship news men.

An acquaintance relays the one about the Manhattan sculptor who was asked by a backwoods boy, while he was vacationing in the Maine woods, what the population of Manhattan happens to be at the moment. The sculptor estimated the number at eight million. The kid looked up. "What's your number, Mister?" he inquired gravely. . . . The medical staff at Bellevue is mourning the passing of ward 50, the corner saloon which later degenerated into a soda fountain. Many a romance between snowy-capped nurses and intent internes bloomed here over a beaker of brew or chocolate soda.

Fare Enough

The statisticians at Longchamps, where gourmets gather, tell me hamburgers have finally been placed before ham and eggs as the national dish. . . . There have been 35 suicides from the George Washington bridge since the day it opened to traffic. . . . The movie companies go to great risks to deliver talking picture prints to Manhattan on time. Last week Gaumont-British sent "Trans-Atlantic Tunnel" from London to Quebec, then chartered a plane there to Newark airport. The plane landed with a thimbleful of gas, not a moment too soon.

When society youngsters elope these days, they don't go far. The other night, Marjorie Trowbridge and Robert Nichols, Park avenue well-knowns, escaped to Harrison, N. Y., a half hour away from Times Square, were wed hastily and returned to Manhattan the next morning. . . . A note from Joan Blondell says that she is coming east with the baby and that she will rent an apartment with her sister, Gloria, somewhere in the 70's, for a month or so, while she peruses plays for a Broadway appearance.

RAIL SERVICE AT JONESVILLE MAY BE REINSTATED

JONESVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The local Lions club is in receipt of a letter from Harvey G. Fields, member of the public service commission, advising that a hearing of the matter of reinstatement of the regular passenger and mail service on the L. & A. railway here could be arranged, and at the regular meeting of the club, Tuesday night the secretary was directed to contact Commissioner Fields and arrange a hearing on the matter at the earliest possible time.

Since the withdrawal of the regular passenger and mail service from the L. & A. railway, the section from Jonesville to Ferriday on the east side and from Jonesville to Jena on the west has suffered considerable handicap in all branches of the service, including a delay of express and mail, more especially the latter, as trains handling the mail fail to make connections.

Efforts are being made to secure the hearing at Jonesville. It is thought that large delegations will be on hand.

LITTLE RIVER DAM SOUGHT BY LIONS

JONESVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Since the reorganization of the local Lions club, the club has taken an active interest in a project of the damming of Little river at Jonesville, for the purpose of creating a natural breeding ground for fish in Catahoula lake, in furtherance of Jonesville's fresh water fish industry.

With the sanction of the club, Secretary Charles A. Phillips took the matter up with Congressman Riley Wilson by letter. The congressman advised he would be in Jonesville at an early date.

Last Friday Wilson arrived and called on the Lions secretary, asserting the funds could be obtained for the project, and that the government was much in favor of projects of this nature tending to increase or protect natural resources of fish and wild life.

The purpose of the proposed dam is to raise the water level in Little river, making it flow back into Catahoula lake, thereby making the water on an eight foot level over an area of about seven by thirty miles in the lake bed.

MAN HELD HERE WANTED IN JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

J. P. Gambrell, 32, arrested in West Monroe by West Monroe police and the sheriff's department Friday for allegedly passing three forged checks last week, and also for allegedly passing several forged checks here about six years ago, is wanted by authorities at Jackson, Miss., for obtaining a 1931 model automobile by means of a bogus check, the sheriff's department here was informed by the Jackson authorities yesterday.

It was believed here that Gambrell will first face trial on the charges here, and that his trial in Mississippi will be held later.

The name of W. M. Morris was placed on the checks allegedly passed here by Gambrell, both last week and six years ago, it was stated. Gambrell told officers he returned here last Sunday.

Influence Of The Home

There is one thing this world does for each and every one of us: It gives every individual the golden opportunity to learn how to get along and work with his fellows.

Persons who cannot get along together cannot be said to be highly developed souls. Heaven is a place of harmony. There can be no harmony where there is contention and friction. Therefore, persons who cannot get along among themselves are not ready for heaven.

We deserve no credit when we are happy and harmonious among those who naturally make us happy and harmonious. It is when we keep conditions peaceful, and ourselves peaceful, among associates and under conditions which test our patience, poise and endurance that we deserve credit.

Probably one of the reasons for family life is the splendid opportunity offered for training in getting along together. Many persons lose sight of this great chance. On the slightest provocation they fuss and fight and fall out. Husbands and wives, instead of bearing with each other, become estranged from each other. Children are allowed to become a source of irritation instead of education. Children offer an excellent means for their elders to practice patience and exercise self-control, and instill the same qualities into the children. As things are now, children pick up most of their discordant habits and viewpoints from their elders—usually their parents.

The trouble with us is that we do not know what we are here for. We do not understand that the only excuse for our being on this earth is to make ourselves broader, deeper, and better. We fail to comprehend the many, many chances that are constantly being thrust on us to give us a means of improving our characters. Instead of overcoming difficulties that we are brought face to face with to overcome, we dodge or duck or run.

And we are not supposed to put up with evil conditions, either. We are supposed to combat evil, even when we are endeavoring to get along peaceably with evildoers.

Not every problem belongs to one or another individual; but there are problems which are definitely the responsibility of each. Such problems we should meet squarely and deal with courageously and constructively—for our own sakes if for no other reason. We are going to have to learn to do all these things before we shall ever be entitled to dwell on the higher and more beautiful planes of existence.

The home is the unit of everything worth while. A people can rise no higher than its homes. As the home life is, so will the national life be. What husbands and wives are to each other, what parents and offspring are to each other, so will the members of the nation be to one another. If you are helping to make a mess of your home life, then you are helping to make a mess of the national life, and of your life to come. And if you are helping to make a success of your home life, then you are helping to make a success of this nation's life and of your life hereafter.

TANKS CRASH THROUGH

One thing, at least, the fighting in Ethiopia is making clear; that our modern mechanization of warfare has vastly widened the gap between the trained army and the ill-equipped volunteer levy.

To date the Italians seem to have had no real obstacles in their path except those interposed by climate and terrain. The Ethiopian fighting men may be just as brave and determined as they ever were—but what, after all, can they do against airplanes and tanks and machine guns?

Forty years ago, when an Italian army was annihilated at Aduwa, the gap was not so wide. Civilized man had not yet perfected his killing machines. It was still possible for a horde of determined men to overwhelm a modern army.

But today—judging from developments thus far—that is not true. The mechanized army seems to hold an unbeatable advantage over any foe which lacks modern weapons, no matter how much valor the foe can muster.

LOWER FARES, HIGHER INCOME

Just how far the experiences of a tiny "jerkwater" railroad can be applied to the great trunk lines is probably a matter for argument. Anyway, people who travel on trains will undoubtedly hope that the big roads may take suitable cognizance of the recent experience of the Fonda, Johnstown and Gloversville railway in up-state New York.

This road recently tried out a cent-a-mile passenger fare, and the experiment has worked so well that it will be continued. Passenger service has showed an amazing increase, and cash revenue has also risen in spite of the slash in the rates.

It's an old business principle—when you can't sell your goods, cut your prices until you can sell them. To be sure, the great complexity of the modern railway rate structure makes that advice easier to give than to follow.

Nevertheless, it might pay the big eastern roads to try reducing fares and see what would happen.

More Truth Than Poetry

BY JAMES J. MONTAGUE

TO THE DEFENDER OF MY GARDEN

You're not a raving beauty
You have no grace or charm;
The average man
Your face would scan
And view you with alarm.
The little children shudder
Each time you pass them by—
They never find
The agile mind
That lies behind your eye.

But throngs of lovely flowers
Would droop beside the way
Were you not out
To hop about
Each spring and summer day,
To battle with the insects
You leave but few alive—
And capture bugs
And wicked slugs
And help the garden thrive.

Your tongue is like a dagger,
It thrusts out here and there
And evil things
On whirring wings
Are driven to despair.
There was a time I hated
To meet you on the road;
But now I'll praise
You all my days,
Heroic little toad.

Unite Against Criminals

BY BRUCE CATTON

One of the little oddities of present-day life is the fact that the individual states and cities are moaning low over the trend toward a centralized government, and simultaneously are turning more and more of the local crime prevention and detection work over to the federal government.

Centralization of police work seems to be an inescapable trend, and it is coming upon us because criminals are no longer living in the horse and buggy age. When a New York gang can import a killer from Chicago or Detroit to do a job in Brooklyn and can get him back to his own precinct before the police discover the body of the victim, the obsolescence of our old system of police work becomes too obvious to need much comment.

So far, we have left it to the federal government to provide a semblance of unification and cooperation in this situation. This has its drawbacks. The federal men could not jail Capone, for instance, until he forgot to pay his income tax; they could not go after so notorious a murderer as Dillinger until he took a stolen auto across a state line.

However, there are signs that a new deal in law enforcement is at hand. Delegates from 30 states met in Trenton, N. J., not long ago in an interstate crime conference called by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey; and they set up an interstate commission which is to try to work out some means of coordinating local police work all across the country.

Among the goals of this commission are methods of legalizing the pursuit of thugs across state borders, of returning key witnesses who have fled the jurisdiction of local courts, of supervising paroled prisoners who have likewise gone into other states, and of returning fugitives without the present involved extradition procedure.

It expects to set up an executive committee which, in cooperation with the federal department of justice, will draft and recommend uniform laws by which the individual states can make some such program effective.

EXPLANATION OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THE DUNBAR CURFEW—The day of the curfew passed into oblivion long ago, but there is in Bristol, Conn., atop the Dunbar Brothers factory, an old bell that rings 99 times every night of the year promptly at 9 o'clock. It is said that Col. Edward L. Dunbar wanted the bell to ring 100 times each night, but this was impossible because with the first pull of the bell there was one stroke and then two strokes with each additional pull. For 65 years it has been pealing out its 99 strokes, and the founder's will say it shall continue to ring just so.

Lights Of New York

By George Ross

NEW YORK.—Courtesy, New York style: In seclusion at the Hotel St. Moritz, the Count and Countess Covadanga of Spain are living modestly and in dread of interviewers.

The count is the eldest son of ex-King Alfonso and lost his crown prince title when he married a commoner, the present countess, a raven-haired Latin beauty. (He would have lost it, anyway, later, during the revolution.)

But here's the joker: When the ex-royal couple arrived at the St. Moritz, the hotel managers could not decide which flag to fly in their honor. A flag of their Spanish monarchy would offend the Spanish consulate here; a flag of the Spanish republic would offend the titled visitors, since they were, after all, tossed out of their country by the publicans. Finally, as a feat of extreme tact and diplomacy, the St. Moritz men flew a Cuban flag on the skyhigh mast-heads and struck a compromise. . . . Just another example of hotel hospitality.

Mountain Music

New York's hill-billies are in distress, crowded out of their jobs in night clubs by torch singers and cowboy yodellers. And so 200 nasal twangers of mountain music are meeting in the Village Barn to talk over their predicament. All feuds and washboard scraping barred. . . . Sports scribes from out of town are bewildered by the uncomfortable facilities they get at the football games in the Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds. Accustomed to glass-enclosed, heated press boxes in their home town ball fields, they work on out-of-door, draughty ledges here. But they dread most of all the ice-box conditions of the concrete press box in the Palmer Stadium at Princeton. . . . Shed a tear, also, for the men who cover the waterfront and who go down to the sea in cold cutters against lashing winds at 7 a.m. Winter is no lark for the ship news men.

An acquaintance relays the one about the Manhattan sculptor who was asked by a backwoods boy, while he was vacationing in the Maine woods, what the population of Manhattan happens to be at the moment. The sculptor estimated the number at eight million. The kid looked up. "What's your number, Mister?" he inquired gravely. . . . The medical staff at Bellevue is mourning the passing of ward 50, the corner saloon which later degenerated into a soda fountain. Many a romance between snowy-capped nurses and intent internes bloomed here over a beaker of brew or chocolate soda.

Fare Snough

The statisticians at Longchamps, where gourmets gather, tell me hamburgers have finally been placed before ham and eggs as the national dish. . . . There have been 35 suicides from the George Washington bridge since the day it opened to traffic. . . . The movie companies go to great risks to deliver talking picture prints to Manhattan on time. Last week Gaumont-British sent "Trans-Atlantic Tunnel" from London to Quebec, then chartered a plane there to Newark airport. The plane landed with a thimbleful of gas, not a moment too soon.

When society youngsters elope these days, they don't go far. The other night, Marjorie Trowbridge and Robert Nichols, Park avenue well-knowns, escaped to Harrison, N. Y., a half hour away from Times Square, were wed hastily and returned to Manhattan the next morning. . . . A note from Joan Blondell says that she is coming east with the baby and that she will rent an apartment with her sister, Gloria, somewhere in the 70's, for a month or so, while she peruses plays for a Broadway appearance.

RAIL SERVICE AT JONESVILLE MAY BE REINSTATED

JONESVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The local Lions club is in receipt of a letter from Harvey G. Fields, member of the public service commission, advising that a hearing of the matter of reinstatement of the regular passenger and mail service on the L. & A. railway here could be arranged, and at the regular meeting of the club, Tuesday night the secretary was directed to contact Commissioner Fields and arrange a hearing on the matter at the earliest possible time.

Since the withdrawal of the regular passenger and mail service from the L. & A. railway, the section from Jonesville to Ferriday on the east side and from Jonesville to Jena on the west has suffered considerable handicap in all branches of the service, including a delay of express and mail, more especially the latter, as trains handling the mail fail to make connections.

Efforts are being made to secure the hearing at Jonesville. It is thought that large delegations will be on hand.

LITTLE RIVER DAM SOUGHT BY LIONS

JONESVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Since the reorganization of the local Lions club, the club has taken an active interest in a project of the damming of Little river at Jonesville, for the purpose of creating a natural breeding ground for fish in Catahoula lake, in furtherance of Jonesville's fresh water fish industry.

With the sanction of the club, Secretary Charles A. Phillips took the matter up with Congressman Riley Wilson by letter. The congressman advised he would be in Jonesville at an early date.

Last Friday Wilson arrived and called on the Lions secretary, asserting the funds could be obtained for the project, and that the government was much in favor of projects of this nature tending to increase or protect natural resources of fish and wild life.

The purpose of the proposed dam is to raise the water level in Little river, making it flow back into Catahoula lake, thereby making the water on an eight foot level over an area of about seven by thirty miles in the lake bed.

MAN HELD HERE WANTED IN JACKSON, MISSISSIPPI

J. P. Gambrell, 32, arrested in West Monroe by West Monroe police and the sheriff's department Friday for allegedly passing three forged checks last week, and also for allegedly passing several forged checks here about six years ago, is wanted by authorities at Jackson, Miss., for obtaining a 1931 model automobile by means of a bogus check, the sheriff's department here was informed by the Jackson authorities yesterday.

It was believed here that Gambrell will first face trial on the charges here, and that his trial in Mississippi will be held later.

The name of W. M. Morris was placed on the checks allegedly passed here by Gambrell, both last week and six years ago, it was stated. Gambrell told officers he returned here last Sunday.

gin just as soon as the league gives the signal.

Britain's arms and munitions embargo against Italy is now effective. Sweden also began enforcing an arms embargo Saturday. Thirty-three nations now are withholding war supplies from Mussolini.

The British prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, is not glossing over the serious aspects of the situation. He reminded the British public Saturday that "severer sanctions" may be necessary.

"Severer sanctions," the prime minister said, will lead "inevitably" to a blockade. Mussolini has said repeatedly that a blockade could be regarded by him as nothing short of war.

Great Britain, however, has no intentions of committing herself to a blockade without first knowing how the United States feels about it. The prime minister reiterated that point.

The United States' attitude, however, is well defined under the neutrality law. It was under this law that President Roosevelt invoked an arms embargo against Italy and Ethiopia in a document which bluntly referred to the situation in Africa as "war."

Rome was inclined Saturday to sulk because Britain had shown no signs of withdrawing any of her warships from the Mediterranean. Italians felt that Mussolini, in ordering 15,000 troops back from Libya, had made a gesture of peace, because Britain had frowned upon the massing of Italian troops there.

But in London statesmen said there had been no agreement to exchange a withdrawal of battleships for a withdrawal of troops from Libya.

It was further said that Great Britain does not intend to subscribe to any settlement of the trouble in Africa on terms of Mussolini. Vice versa, Mussolini is not inclined to talk peace on any of the terms thus far advanced by the league.

Even Premier Laval of France views the present situation gloomily.

There must be some hope in Rome of peace, however, if the lack of military activity on any grand scale in Africa can be considered a reflector. Both General Emilio de Bono in command on the north and General Graziani, the veteran colonial fighter in command on the south, are campaigning almost leisurely.

The southern army of Italians claimed a penetration of 100 miles into Ethiopia from bases in Somalia—Italian Somaliland.

Harar is the ultimate objective; but the distance there is still great, and the terrain no bed of roses. Besides, the black warriors are intent upon giving battle before Graziani can hope to strike at Harar. There is a considerable concentration at Jigiga.

The Ethiopian warriors now moving there from Harar are well equipped and trained.

A sign of the Italian "civilizing" of which Mussolini again spoke Saturday was the announcement from Rome that 10,000 slaves had been given their freedom in that section of the Tigre (north front) province which the Italian forces occupy.

The Rome communiques also continue to relate of tribal chiefs who are accepting the Italian rule. Addis Ababa thinks these claims of desertions are exaggerations.

The talk among Italian field officers on the Aksum-Aduwa-Adigrat sector continues to indicate that Mussolini's Eritrean army is aiming to crush its way into Ethiopia's heart by striking next at Makale. Positions in the Faras Mai river valley were reported Saturday to have been occupied and extended. The Faras Mai valley opens a way through the rolling country toward Makale.

Perhaps Monday may see an energetic commencement of military movements as a gesture from Africa to celebrants in Italy of the fourteenth anniversary of the beginning of fascism's march on Rome.

ITALIAN MINISTER LEAVES ETHIOPIA

ADDIS ABABA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Italy's minister to Ethiopia, ending 16 days of defiance to Emperor Haile Selassie's order to leave, finally departed by train today, under an armed escort.

Fearing attempts at hostile acts or demonstrations against the envoy, Count Vinci-Gigliucci, Emperor Haile Selassie sent along a large group of soldiers armed with machine guns and rifles.

They will accompany the minister as far as the frontier of French Somaliland.

No diplomats were at the station to bid Vinci-Gigliucci farewell. The emperor had requested them not to see the minister off.

Vinci-Gigliucci was accompanied by his military attache, Major Calderini, and was to be joined en route by two consular agents from Mogalo.

When given his passports more than two weeks ago Vinci-Gigliucci had insisted he would wait on the consular agents. Since that time he has been living almost as a prisoner in the home of Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Haile Selassie, as a private citizen.

He was taken secretly from the residence today and locked in a separate coach attached to the train, waiting outside the capital. The minister was forbidden contact with his friends and all letters and telegrams, even those from Premier Mussolini, were withheld until he was on the train.

Ethiopia's ruler was greatly relieved when the count departed, as he had feared his presence here might lead to an international incident.

row Wilson, who, probably feared that Theodore might "steal the show."

It would surprise Theodore Roosevelt to know that as early as 1935 anybody could be in doubt as to his identity. That's what happens to "fame."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt predicts "an end of the dole by December 1." In New York, six thousand rebelled, went on strike because the government permitted itself to discontinue the services of 900. There may be serious difficulties if the government tries to stop distributing cash.

THERE IS ENCOURAGEMENT in the fact that "regular jobs," not the artificial made-to-order kind, are increasing. Three hundred and fifty thousand men were hired in September, and payrolls for September are $12,000,000 a week above August.

THE WAR still wends its weary way through the high mountains and deep valleys of Ethiopia. Ras Seyoum was said to be leading his tribesmen to retake Aksum, "the holy city," but some reports that two Italian artillery batteries discouraged the retaking idea.

Paris says Mussolini has submitted his "minimum demands for peace." Just what Mussolini wants, and "the least" he would take, are not known.

Mussolini's knowledge that there will be no war, because France would not fight on England's side and England would not fight alone, may add to the size of the "minimum."

BIG CROWD HEARS CLEVELAND DEAR START CAMPAIGN

for free school books, for "free school teachers" and old age pensions and a social service law which will aid indigent and sick mothers, crippled children and the blind. He said when he is elected governor he will have passed a law which will match dollar for dollar the money which will be appropriated by the federal government to pension the aged which will give them $30 every thirty days.

Dr. Claybrook Cottingham, president of Louisiana college, Pineville, presided. In calling the meeting to order, Dr. Cottingham said he was proud to have the privilege of presiding at the meeting which formally launched the campaign of Congressman Dear and other candidates on the "home rule" ticket who are pledged to the "destruction of political tyranny in Louisiana" and "restoration to the people of their political liberties."

He said Louisiana today was facing a crisis more "deplorable than that which they faced during the reconstruction era when the white people of the state under the leadership of the lamented Governor Francis T. Nichols arose in their might and overthrew the carpet baggers and the Republicans and later when they again arose under the leadership of Murphy J. Foster and overthrew the Louisiana state lottery."

Other candidates who spoke were: Congressman John N. Sandlin, candidate for the United States senate; Clement M. Moss, for lieutenant governor; Philo Coco, for attorney general; W. T. Mayo for state treasurer; Wilfred Begnaud, for state auditor; George M. Lester, for commissioner of agriculture and immigration; Francis Williams, for secretary of state; E. H. Fisher, for superintendent of education, and Jules Carville, for registrar of land office.

At one point in Congressman Dear's address he asked his audience "if the people of Louisiana will allow that gang in Baton Rouge to steal the election," and the crowd roared a thunderous "No."

"I will never submit to having henchmen of that gang in Baton Rouge count me out," Dear asserted. "We want peace, but can only have peace by fair elections. The election law of this state which gives all the commissioners and watchers to the party in power is an insult to a free people. We are gaing to have a fair election and the votes are going to be counted."

Congressman Dear asked his hearers to "take a look at our country when freedom was born."

"People came to the shores of America seeking freedom," he asserted. "Louisiana was one of the first colonies to take a stand for free speech and free conscience.

"Liberty was won in the American revolution, and that liberty was crystalized into the constitution of the United States, and a representative form of government was guaranteed to us by that constitution.

"What a paradox we find today. While Louisiana was among the first to declare for freedom, today in Louisiana we find the skeleton hand of tyranny clutching us. There is no longer a representative form of government in our state—it is a shell, a shadow.

"We see members of the legislature appointed by the governor, and we see 26 bills passed in 15 minutes, which the members of the legislature haven't even read. They have robbed us of all our rights of home rule. Officers elected by the people are no longer responsible to the people, but to a clique at Baton Rouge.

"Our city governments are unable to fire policemen or firemen unless they bow to the overlords at Baton Rouge; our sheriffs cannot employ their deputies; our school teachers are at the mercy of Baton Rouge, and our legislators are—"

Voices from the crowd shouted "sacks of potatoes."

"Yes, sacks of potatoes," Congressman Dear agreed.

"The home rule ticket," Congressman Dear continued, "will be elected, and will return the government to the people."

"Most any kind of food I ate for the past six years would cause me terrible attacks of indigestion," continued Mrs. Haskins, "Gas would form so badly that I could hardly get my breath and my heart would palpitate until I would become so nervous. It seemed my body was filled with acids and poisons and when those attacks of indigestion come on me my throat would burn dreadfully. For years constipation had added to my already miserable condition and I realized complications were developing all of the time. I suffered untold misery with continual headaches, could not sleep at night and was very much worried over my condition. I had taken all kinds of medicines without relief but when I began to hear so much praise for Gly-Cas on every side I decided to put just one more medicine to the TEST on my case—and I found Gly-Cas wonderful."

"The poisons seemed to be eliminated from my system perfectly by this new remedy," she continued, "My bowels were regulated in a most natural way and I soon began to enjoy foods that were denied me for years. I am never bothered with indigestion, gas nor that acid condition. I never suffer with those headaches or other pains, sleep good and my former energy has been restored. Gly-Cas began to give results in my stubborn case right where the average medicines I had tried left off. Too much praise cannot be given a medicine with the merit of Gly-Cas."

The Gly-Cas man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new and different medicine.

MAN HELD FOR ATTACK ON WIFE SEEKS BAIL

WARREN, Ark., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A Big Springs, Texas, chain fruit store operator, held in jail here on a charge of assault with intent to kill his estranged wife, sought today to arrange a $3,500 bond for his appearance in Bradley county circuit court next February.

The man, booked as Cecil Edward Everett, was bound over by Mahor B. Ball at an examining trial here yesterday. His estranged wife, operator of a cafe here, said he fired at her with a shotgun. She was not injured.

dict. It will be reconvened later to consider any further evidence which might develop.

No clue had been found Saturday as to the identity of the slayer, but robbery was believed to have been the motive, since approximately $100, which Evans is known to have had, was missing when the body was discovered.

Mrs. Evans, at the residence, heard her husband scream. She went to the home of neighbors, and two farmers, Rube Beatly and Matt Brown, rushed to the scene of the slaying.

According to several residents of the neighborhood, four shots were heard, one bullet apparently going wild. A 32-calibre pistol was used, according to Coroner W. S. Rutledge.

Evans is said to have been a quiet, unassuming man who did not have enemies.

He is survived by his wife and three children. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Sheriff Thigpen tonight announced that his department is offering a reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer or killers.

row Wilson, who, probably feared that Theodore might "steal the show."

It would surprise Theodore Roosevelt to know that as early as 1935 anybody could be in doubt as to his identity. That's what happens to "fame."

President Franklin D. Roosevelt predicts "an end of the dole by December 1." In New York, six thousand rebelled, went on strike because the government permitted itself to discontinue the services of 900. There may be serious difficulties if the government tries to stop distributing cash.

THERE IS ENCOURAGEMENT in the fact that "regular jobs," not the artificial made-to-order kind, are increasing. Three hundred and fifty thousand men were hired in September, and payrolls for September are $12,000,000 a week above August.

THE WAR still wends its weary way through the high mountains and deep valleys of Ethiopia. Ras Seyoum was said to be leading his tribesmen to retake Aksum, "the holy city," but some reports that two Italian artillery batteries discouraged the retaking idea.

Paris says Mussolini has submitted his "minimum demands for peace." Just what Mussolini wants, and "the least" he would take, are not known.

Mussolini's knowledge that there will be no war, because France would not fight on England's side and England would not fight alone, may add to the size of the "minimum."

for free school books, for "free school teachers" and old age pensions and a social service law which will aid indigent and sick mothers, crippled children and the blind. He said when he is elected governor he will have passed a law which will match dollar for dollar the money which will be appropriated by the federal government to pension the aged which will give them $30 every thirty days.

Dr. Claybrook Cottingham, president of Louisiana college, Pineville, presided. In calling the meeting to order, Dr. Cottingham said he was proud to have the privilege of presiding at the meeting which formally launched the campaign of Congressman Dear and other candidates on the "home rule" ticket who are pledged to the "destruction of political tyranny in Louisiana" and "restoration to the people of their political liberties."

He said Louisiana today was facing a crisis more "deplorable than that which they faced during the reconstruction era when the white people of the state under the leadership of the lamented Governor Francis T. Nichols arose in their might and overthrew the carpet baggers and the Republicans and later when they again arose under the leadership of Murphy J. Foster and overthrew the Louisiana state lottery."

Other candidates who spoke were: Congressman John N. Sandlin, candidate for the United States senate; Clement M. Moss, for lieutenant governor; Philo Coco, for attorney general; W. T. Mayo for state treasurer; Wilfred Begnaud, for state auditor; George M. Lester, for commissioner of agriculture and immigration; Francis Williams, for secretary of state; E. H. Fisher, for superintendent of education, and Jules Carville, for registrar of land office.

At one point in Congressman Dear's address he asked his audience "if the people of Louisiana will allow that gang in Baton Rouge to steal the election," and the crowd roared a thunderous "No."

"I will never submit to having henchmen of that gang in Baton Rouge count me out," Dear asserted. "We want peace, but can only have peace by fair elections. The election law of this state which gives all the commissioners and watchers to the party in power is an insult to a free people. We are going to have a fair election and the votes are going to be counted."

Congressman Dear asked his hearers to "take a look at our country when freedom was born."

"People came to the shores of America seeking freedom," he asserted. "Louisiana was one of the first colonies to take a stand for free speech and free conscience.

"Liberty was won in the American revolution, and that liberty was crystalized into the constitution of the United States, and a representative form of government was guaranteed to us by that constitution.

"What a paradox we find today. While Louisiana was among the first to declare for freedom, today in Louisiana we find the skeleton hand of tyranny clutching us. There is no longer a representative form of government in our state—it is a shell, a shadow.

"We see members of the legislature appointed by the governor, and we see 26 bills passed in 15 minutes, which the members of the legislature haven't even read. They have robbed us of all our rights of home rule. Officers elected by the people are no longer responsible to the people, but to a clique at Baton Rouge.

"Our city governments are unable to fire policemen or firemen unless they bow to the overlords at Baton Rouge; our sheriffs cannot employ their deputies; our school teachers are at the mercy of Baton Rouge, and our legislators are—"

"Yes, sacks of potatoes," Congressman Dear agreed.

"The home rule ticket," Congressman Dear continued, "will be elected, and will return the government to the people."

WAS UNABLE TO SLEEP NIGHTS, HEAD ACHED SO

Mrs. Haskins Was Hardly Able To Get Her Breath At Times, Attacks Of Indigestion And Nervousness Unbearable; Gly-Cas Again Unfailing.

"Since I have been taking Gly-Cas it is easy to understand why so many people are praising it," said Mrs. Lillie Haskins, 305 North Fifth street, West Monroe, a highly respected lady of this vicinity for the past 22 years, recently in talking with the Gly-Cas man who is daily meeting the local public at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city:

MRS. LILLIE HASKINS

"Most any kind of food I ate for the past six years would cause me terrible attacks of indigestion," continued Mrs. Haskins, "Gas would form so badly that I could hardly get my breath and my heart would palpitate until I would become so nervous. It seemed my body was filled with acids and poisons and when those attacks of indigestion come on me my throat would burn dreadfully. For years constipation had added to my already miserable condition and I realized complications were developing all of the time. I suffered untold misery with continual headaches, could not sleep at night and was very much worried over my condition. I had taken all kinds of medicines without relief but when I began to hear so much praise for Gly-Cas on every side I decided to put just one more medicine to the TEST on my case—and I found Gly-Cas wonderful."

"The poisons seemed to be eliminated from my system perfectly by this new remedy," she continued, "My bowels were regulated in a most natural way and I soon began to enjoy foods that were denied me for years. I am never bothered with indigestion, gas nor that acid condition. I never suffer with those headaches or other pains, sleep good and my former energy has been restored. Gly-Cas began to give results in my stubborn case right where the average medicines I had tried left off. Too much praise cannot be given a medicine with the merit of Gly-Cas."

The Gly-Cas man is daily meeting crowds of local people at the Phoenix Drug Co., 348 DeSiard street, this city, where he is introducing and explaining the action of this new and different medicine.

COACH MALONE RECEIVES NEW DOLLAR BILL

Above you see Miss Mint, Wrigley representative, just after she interrupted the regular football practice of the Northeast Center team. Coach Jim Malone was asked that now famous question, "Do you have an open package of Wrigley's gum?" and to the astonishment of the football team, he presented his package of Double Mint. Coach Malone received one of the crisp new dollar bills after saying, "I always encourage my team to chew Wrigley's gum, as it gives them pep and energy which helps them win the football games."

MAN HELD FOR ATTACK ON WIFE SEEKS BAIL

WARREN, Ark., Oct. 26.—(AP)—A Big Springs, Texas, chain fruit store operator, held in jail here on a charge of assault with intent to kill his estranged wife, sought today to arrange a $3,500 bond for his appearance in Bradley county circuit court next February.

The man, booked as Cecil Edward Everett, was bound over by Mahor B. Ball at an examining trial here yesterday. His estranged wife, operator of a cafe here, said he fired at her with a shotgun. She was not injured.

dict. It will be reconvened later to consider any further evidence which might develop.

No clue had been found Saturday as to the identity of the slayer, but robbery was believed to have been the motive, since approximately $100, which Evans is known to have had, was missing when the body was discovered.

Mrs. Evans, at the residence, heard her husband scream. She went to the home of neighbors, and two farmers, Rube Beatly and Matt Brown, rushed to the scene of the slaying.

According to several residents of the neighborhood, four shots were heard, one bullet apparently going wild. A 32-calibre pistol was used, according to Coroner W. S. Rutledge.

Evans is said to have been a quiet, unassuming man who did not have enemies.

He is survived by his wife and three children. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Sheriff Thigpen tonight announced that his department is offering a reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer or killers.

OIL FIELD MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

Bureau Of Mines Concerned Over Coverage Of New Pools At Rodessa

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A new oil field has arisen on the horizon of the nation's third largest industry to cast a shadow over existing state production regulations.

Reports from the Rodessa pool proven area in Caddo parish, La., caused the bureau of mines today to take official cognizance of what might happen if the field should develop into one of the major crude sources.

In an analysis of the Rodessa oil, the bureau said:

"If the oil-producing portion of the field should be found to extend into adjoining states, a major problem of cooperative regulation pertaining to development, including well spacing, and proration of production may be presented, for this would be the first instance of a single producing reservoir in which three states are involved.

"The Rodessa gas field is at the junction of the boundaries of Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas. Present belief regarding structural conditions has resulted in prospecting into Texas and Arkansas."

Although natural gas has been produced in Rodessa for a number of years, the first oil well was not brought in until last August. Its depth was 6,032 feet, almost twice the depth of its neighbor on the west, the giant east Texas pool, and the production was about 6,000 barrels.

The petroleum administrative board reported today that four wells, with a total initial production of 21,000 barrels daily, were recorded officially in September. The PAB has no reports for October.

The bureau of mines reported the new Rodessa crude as having a paraffin base and a laboratory analysis of a sample of the crude from the R. L. Young No. 1 indicated it contained approximately 32 per cent of gasoline and naptha, 20 per cent of kerosene distillate and 25 per cent of gas oil and heavier distillates suitable for use as fuel oil or for cracking.

The exact breakdown, with specific gravities, was said by the bureau to be as follows:

Light gasoline, 6.1 per cent (.692); total gasoline and naptha, 32.1 per cent (.738); kerosene distillate, 20 per cent (.792); gas oil, 11.9 per cent (.830); nonviscous lubricating distillate, 12.8 per cent (.838-.860); medium lubricating distillate, 2.7 per cent (.860-.865); residuum, 18.9 per cent (.911); distillation loss, 1.6 per cent.

WHEN TRUCK AND TRAIN MEET—BOTH LOSE

SOLUTION OF TWO MORE KILLINGS IS SOUGHT BY POLICE

SEATTLE, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Solution of two other killings was sought by authorities today as they questioned Leo Hall, adamant pugilist, who is charged with murder in the mass slaying of six persons more than 18 months ago.

Through hours of questioning, Hall has refused to talk about a young woman's story which accused him of killing four men and two women during a robbery at Erland's point, March 28, 1934.

Detective Captain Ernest Yoris said the officers, armed with fresh information, were questioning Hall about the death of Robert Elliott, a taxicab driver, shot through the neck and left on a street here July 28, 1933, and the slaying of W. Frank Akin, 43, an investigator studying conditions of the port of Portland, in his apartment at Portland, Ore., November 30, 1933.

Hall was formally charged in the superior court at Port Orchard, near Bremerton, with killing Eugene Chenevert, one of the six persons shot, stabbed and beaten to death at Erland's point.

H. Carter, Jr., here.

David M. Magee, special agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation of the department of justice here, filed the charges after he was informed by Baton Rouge authorities that the man being held admitted he was Arthur Benson. Authorities in Btaon Rouge said they identified Benson from photographs furnished by the Galveston sheriff's office.

'University Of The Air' Aim Of Chinese Teacher

CALCUTTA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A "university of the air" by means of wireless is the aim of I. J. Chang, a young Chinese scholar educated at Harvard, who arrived here to visit the Hindu poet Dr. Rabindranath Tagore.

Chang already has given instruction to hundreds of Chinese students through microphone talks at a Shanghai wireless station. Chinese who own receiving sets study at home. The poorer students follow the lectures through sets installed in public halls.

Questions on talks are encouraged and to broaden the scope of this modern "university," Chang hopes to be able to broadcast records on educational, philosophical and scientific subjects made by experts in all parts of the world.

announcement came from Mr. Abernathy's sick room at his home, 206 Marie Place, where he has been ill for several days.

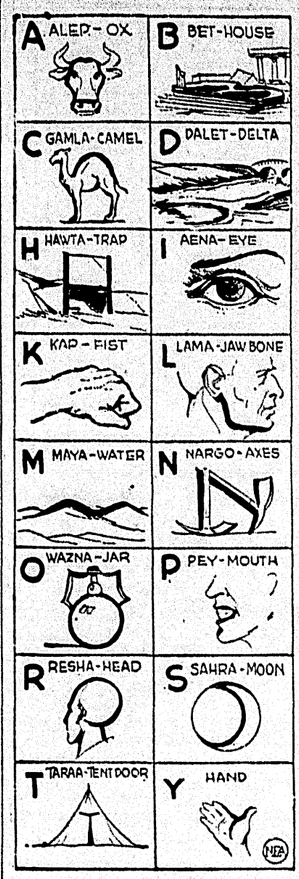
"I will make the race strictly on a platform in support of the policies of the state administration," he said. "Later I will give out a statement of the policies and paltform on which I will conduct the campaign."

Mr. Abernathy has been prominent in the civic and business life of Monroe since 1924, when he came to this city to become associated with the Standard Office Supply company. He is a native of Tennessee, where he was born in 1893. He obtained his early education in Pulaski, Tenn., and is a graduate of the University of Tennessee. Following his graduation he moved to Alabama, where he entered the wholesale grocery business. Later he came to Louisiana, where he was engaged in the management of a plantation in Concordia parish. There he met Miss Virginia Wilds, daughter of R. S. Wilds, the present state representative of Concordia parish, whom he married in 1917.

During the World war he served in the mechanical and radio school at Camp Martin, New Orleans, where he was stationed at the time of the armistice.

He is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe and is at present chairman of the Ouachita chapter of the Red Cross. He is a past district governor of the Lions club, and is a member of the American Legion and of the board of supervisors of the state university. Mr. Abernathy is now and has been throughout the years of the late Senator Huey P. Long's administration a supporter of his policies.

ALPHABET ORIGIN



In ordinary objects, sketched above, which ancients of the Near East observed about them, the English alphabet had its origin, according to the solution of the centuries-old mystery announced by Dr. George Lamsa, internationally famed ethnologist. Aramaic, an Euphrates valley language used about 900 B. C., a later form of which Jesus himself used, provided the key. The first alphabet, claims Dr. Lamsa, contained only consonants; vowel sounds were added centuries later.

EVANGELIST WANTS RATTLESNAKE TO HELP TEST FAITH

And if he can find in the Bible where his faith can be strong enough to allow the snake to bite him and he remain unharmed, he expects to do just that, he said last night.

If Rev. Hitchcock doesn't receive a rattlesnake by Wednesday then he will attempt to borrow one from the zoo, he said.

Asked if he thought he could find a Bible chapter relating to such faith, Rev. Hitchcock said he could.

The same evangelist advertised for a rattlesnake during a recent revival at Crossett, Ark., but was unable to secure a snake.

Rev. Hitchcock, who is from Fort Worth, Texas, said he was formerly associated with Rev. J. Frank Norris, Texas crusader, and that before that time he was a practicing attorney and a former deputy prosecuting attorney at Dallas, Texas.

The revival, which has been in progress for a week will continue indefinitely, he said. Services are held each night at 7:30 o'clock.

Detective Captain Ernest Yoris said the officers, armed with fresh information, were questioning Hall about the death of Robert Elliott, a taxicab driver, shot through the neck and left on a street here July 28, 1933, and the slaying of W. Frank Akin, 43, an investigator studying conditions of the port of Portland, in his apartment at Portland, Ore., November 30, 1933.

Hall was formally charged in the superior court at Port Orchard, near Bremerton, with killing Eugene Chenevert, one of the six persons shot, stabbed and beaten to death at Erland's point.

WARRANT IS ISSUED FOR TEXAN ON BRIBE COUNT

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A warrant charging a man booked as Arthur Benson, who is being held in Baton Rouge, with being a fugitive from justice from Houston, Texas, where he is wanted on charges of conspiracy to influence and bribe federal jurors who heard his trial on liquor charges in Galveston, Texas, was issued today by United States Commissioner R. H. Carter, Jr., here.

David M. Magee, special agent in charge of the federal bureau of investigation of the department of justice here, filed the charges after he was informed by Baton Rouge authorities that the man being held admitted he was Arthur Benson. Authorities in Btaon Rouge said they identified Benson from photographs furnished by the Galveston sheriff's office.

'University Of The Air' Aim Of Chinese Teacher

CALCUTTA, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A "university of the air" by means of wireless is the aim of I. J. Chang, a young Chinese scholar educated at Harvard, who arrived here to visit the Hindu poet Dr. Rabindranath Tagore.

Chang already has given instruction to hundreds of Chinese students through microphone talks at a Shanghai wireless station. Chinese who own receiving sets study at home. The poorer students follow the lectures through sets installed in public halls.

Questions on talks are encouraged and to broaden the scope of this modern "university," Chang hopes to be able to broadcast records on educational, philosophical and scientific subjects made by experts in all parts of the world.

announcement came from Mr. Abernathy's sick room at his home, 206 Marie Place, where he has been ill for several days.

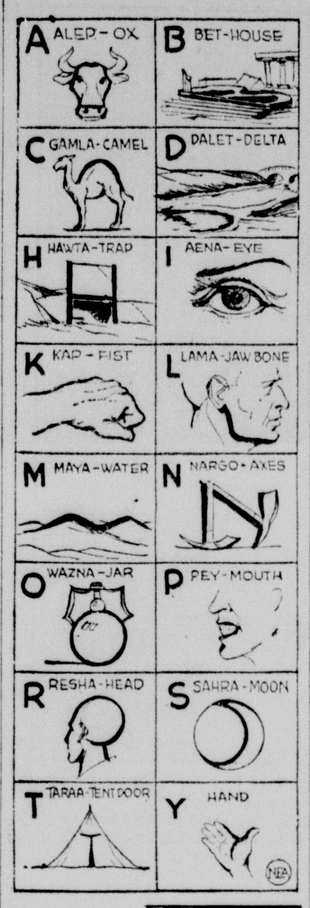
"I will make the race strictly on a platform in support of the policies of the state administration," he said. "Later I will give out a statement of the policies and paltform on which I will conduct the campaign."

Mr. Abernathy has been prominent in the civic and business life of Monroe since 1924, when he came to this city to become associated with the Standard Office Supply company. He is a native of Tennessee, where he was born in 1893. He obtained his early education in Pulaski, Tenn., and is a graduate of the University of Tennessee. Following his graduation he moved to Alabama, where he entered the wholesale grocery business. Later he came to Louisiana, where he was engaged in the management of a plantation in Concordia parish. There he met Miss Virginia Wilds, daughter of R. S. Wilds, the present state representative of Concordia parish, whom he married in 1917.

During the World war he served in the mechanical and radio school at Camp Martin, New Orleans, where he was stationed at the time of the armistice.

He is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce of Monroe and West Monroe and is at present chairman of the Ouachita chapter of the Red Cross. He is a past district governor of the Lions club, and is a member of the American Legion and of the board of supervisors of the state university. Mr. Abernathy is now and has been throughout the years of the late Senator Huey P. Long's administration a supporter of his policies.

ALPHABET ORIGIN



In ordinary objects, sketched above, which ancients of the Near East observed about them, the English alphabet had its origin, according to the solution of the centuries-old mystery announced by Dr. George Lamsa, internationally famed ethnologist. Aramaic, an Euphrates valley language used about 900 B. C., a later form of which Jesus himself used, provided the key. The first alphabet, claims Dr. Lamsa, contained only consonants; vowel sounds were added centuries later.

EVANGELIST WANTS RATTLESNAKE TO HELP TEST FAITH

And if he can find in the Bible where his faith can be strong enough to allow the snake to bite him and he remain unharmed, he expects to do just that, he said last night.

If Rev. Hitchcock doesn't receive a rattlesnake by Wednesday then he will attempt to borrow one from the zoo, he said.

Asked if he thought he could find a Bible chapter relating to such faith, Rev. Hitchcock said he could.

The same evangelist advertised for a rattlesnake during a recent revival at Crossett, Ark., but was unable to secure a snake.

Rev. Hitchcock, who is from Fort Worth, Texas, said he was formerly associated with Rev. J. Frank Norris, Texas crusader, and that before that time he was a practicing attorney and a former deputy prosecuting attorney at Dallas, Texas.

The revival, which has been in progress for a week will continue indefinitely, he said. Services are held each night at 7:30 o'clock.

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Bunion White, 54, negro, who was shot in a gun fight in which Deputy Sheriff Blanchard White was seriously wounded, died in a local hospital here last night.

The negro's whereabouts had been kept secret after the shooting which occurred at a negro church meeting near Ringgold. Mob action against the negro was feared by authorities and he was spirited here, 40 miles from Ringgold, when a mob began forming there.

SCHULTZ MURDER SUSPECT IS DEAD

Demand of the prosecutor's staff of detectives, announced Silverman would be held in bail as a material witness. Information already obtained from the bondsmen, he said, indicates Dutch was "none too affluent" when he met his end.

The name of Charles (Lucky) Luciano, powerful Manhattan racketeer sought for questioning, cropped up again in the investigation when it developed that he and three of his lieutenants had visited this city on the eve of the killing. Luciano, reputedly one of the big six that came into power in the racket world with Schultz' demise, is known in the underworld as "The Boss." Schultz, in his delirious rantings before death, told police "The Boss himself" had shot him.

Other developments of the day included:

The statement of Deputy Chief John Haller that "we will find women playing larger parts in this drama than we guess now, and I think we'll find another Mrs. Schultz in the picture soon."

The news that John J. Gaul, a passerby, was slightly wounded by one of the bullets that flew as Schultz' assassins fled the tavern Wednesday night.

Prosecutor William Wachenfeld's demand on Sheriff Louis Batchellor for a complete explanation of how Bernard Rosenkrantz, slain Schultz henchman, possessed a deputy sheriff's badge and identification card.

State Alcoholic Beverage Commissioner D. Frederick Burnett's order for an investigation of Schultz' boast that he owned the tavern where he was fatally wounded.

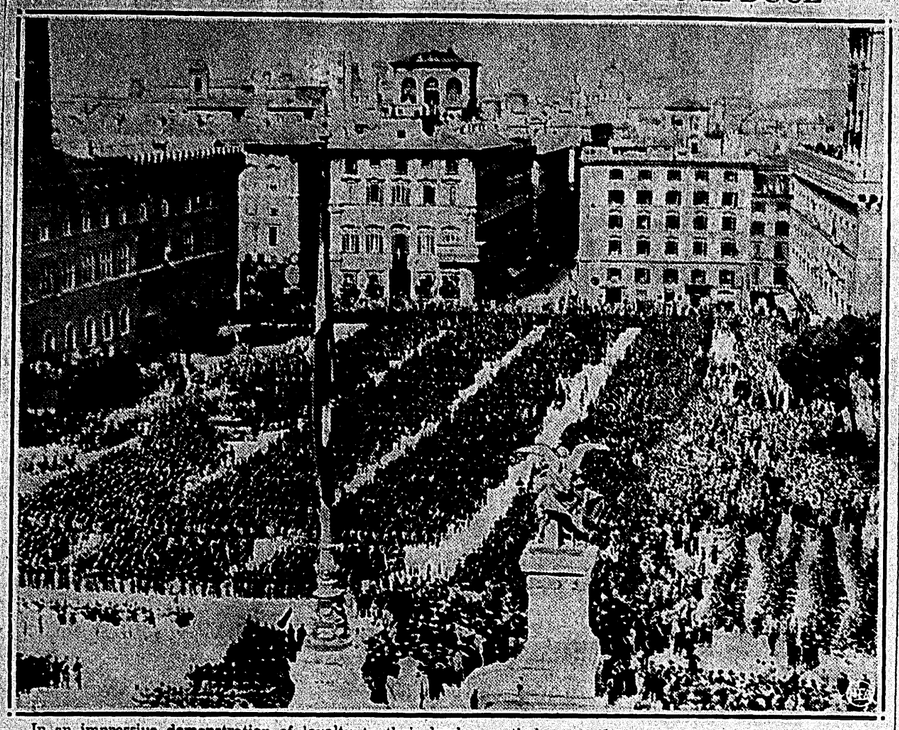
30,000 YOUNG FASCISTS RENEW VOWS TO IL DUCE



In an impressive demonstration of loyalty to their leader, as their comrades waged Italy's war of conquest in East Africa, 30,000 members of the Fasci Giovanili (Young Fascist Group) massed in Rome's Piazza Venegia, as shown above, to celebrate the fifth anniversary of their founding. "You are responsible for 1,200,000 youths," Mussolini told them. "Make of them a tempered dagger. At the opportune moment, someone will feel it."

Political Activities

ADMINISTRATION IS SUPPORTING NOE

In order to set at rest current rumors to the effect that the candidacy of James A. Noe for reelection to the office of state senator from Ouachita and Jackson parishes would not be supported by the state administration, Fred R. Mitchell of West Monroe on Saturday made public a telegram received from Governor O. K. Allen. In his telegram Governor Allen stated that Noe would be supported by the "Huey P. Long-O. K. Allen straight ticket." The "straight ticket" is the one headed by Judge Leche for governor and Allen Ellender for U. S. senator.

"Fred R. Mitchell, West Monroe, La.: The Huey P. Long-O. K. Allen straight ticket has endorsed and is supporting Lieut-Gov. James A. Noe, Monroe, La., for state senator of the 29th senatorial district composed of the parishes of Jackson and Ouachita."

KRAMER ANNOUNCES FOR CITY COMMISSIONER

Dewey Kramer, candidate for commisisoner of finance and public utilities of the city of Monroe, was born in Baldwin, La., July 6, 1898, and received his early education in the schools of that town. Later he was graduated from St. Paul's college, Covington, La., in June, 1916.

He specialized in accounting during his college course and secured employment in the accounting department of the Sterling Sugar and Refining company at Franklin. His next position was with the Southern Pacific railroad at Baldwin, La., where he served as cashier.

In 1920, he removed to Monroe and became associated with the Grapico Bottling company as sales manager. He is at present president of the Louisiana Candy and Cigar Company, Inc.

Mr. Kramer is a member of the L. B. Faulk post, American Legion.

J. M. BREARD ANNOUNCES FOR REELECTION

John M. Breard, president of the parish police jury and member of that body from ward ten, yesterday made formal announcement of his candidacy for reelection to the office.

Mr. Breard has served as a member of the police jury for a longer period than any other person elected to the position. He will complete 24 successive years in the parish governing body at the expiration of his present term next June. He has been 12 years the presiding officer of the police jury.

He was first elected from ward 10 in 1912, and during his term of his office has been especially active in the promotion of good roads in the parish. He was one of the pioneers in the effort to obtain a new traffic bridge across the Ouachita river at Monroe, and has been largely responsible for the promotion of state projects in Ouachita parish.

He served six years as a member of the parish school board from 1916 to 1922, and has been active in civic affairs in Monroe. He is a past president of the Kiwanis club, Country club, Lotus and Elks.

Mr. Breard is a descendant of one of the old families of Ouachita parish, his great grandfather being Lieut. Louis Alexander Breard, French naval officer who arrived in this region shortly after the coming of Don Juan Filhiol. He was born in Monroe in 1888 and is the son of the late J. M. Breard, Sr. He was educated at St. Hyacinth's academy and at Louisiana Tech. He also graduated from the Alamo business college in San Antonio, Texas. In 1911 he entered the service of the Central Savings Bank and Trust company, and in 1924 was appointed cashier of that institution, later being named vice president, a position he has held ever since.

MEET OF ORCHARD LEADERS WILL BE HELD ON TUESDAY

A meeting of orchard leaders of home demonstration clubs of Ouachita parish will be held Tuesday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, at the North Louisiana Experiment station at Calhoun.

During the afternoon the leaders will visit the orchard of Arthur Lowery, of the Liberty community, east of Calhoun, the roof garden of the Hotel Virginia, and the home of Mrs. T. C. Rowland, of the Colony community, east of Monroe on the Rayville road.

Miss Bertha Lee Ferguson, of Baton Rouge, state garden specialist, will attend the meeting of the leaders and accompany them on their afternoon jaunt.

In the morning the leaders will present census reports of orchards in their communities, and a demonstration orchard will be designated for each community.

The Lowery orchard will be studied as an example of the proper method of preparing fruit trees for the winter.

Two leaders and an alternate leader from each club are to participate in the day's activities. Each person is requested to bring her own lunch.

CHARLES W. BRYAN IS FACING RECALL AS LINCOLN MAYOR

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Charles W. Bryan, three times governor of Nebraska and brother of William Jennings Bryan, the commoner, faced the possibility of recall as mayor of Lincoln today.

Petitions seeking his recall, allegedly bearing 5,850 qualified signatures, four more than the number necessary for a recall election, were filed with the city clerk yesterday.

Bryan said the action did not surprise him, as he had heard reports for the last few months that recall petitions were being circulated.

Friends of Bryan said the efforts to recall the mayor were pressed by persons whom the city council had refused licenses to sell liquor.

J. B. Strackbein, a grocer, who with T. F. Doncison, an attorney, filed the petitions, said a club of which he was an officer was denied a beer and liquor license.

Bryan said: "Those who have been interested in getting the signatures have obtained, after working several months, only the bare number required, which indicates they have not and cannot obtain a petition containing enough names of legal voters to call an election."

City hall attaches said that 20 per cent of the signatures on petitions usually were disqualified when checked by the city clerk. The clerk began his check of the petitions against Bryan today.

Bryan characterized the petitions "A protest against the policy of law enforcement and reasonable regulation of beer and liquor."

He specialized in accounting during his college course and secured employment in the accounting department of the Sterling Sugar and Refining company at Franklin. His next position was with the Southern Pacific railroad at Baldwin, La., where he served as cashier.

In 1920, he removed to Monroe and became associated with the Grapico Bottling company as sales manager. He is at present president of the Louisiana Candy and Cigar Company, Inc.

J. M. BREARD ANNOUNCES FOR REELECTION

John M. Breard, president of the parish police jury and member of that body from ward ten, yesterday made formal announcement of his candidacy for reelection to the office.

Mr. Breard has served as a member of the police jury for a longer period than any other person elected to the position. He will complete 24 successive years in the parish governing body at the expiration of his present term next June. He has been 12 years the presiding officer of the police jury.

He was first elected from ward 10 in 1912, and during his term of his office has been especially active in the promotion of good roads in the parish. He was one of the pioneers in the effort to obtain a new traffic bridge across the Ouachita river at Monroe, and has been largely responsible for the promotion of state projects in Ouachita parish.

Mr. Breard is a descendant of one of the old families of Ouachita parish, his great grandfather being Lieut. Louis Alexander Breard, French naval officer who arrived in this region shortly after the coming of Don Juan Filhiol. He was born in Monroe in 1888 and is the son of the late J. M. Breard, Sr. He was educated at St. Hyacinth's academy and at Louisiana Tech. He also graduated from the Alamo business college in San Antonio, Texas. In 1911 he entered the service of the Central Savings Bank and Trust company, and in 1924 was appointed cashier of that institution, later being named vice president, a position he has held ever since.

MEET OF ORCHARD LEADERS WILL BE HELD ON TUESDAY

A meeting of orchard leaders of home demonstration clubs of Ouachita parish will be held Tuesday morning, beginning at 10 o'clock, at the North Louisiana Experiment station at Calhoun.

During the afternoon the leaders will visit the orchard of Arthur Lowery, of the Liberty community, east of Calhoun, the roof garden of the Hotel Virginia, and the home of Mrs. T. C. Rowland, of the Colony community, east of Monroe on the Rayville road.

Miss Bertha Lee Ferguson, of Baton Rouge, state garden specialist, will attend the meeting of the leaders and accompany them on their afternoon jaunt.

In the morning the leaders will present census reports of orchards in their communities, and a demonstration orchard will be designated for each community.

The Lowery orchard will be studied as an example of the proper method of preparing fruit trees for the winter.

Two leaders and an alternate leader from each club are to participate in the day's activities. Each person is requested to bring her own lunch.

CHARLES W. BRYAN IS FACING RECALL AS LINCOLN MAYOR

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Charles W. Bryan, three times governor of Nebraska and brother of William Jennings Bryan, the commoner, faced the possibility of recall as mayor of Lincoln today.

Petitions seeking his recall, allegedly bearing 5,850 qualified signatures, four more than the number necessary for a recall election, were filed with the city clerk yesterday.

Bryan said the action did not surprise him, as he had heard reports for the last few months that recall petitions were being circulated.

Friends of Bryan said the efforts to recall the mayor were pressed by persons whom the city council had refused licenses to sell liquor.

J. B. Strackbein, a grocer, who with T. F. Donelson, an attorney, filed the petitions, said a club of which he was an officer was denied a beer and liquor license.

Bryan said: "Those who have been interested in getting the signatures have obtained, after working several months, only the bare number required, which indicates they have not and cannot obtain a petition containing enough names of legal voters to call an election."

City hall attaches said that 20 per cent of the signatures on petitions usually were disqualified when checked by the city clerk. The clerk began his check of the petitions against Bryan today.

Bryan characterized the petitions "A protest against the policy of law enforcement and reasonable regulation of beer and liquor."

LONG PASS GIVES L. S. U. 7 TO 2 WIN OVER VANDY

Pass From Mickal To Barrett Gives Old Lou Only Touchdown

By Tom Siler
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 26.—Louisiana State eliminated a fighting Vanderbilt university eleven from the Southeastern conference football race today, scoring the game's lone touchdown in the third period to win, 7 to 2.

Playing their first conference engagement of the season, the Bayou Tigers cut loose with a dazzling air raid early in the third period that netted a touchdown on three plays and gave L. S. U. a margin the Commodores could not overcome.

Mickal place kicked the extra point.

Vanderbilt took a meager lead in the second period on a safety when Fullback Crass, sub for Reed, fumbled a pass from the center on the six-yard line and fell on the ball behind the goal line.

The Commodores had several good scoring chances but in every instance the mighty line of the Tigers rose to supreme heights and repulsed their efforts.

Vandy showed its most effective offensive of the season late in the second period when Dixon, Agee and Geny smashed the Tiger line, carrying the ball straight down the field from their own 12-yard marker to L. S. U.'s 6-yard line. After three consecutive passes had gained only four yards, the halftime whistle cut short Vandy's final effort to carry the ball across.

Louisiana State played defensive ball throughout the first half, using only straight line plays and very few passes, but in the third and fourth periods the Tigers were a constant threat, with Rohm and Morton, sophomore reserve backs, showing dazzling speed and elusiveness.

Vanderbilt was presented another good scoring chance in the third period when Plasman recovered Morton's fumble on Louisiana's 33-yard line. Dixon threw a perfect 11-yard pass to Geny and a subsequent 15-yard penalty for roughness placed the ball on L. S. U.'s 11-yard line.

Dixon threw three passes to Geny, all of which were incomplete, and then one to Simpkins that netted only four yards and the ball went over on downs to the visitors on their own 7-yard line.

Both teams tried desperately to add a touchdown in the final period, long and short passes filling the air, but neither could muster a sustained attack.

It was Vanderbilt's first conference defeat and the first time a southern team had beaten the Commodores since Ray Morrison became coach.

NEVILLE MEETS NATCHEZ FRIDAY

Tigers To Play Mississippi Eleven At Brown Field This Week

The Tigers of Neville high school and the Blue Boys of Natchez, Miss., resume gridiron relations here Friday night in a game scheduled to be played at Brown stadium at 8 o'clock. The Blue Boys have only a fair team but may be able to provide Coach Percy Brown's Bengals with some good opposition.

This will be the second football game to be played by the two combinations. Coach Brown had a game scheduled with the Blue Boys for last season but it was cancelled. The game was forfeited to Neville when the Natchez officials found they had two games scheduled on that date and chose to cancel the engagement with Neville.

The Bengals came out of the Haynesville battle without mishap in the way of injuries and should be able to present their full strength to the Blue Boys.

After Natchez, the locals meet Vicksburg, Miss., on the local gridiron and then they face another really hard test in the Lafayette eleven. After Lafayette the Tigers end their season at Bastrop against the Bastrop Rams in their annual Turkey Day squabble.

JONESBORO BEATS MINDEN TEAM, 6-2

JONESBORO, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Playing its best brand of football this season, Jonesboro turned back the hard-charging Minden eleven on the local gridiron by a score of 6 to 2.

The visitors threatened in every quarter, but the Tiger line held each time. Minden scored first early in the game when Lawrence, Tiger halfback, stepped out of bounds in the end zone, while attempting to punt his team out of danger, on the one-yard line.

Late in the second quarter Fowler, Tiger fullback, intercepted a long pass and raced 55 yards for a touchdown. Attempt for extra point failed.

Minden staged a desperate rally in the last quarter, flipping passes in every direction, when Brumfield, Tiger quarterback, intercepted a long pass and raced to mid-field before he was downed on the 50 yard line. Here the game ended with Jonesboro in possession of the ball.

VILLANOVA AND PURDUE VICTIMS IN CLOSE GAMES

However, Other Favorites Come Through Without Reversals

By Herbert W. Barker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A dizzy whirligig for the first month, the football campaign struck a more sedate gait yesterday but not in time to save Purdue's Boilermakers and Harry Stuhldreher's Villanova Wildcats from suffering their first defeats in surprising upsets.

While such favorites as Minnesota, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Princeton, North Carolina, Rice and California were marching on, Purdue, regarded as a top-flight contender for the Big Ten crown, was thrown for a dead loss by Carnegie Tech's fighting Tartans, 7-0. Villanova, a powerful scoring array, wound up on the short end of a 19-15 score as Gus Dorais' Detroit Titans pushed over a fourth-period touchdown.

Otherwise there were few surprises unless Stanford's 6-0 conquest of Washington on two first-period field goals by Monk Moscrip could be classed in that category.

Army, one of the east's unbeaten arrays, outplayed Yale's game Bulldogs before 45,000 at New Haven to earn a 14-8 decision. Navy, appearing before the day's biggest crowd—65,000—found itself overmatched by Notre Dame's Ramblers, 14-0.

Minnesota's Gophers emerged from a dog-fight with Northwestern's improving Wildcats, victor by a 21-13 score, while Ohio State, shocked by an early Indiana touchdown, came back to trounce the Hoosiers, 28-6. Dick Crayne and Ozzie Simmons paced Iowa's sensational Hawkeyes to a well-earned victory over Illinois, 19-0, and took rank with Minnesota and Ohio State as the principal Big Ten championship contenders. Michigan, beating Columbia, 19-7, made up partly for Purdue's defeat.

Marquette, one of the strongest of the mid-western independents, handed Mississippi its first defeat of the season, 33-6.

In the Southeastern conference, Louisiana State nosed out Vanderbilt, 7-2, while Alabama took advantage of the breaks to crush Georgia, 17-7—the Bulldogs' initial reverse. North Carolina's Tar Heels, meanwhile, maintained their undefeated status with a convincing 19-0 verdict over Georgia Tech, upset conquerors of Duke a week ago.

Joining Army in the eastern top-flight were Holy Cross, Princeton, Dartmouth, New York university, Pittsburgh, Temple and Syracuse. Holy Cross surprised the experts by turning back Colgate, 3-0. Princeton trampled Cornell, 54-0, and Temple won handily from West Virginia, 19-6. New York university, undefeated, had to score in the fourth period to turn back Georgetown, 7-6, and Pittsburgh had its troubles with Penn State before winning, 9-0. Syracuse turned back Brown, 19-0, and Dartmouth won over Harvard, 14-6. Manhattan, which tied Holy Cross a week ago, was soundly beaten by North Carolina State, 20-0.

While Stanford was checking Washington, California and the University of California at Los Angeles continued their all-victorious progress. U. C. L. A. walloped Oregon, 33-6, and California accounted for Southern California, 21-7. Denver, with five Rocky Mountain conference victories to its credit, invaded Salt Lake City and took a 39-14 beating from Utah for its pains.

Rice, coming back from its defeat by Southern Methodist, upset Texas, 28-19. Texas Christian gave further evidence of tremendous power by a 27-7 triumph over Centenary at Shreveport.

In the Big Six, Nebraska stopped Oklahoma, 19-0; Kansas surprised Kansas State, 9-2, and Missouri played a 6-6 draw with Iowa State.

WISNER BULLDOGS WHIP DELHI, 14-0

WISNER, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The Wisner Bulldogs continued their march toward Class "B" honors here Friday afternoon by defeating the powerful Delhi eleven, 14 to 0.

The visitors were completely outclassed by the Bulldogs in practically every play of the game. Oglesby, Wisner's quarterback, was outstanding for the locals, making several nice runs. Atkinson and Brown played a jam-up game in the Wisner line while Copes and Johnson were stars for the visitors.

Next Friday the Jena high school eleven will come here for a game with the Bulldogs.

TAR HEELS WIN FROM TECH, 19-0

North Carolina Displays Powerful Offensive To Trim Engineers

KENAN STADIUM, CHAPEL HILL, N. C., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Displaying a powerful and varied offensive, with an aerial game that kept the Yellow Jackets baffled, the University of North Carolina's Tar Heels turned back Georgia Tech here this afternoon, 19 to 0, to keep their standing as one of the nation's unbeaten football teams.

Don Jackson's stellar passing and punting paved the way for North Carolina's victory and kept a homecoming crowd of 20,000 thrilled throughout the game.

Andy Bershak, who played a stellar game, strutted 13 to score the Tar Hells' first touchdown. Babe Daniel made the point from placement.

Jackson ran a punt back 18 yards in the third period to lay the ground work for the second score. Hutchins in three line smashes got 20 yards, to Tech's 20. Jackson passed to Bill Moore for 19 and the touchdown. Daniel missed his placement try.

The final score came after the Heels had forced the Jackets deep into their own territory. Crowell Little, sub back, ran 17 and then one over right tackle to score. Little hit the line trying for extra point but failed.

GEORGIA, VANDY TEAMS DEFEATED

(By Associated Press)

Georgia and Vanderbilt bit the dust Saturday to join the ranks of the defeated football clans in the Southeastern conference, leaving only Louisiana State and Mississippi with clean slates in loop competition.

No conference team could boast an undefeated record for all games.

Alabama's Crimson Tide, hitting the comeback trail with a rush, took the Georgia Bulldogs in tow, 17 to 7, with a late attack. Capitalizing on breaks, the Tide scored its points in the second half at Athens before a crowd of 25,000.

Taking to the air, L. S. U. struck in the third period to topple Vanderbilt, 7 to 2, before 10,000 spectators.

Although Mississippi remained undefeated in Southeastern conference warfare, the Delta State eleven took a 33 to 7 trimming from Marquette in an intersectional contest at Milwaukee.

A crowd of 16,000 saw North Carolina whip Georgia Tech at Chapel Hill by a score of 19 to 0 in an interconference match. Alabama Polytechnic institute yesterday licked Duke, 7 to 0, in another Southeastern-Southern conference go.

Tulane found an easy victory at New Orleans, defeating Sewanee 33 to 0, while Tennessee coasted to victory over Centre, 25 to 14 at Knoxville.

Unable to break its losing streak, Florida dropped a 20 to 6 decision to Maryland in an inter conference game before a homecoming crowd at Gainesville.

Saturday was an off day for Kentucky's Wildcats, batting .500 in the conference with one victory and one defeat.

CHICAGO DEFEATS WISCONSIN, 13-7

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Chicago scored its first victory of the Big Ten championship season today, 13 to 7, over Wisconsin in a thrilling battle before 20,000 spectators at Stagg field. Jay Berwanger scored both Maroon touchdowns, with John Wilson counting for the Fighting Badgers.

YALE TUMBLED BY ARMY ELEVEN

Cadets Score Two Touchdowns In First Half To Win, 14 To 8

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Yale, handicapped by its own kicking mistakes at the outset and never fully able to get out of the hole, was tumbled from the unbeaten ranks today by Army. The Cadets from West Point emerged with a 14 to 8 triumph, their fourth in a row over the Elis and fourth successive victory of the 1935 campaign.

Before a crowd of 45,000, the soldiers capitalized two first-half scoring opportunities with an attack featuring the brilliant Charles (Monk) Meyer, West Point's newest ball-carrying sensation.

Meyer scored the first touchdown on a six-yard end run in the first period and passed to Russ Janzan, substituting for Captain Bill Shuler, for the second tally in the closing moments of the second period. The Cadet ace, playing the entire game despite a head injury that nearly knocked him out in the final quarter, did nearly all the passing as well as most of the kicking and running.

Besides taking the play away from Yale's brilliant passing combination of Jerry Roscoe and Larry Kelley, which accounted for Yale's touchdown in the second period, Meyer was a standout on the defense.

Pass From Mickal To Barrett Gives Old Lou Only Touchdown

By Tom Siler
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 26.—Louisiana State eliminated a fighting Vanderbilt university eleven from the Southeastern conference football race today, scoring the game's lone touchdown in the third period to win, 7 to 2.

Playing their first conference engagement of the season, the Bayou Tigers cut loose with a dazzling air raid early in the third period that netted a touchdown on three plays and gave L. S. U. a margin the Commodores could not overcome.

Mickal place kicked the extra point.

Vanderbilt took a meager lead in the second period on a safety when Fullback Crass, sub for Reed, fumbled a pass from the center on the six-yard line and fell on the ball behind the goal line.

The Commodores had several good scoring chances but in every instance the mighty line of the Tigers rose to supreme heights and repulsed their efforts.

Vandy showed its most effective offensive of the season late in the second period when Dixon, Agee and Geny smashed the Tiger line, carrying the ball straight down the field from their own 12-yard marker to L. S. U.'s 6-yard line. After three consecutive passes had gained only four yards, the halftime whistle cut short Vandy's final effort to carry the ball across.

Louisiana State played defensive ball throughout the first half, using only straight line plays and very few passes, but in the third and fourth periods the Tigers were a constant threat, with Rohm and Morton, sophomore reserve backs, showing dazzling speed and elusiveness.

Vanderbilt was presented another good scoring chance in the third period when Plasman recovered Morton's fumble on Louisiana's 33-yard line. Dixon threw a perfect 11-yard pass to Geny and a subsequent 15-yard penalty for roughness placed the ball on L. S. U.'s 11-yard line.

Dixon threw three passes to Geny, all of which were incomplete, and then one to Simpkins that netted only four yards and the ball went over on downs to the visitors on their own 7-yard line.

Both teams tried desperately to add a touchdown in the final period, long and short passes filling the air, but neither could muster a sustained attack.

It was Vanderbilt's first conference defeat and the first time a southern team had beaten the Commodores since Ray Morrison became coach.

NEVILLE MEETS NATCHEZ FRIDAY

Tigers To Play Mississippi Eleven At Brown Field This Week

The Tigers of Neville high school and the Blue Boys of Natchez, Miss., resume gridiron relations here Friday night in a game scheduled to be played at Brown stadium at 8 o'clock. The Blue Boys have only a fair team but may be able to provide Coach Percy Brown's Bengals with some good opposition.

This will be the second football game to be played by the two combinations. Coach Brown had a game scheduled with the Blue Boys for last season but it was cancelled. The game was forfeited to Neville when the Natchez officials found they had two games scheduled on that date and chose to cancel the engagement with Neville.

The Bengals came out of the Haynesville battle without mishap in the way of injuries and should be able to present their full strength to the Blue Boys.

After Natchez, the locals meet Vicksburg, Miss., on the local gridiron and then they face another really hard test in the Lafayette eleven. After Lafayette the Tigers end their season at Bastrop against the Bastrop Rams in their annual Turkey Day squabble.

JONESBORO BEATS MINDEN TEAM, 6-2

JONESBORO, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Playing its best brand of football this season, Jonesboro turned back the hard-charging Minden eleven on the local gridiron by a score of 6 to 2.

The visitors threatened in every quarter, but the Tiger line held each time. Minden scored first early in the game when Lawrence, Tiger halfback, stepped out of bounds in the end zone, while attempting to punt his team out of danger, on the one-yard line.

Late in the second quarter Fowler, Tiger fullback, intercepted a long pass and raced 55 yards for a touchdown. Attempt for extra point failed.

Minden staged a desperate rally in the last quarter, flipping passes in every direction, when Brumfield, Tiger quarterback, intercepted a long pass and raced to mid-field before he was downed on the 50 yard line. Here the game ended with Jonesboro in possession of the ball.

VILLANOVA AND PURDUE VICTIMS IN CLOSE GAMES

However, Other Favorites Come Through Without Reversals

By Herbert W. Barker
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A dizzy whirligig for the first month, the football campaign struck a more sedate gait yesterday but not in time to save Purdue's Boilermakers and Harry Stuhldreher's Villanova Wildcats from suffering their first defeats in surprising upsets.

While such favorites as Minnesota, Ohio State, Notre Dame, Princeton, North Carolina, Rice and California were marching on, Purdue, regarded as a top-flight contender for the Big Ten crown, was thrown for a dead loss by Carnegie Tech's fighting Tartans, 7-0. Villanova, a powerful scoring array, wound up on the short end of a 19-15 score as Gus Dorais' Detroit Titans pushed over a fourth-period touchdown.

Otherwise there were few surprises unless Stanford's 6-0 conquest of Washington on two first-period field goals by Monk Moscrip could be classed in that category.

Army, one of the east's unbeaten arrays, outplayed Yale's game Bulldogs before 45,000 at New Haven to earn a 14-8 decision. Navy, appearing before the day's biggest crowd—65,000—found itself overmatched by Notre Dame's Ramblers, 14-0.

Minnesota's Gophers emerged from a dog-fight with Northwestern's improving Wildcats, victor by a 21-13 score, while Ohio State, shocked by an early Indiana touchdown, came back to trounce the Hoosiers, 28-6. Dick Crayne and Ozzie Simmons paced Iowa's sensational Hawkeyes to a well-earned victory over Illinois, 19-0, and took rank with Minnesota and Ohio State as the principal Big Ten championship contenders. Michigan, beating Columbia, 19-7, made up partly for Purdue's defeat.

Marquette, one of the strongest of the mid-western independents, handed Mississippi its first defeat of the season, 33-6.

In the Southeastern conference, Louisiana State nosed out Vanderbilt, 7-2, while Alabama took advantage of the breaks to crush Georgia, 17-7—the Bulldogs' initial reverse. North Carolina's Tar Heels, meanwhile, maintained their undefeated status with a convincing 19-0 verdict over Georgia Tech, upset conquerors of Duke a week ago.

Joining Army in the eastern top-flight were Holy Cross, Princeton, Dartmouth, New York university, Pittsburgh, Temple and Syracuse. Holy Cross surprised the experts by turning back Colgate, 3-0. Princeton trampled Cornell, 54-0, and Temple won handily from West Virginia, 19-6. New York university, undefeated, had to score in the fourth period to turn back Georgetown, 7-6, and Pittsburgh had its troubles with Penn State before winning, 9-0. Syracuse turned back Brown, 13-0, and Dartmouth won over Harvard, 14-6. Manhattan, which tied Holy Cross a week ago, was soundly beaten by North Carolina State, 20-0.

While Stanford was checking Washington, California and the University of California at Los Angeles continued their all-victorious progress. U. C. L. A. walloped Oregon, 33-6, and California accounted for Southern California, 21-7. Denver, with five Rocky Mountain conference victories to its credit, invaded Salt Lake City and took a 39-14 beating from Utah for its pains.

Rice, coming back from its defeat by Southern Methodist, upset Texas, 28-19. Texas Christian gave further evidence of tremendous power by a 27-7 triumph over Centenary at Shreveport.

In the Big Six, Nebraska stopped Oklahoma, 19-0; Kansas surprised Kansas State, 9-2, and Missouri played a 6-6 draw with Iowa State.

WISNER BULLDOGS WHIP DELHI, 14-0

WISNER, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The Wisner Bulldogs continued their march toward Class "B" honors here Friday afternoon by defeating the powerful Delhi eleven, 14 to 0.

The visitors were completely outclassed by the Bulldogs in practically every play of the game. Oglesby, Wisner's quarterback, was outstanding for the locals, making several nice runs. Atkinson and Brown played a jam-up game in the Wisner line while Copes and Johnson were stars for the visitors.

Next Friday the Jena high school eleven will come here for a game with the Bulldogs.

GEORGIA, VANDY TEAMS DEFEATED

(By Associated Press)

Georgia and Vanderbilt bit the dust Saturday to join the ranks of the defeated football clans in the Southeastern conference, leaving only Louisiana State and Mississippi with clean slates in loop competition.

No conference team could boast an undefeated record for all games.

Alabama's Crimson Tide, hitting the comeback trail with a rush, took the Georgia Bulldogs in tow, 17 to 7, with a late attack. Capitalizing on breaks, the Tide scored its points in the second half at Athens before a crowd of 25,000.

Taking to the air, L. S. U. struck in the third period to topple Vanderbilt, 7 to 2, before 10,000 spectators.

Although Mississippi remained undefeated in Southeastern conference warfare, the Delta State eleven took a 33 to 7 trimming from Marquette in an intersectional contest at Milwaukee.

A crowd of 16,000 saw North Carolina whip Georgia Tech at Chapel Hill by a score of 19 to 0 in an interconference match. Alabama Polytechnic institute yesterday licked Duke, 7 to 0, in another Southeastern-Southern conference go.

Tulane found an easy victory at New Orleans, defeating Sewanee 33 to 0, while Tennessee coasted to victory over Centre, 25 to 14 at Knoxville.

Unable to break its losing streak, Florida dropped a 20 to 6 decision to Maryland in an inter conference game before a homecoming crowd at Gainesville.

Saturday was an off day for Kentucky's Wildcats, batting .500 in the conference with one victory and one defeat.

CHICAGO DEFEATS WISCONSIN, 13-7

CHICAGO, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Chicago scored its first victory of the Big Ten championship season today, 13 to 7, over Wisconsin in a thrilling battle before 20,000 spectators at Stagg field. Jay Berwanger scored both Maroon touchdowns, with John Wilson counting for the Fighting Badgers.

YALE TUMBLED BY ARMY ELEVEN

Cadets Score Two Touchdowns In First Half To Win, 14 To 8

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Yale, handicapped by its own kicking mistakes at the outset and never fully able to get out of the hole, was tumbled from the unbeaten ranks today by Army. The Cadets from West Point emerged with a 14 to 8 triumph, their fourth in a row over the Elis and fourth successive victory of the 1935 campaign.

Before a crowd of 45,000, the soldiers capitalized two first-half scoring opportunities with an attack featuring the brilliant Charles (Monk) Meyer, West Point's newest ball-carrying sensation.

Meyer scored the first touchdown on a six-yard end run in the first period and passed to Russ Janzan, substituting for Captain Bill Shuler, for the second tally in the closing moments of the second period. The Cadet ace, playing the entire game despite a head injury that nearly knocked him out in the final quarter, did nearly all the passing as well as most of the kicking and running.

Besides taking the play away from Yale's brilliant passing combination of Jerry Roscoe and Larry Kelley, which accounted for Yale's touchdown in the second period, Meyer was a standout on the defense.

LOUISIANA TECH TROUNCES NORMAL ELEVEN, 32-0

BULLDOGS WHIP DEMONS BEFORE CROWD OF 4,000

Hewitt's 85-Yard Run Features Techmen's Homecoming Victory

TECH STADIUM, RUSTON, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech whitewashed the Demons of Louisiana State Normal college, 32-0, here Saturday afternoon in the main event of a full day's program of homecoming activities.

In adding the scalps of the Demons to their conference collection, the Techmen retained their place at the head of the class in the S. I. A. A. The Techsters have held all opponents scoreless this fall.

A feature of the game was the interception of a pass by Herman Hewitt, Tech fullback, who raced 85 yards for a touchdown in the final quarter.

A crowd estimated at close to 4,000 saw the game. Warm and sunny weather, the age-old interest in Tech and Normal athletics competition, and the chance of the year for the local college alumni to renew their classmate comradeship collaborated to draw the large homecoming attendance.

Manifesting a spirit of good will towards both of the state colleges that were coming together again, a mammoth caravan of decorated automobiles paraded the business section of Ruston just before the annual battle.

The engagement Saturday, the first afternoon contest at the college here this fall, was the 18th consecutive meeting of the Tech and Normal gridmen. In the previous 17 games, Tech won 12, having taken all of the clashes from 1918 to 1928. After that, the locals had several lean years, winning only in 1931 and 1933 and tying a scoreless draw in 1929. The Demons, by blocking a punt in the game at Natchitoches last year, defeated the Techmen, 6-0.

The privilege of sitting in the president's box at the Millsaps game here next Friday night was to be granted to the Tech student guessing closest to the Tech-Normal score Saturday. Some of the estimates ran as high as 70 to nothing in favor of Tech.

Tech kicked off to open the game. After trying two line plunges with little gain, the Demons punted. Resorting to homespun football, the local varsity made two first downs. Then Hinkie, Tech halfback, got away for a 37-yard left end run, which placed the ball on Normal's eight-yard line. In four chances to carry the ball across the goal, Tech failed, and the ball went over to the Demons. Later, a Normal pass good for 31 yards, placed the ball in the Demons' possession on Tech's 15-yard line, but Normal lost the ball on downs. The playing was waged on about even terms during the remainder of the first quarter, which ended scoreless.

Tech's "second team" went in at the opening of the second period. Carroll, Tech halfback, broke through the Normal line for a 74-yard dash across the goal line, but Tech was found guilty of clipping and the play was called back. On the next play, a pass from Carroll to Hasha put the ball on Normal's 30-yard line. In consistent gains, Tech carried the ball to Normal's 13-yard stripe. With the situation being Tech's ball on Normal's two-foot line and first down, Turner, Tech halfback, went around left end for a touchdown. Hewitt missed the try for extra point from placement.

Between halves of the game, several guests attending the contest made brief talks from the announcer's booth in the stadium. They included W. Poole Robison of Ruston, president of the Louisiana Tech Alumni association; Mayor Charles C. Goyne of Ruston, and Mayor Sam S. Caldwell of Shreveport, who were introduced by President G. W. Bond.

All made inspirational talks in support of Tech's athletic progress. In congratulating the college, Mayor Caldwell, a Tech alumnus, said "We have a college over there in Shreveport which we all want Tech to beat."

Tech kicked off at the opening of the third quarter. Soon after the period began, Hanna passed to Phillips for a Tech gain of 22 yards, which placed the ball on the Demons' 18-yard line. A pass from Hanna to Beckett was carried over the goal for a touchdown. Hinkie missed the kick from placement.

Shortly afterward, Hinkie, Tech halfback, ran through the line and around left end 46 yards to cross the goal for another counter. Hanna missed the try from placement. The score was Tech 25, Normal 0, as the third quarter ended.

After a few minutes of play in the final period, Normal punted to Tech, who fumbled in receiving and Normal recovered on the Tech 19-yard stripe. A new team relieved the entire Tech eleven in an effort to ward off an apparent touchdown drive by the Demons. Hewitt, Tech fullback, then intercepted a Normal pass on Tech's 15-yard line and ran 85 yards for a touchdown. Hasha made the extra point on a pass from Darling.

Later, Brooks, Tech center, intercepted a pass on the Demon's 48-yard line. Carroll, Tech halfback, attempting a right end run, fumbled and Normal recovered on their own 47-yard mark. Turner intercepted a Demon pass on the latter's 40-yard line. The Techmen advanced the ball to Normal's 19-yard line. A pass from Carroll to Darling put the ball on the Demons' seven-yard mark, with a first down. In the next play, Tech fumbled and Normal recovered. Brooks, Tech center, then intercepted a pass on the Demons' 28-yard line. Tech lost on downs, and Normal punted. The game ended a moment later.

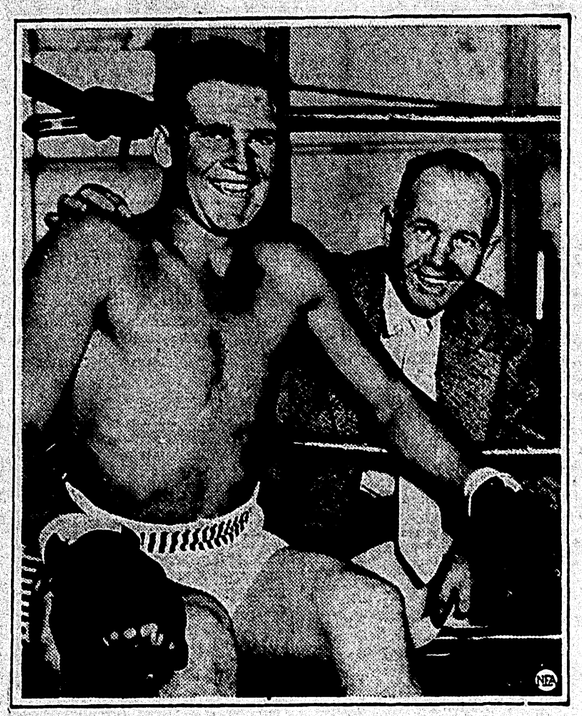
BATH IN HOT WATER



Jack Kearns, who managed Jack Dempsey, and his newest charge, Hank Bath, are under suspension in California following the young Colorado heavyweight's "knockout" of Ralph Norwood, his aged negro sparring partner, in Los Angeles. It is alleged that Norwood went out in the first round from force of habit. He substituted for "Leo the Lion" Hill, a younger and slightly more formidable negro, was was excused under peculiar circumstances. Neither Bath, shown sitting in his corner, nor Kearns, ready to second him, appears worried. Bath is plying his trade outside of California, however.

N. C. STATE WINS FROM MANHATTAN

'Cowboy' Robinson Leads Wolfpack In Victory Over Jaspers

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A North Carolina State Wolfpack huffed and puffed its way to a one-sided 20-to-0 intersectional victory over Manhattan college before a gallery of 18,000 spectators at Ebbets field today.

It was a rough and ready exhibition. At one stage the going became so enthusiastic that Richard Tuckey, Manhattan's star sophomore halfback was banished from the game for slugging.

Paced by their brilliant halfback, "Cowboy" Everett Robinson, who was ably flanked by two other triple-threat scoring aces, the flashy Eddie Berlinski of Bloomfield, N. J., and Eddie Entwistld of Old Orchard Beach, Maine, Coach Hunk Anderson's big boys from the south rushed and passed their way to a touchdown in each of the last three periods, and missed scoring two others by a matter of a few feet.

Manhattan out-rushed State 189 yards to 155 yards. In the air, the southerners gained 69 yards to 11 for the Jaspers.

FROGS UNLEASH STRONG PASSING ATTACK TO WIN

Gents Suffer Worst Defeat In Years At Hands Of Christians

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Unleashing an aerial attack that ran the Centenary college eleven dizzy, the Texas Christians protected their season's record by administering a 27 to 7 defeat to the Gentlemen before a crowd of 6,000 at the Louisiana state fair here this afternoon.

The Frogs' victory was gained on the throwing arm of Sammy Baugh, who riddled the Centenary crew with all types of aerial shots, every touchdown being made by the Frogs resulting from an overhead attack started by the 180-pound halfback.

The Gents matched the undefeated eleven from Fort Worth in running plays and in the third quarter staged a 70-yard drive to give them a touchdown. It was the first defeat for Centenary on local soil since 1931.

The Frogs produced the greatest aerial bombardment ever staged against a Centenary club. They cut loose with 35 passes, ranging from 1 to 31 yards, and completed 19 of them for a gain of 202 yards. So accurate was the shooting of Baugh, and Jimmy Lawrence, who served in the relief role of bomber, that the Gentlemen intercepted only eight shots and eleven were wasted. Of the 13 first downs credited to the visitors, seven were made through the air. The Gents made eight first downs.

Two brilliant goal line stands kept the Frogs from scoring in the first quarter but in the second period the Texans changed their attack, after once being stopped in this session. Standing on the Gents' 20-yard line, Baugh tossed a pass to L. D. Meyer in the end zone for the first score and Meyer added the point from placement.

A few minutes later Lawrence flipped a pass to Harrell from the eight yard line and the ball was caught just beyond the last stripe. Meyer added the extra point.

Centenary was trailing 14 to 0 when the third period got under way. Starting from their own thirty yard line they swept down the field for a score. Crowther and Hooper and Horak completed a lateral pass that was good for 31 yards and Crowther and Huddleston passed for a ten-yard gain. Huddleston then swept 10 yards at left end for a first down on the Frogs' 15-yard mark. On two off tackle smashes Crowther went over the goal line for a touchdown and Lee Stokes kicked the extra point.

The Frogs scored twice in the last quarter. A four-yard pass from Baugh to Meyer was completed behind the goal line. Lawrence and McCall combined to complete a 30 yard pass for another score. The Frogs kept the ball in the Gents' territory for the remainder of the game.

The Dartmouth touchdowns resulted from long marches, climaxed by the successful bucking of Fullback Joe Kiernan and Fred Hollingworth. George Hedblom, the 153-pound fullback, registered the Harvard score on a 35-yard dash throught the Dartmouth line.

MARQUETTE WINS FROM OLE MISS

Golden Avalanche Rumbles Over Walker's Eleven, 33 To 7

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Marquette university's golden avalanche rumbled over Mississippi here today and left the previously unbeaten southerners piled beneath a 33 to 7 score.

Twelve thousand saw the eleven that had averaged 40 points in five earlier games go scoreless until the last period when a short pass prevented a blanking.

Art Guepe, fleet-footed Marquette quarterback, was the largest rock of the avalanche, counting three touchdowns and helping pave the way for two more by the bullet passing left halfback, Ray Buivid, and the puning fullback, Ward Cuff.

Guepe broke loose on the first play after the kick-off, spearing a 50-yard pass from Buivid on Mississippi's 32-yard line and romping across untouched. He counted again in the second by intercepting a pass from C. Hapes, substitute fullback, and running 22 yards to the goal. In the third period, he stood in the end zone and grabbed a pass from Buivid on the Mississippi 12.

It was Buivid, however, who provided the sensation of the game by breaking through the line and running 76 yards in the first period. He suffered several setbacks at the hands of the Ole Miss's linemen, however, and netted only 29 yards in the 12 times he carried the ball. Guepe collected 72 in 14 attempts.

Cuff, who made two of the points after touchdown, scored Marquette's second touchdown in the second period on a short pass from Buivid beyond the Mississippi 8. Big Leonard Mierzwa, sub for Cuff, counted the other extra point.

Mississippi missed one other good chance to score, but in the final period came through as Mierzwa kicked out of a bad hole to the Marquette 22, from where Rab Rodgers, 166-pound halfback, passed to Bobo Foose, end, who stepped across the goal. Dave Bernard, fullback, place-kicked the extra point.

Bernard, Ned Peters, and Ray Hapes and Clarence Hapes were the Mississippi eleven's heavy ground gainers.

Participation Of U. S. In Olympics Causes Debate

Argument Still Rages Concerning Germany's Treatment Of Jews

Jeremiah H. Mahoney, president of the American Amateur Athletic union who recently declared Dr. Theodor Lewald, president of the German Olympic committee, was being used as a "screen" by the German government, attacked last night the principles of Nazism in general and General Charles Sherrill in particular.

"I am talking as an individual and not as president of the A. A. U.," he said in a radio talk, "but my heart is in this cause because I know it has the better of the moral issue involved. It is not a question of race or religion any more, or a question of athletics.

"It is a question of whether we shall lend help and endorsement and approval to the Nazi government that knows not the rules of sport or fair play, but which in sport as well as in all other activities and functions of life, resorts to force and oppression and persecution to accomplish its wicked ends."

General Sherrill, who recently returned from Germany, broached the possibility of anti-Semitic trouble here as a result of the opposition to American participation.

He contended that if the 500,000 Americans in training for possible places on Olympic teams suddenly became aware of efforts to thwart their desires, they might instigate anti-Semitic trouble that would last for years.

Referring to this, Mahoney said:

"No real friend of the Jews of this country would attempt to silence any self-respecting Jew by proclaiming that an American protest against conditions in Germany might create an anti-Semitic movement here.

"Such a statement is cowardly and is made merely to intimidate the courageous, fearless, liberty-loving Jews living in our midst, and they will not believe for a moment that anybody who can make such a threat in such an insinuating and insidious manner could be really and honestly a friend of the Jews."

Mahoney quoted General Sherrill as saying that the New York Athletic club, to which both belong, barred Jews from its membership.

"If that is so, it is wrong," Mahoney said. "I am informed that there are some Jews in that club.

"I know it to be a fact that in many clubs to which he (Sherrill) belongs and in which he is most prominent, not only are Jews and negroes barred, but also the finest American citizens noted for accomplishments in the various fields of endeavor, are ineligible merely because they do not represent the so-called first American families."

In Berlin, Dr. Lewald announced that Helene Mayer, outstanding German-Jewish fencer, had accepted an invitation to compete for Germany.

The case of Miss Mayer had been cited often in the controversy, and Lewald regarded her acceptance as disposing of at least one point in the situation. Many had contended that Miss Mayer never had received an invitation.

Dr. Lewald charged Mahoney with "dragging politics into the Olympic arena," a contention which Mahoney also denied in his radio talk. Mahoney said he had no political ambitions.

Stella Walsh, Polish woman athletic star, and Jack Shea, Olympic ice skating champion, announced they were opposed to American participation.

Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic committee who in a recent statement favored participation, was lauded in German newspapers.

DISCOVERY BEATEN IN MARYLAND RACE

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—(AP)—One hundred and thirty-eight pounds weighed heavily on Discovery today and the Vanderbilt sensation went down to defeat in the $10,000 Maryland handicap—in fourth place, more than five lengths back of the winner.

Walter M. Jeffords' 3-year-old colt Firethorn, carrying 119 pounds, raced to a three-length victory in the mile and a quarter feature to pay backers $14 for $2. Second by a nose was Count Arthur with only one third, two lengths ahead of the heavily-weighted Discovery.

TOP TAR HEEL

University of North Carolina football followers are booming Don Jackson, above, for all-America honors. Jackson is a triple threat, but excels in forward passing. In the first three games—one a somewhat surprising 38-13 victory over Tennessee—the senior halfback completed 14 out of 21 forwards for an average of 14 yards. The Sanford, Fla., boy's average from scrimmage is better than six yards, and to punting nearly 40.

CHOCTAWS WIN FROM TEACHERS

Mississippi College Chalks Up First Victory Of Year, 34-0

GREENWOOD, Miss., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Mississippi college won its first game of the year and scored its first points of the year here this afternoon in a 34 to 0 victory over Delta State Teachers college, in which the Choctaws completely overpowered the Cleveland team. Each team made 12 first downs but the Baptists had the necessary scoring plays.

Delta State outplayed the Choctaws during the first half but Coach Robinson's boys played inspired football the second half. With his team leading 14 to 0 Winstead, Mississippi college halfback, grabbed the opening kickoff of the second half and ran 90 yards for a touchdown. In addition to Winstead's brilliant run, Hitt, and Anderson starred in the backfield, and Dickson, Newsom and H. Jackson starred in the line.

OUACHITA MEETS HAYNESVILLE IN CRUCIAL BATTLE

Lions' Chances Of Finishing In Title Playoff Depend On Game

The crucial test of the Ouachita parish high school Lions' class A standing will be given by the Haynesville Golden Tornado, which burst Neville's championship bubble last Thursday night, when the two elevens clash on the Haynesville gridiron Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Last year the Tornado beat Ouachita, 12 to 6, and predictions are that the impending battle will be another close, hard fight.

The Lions will be drilled extensively in every department of the game during the next three days with emphasis on the Haynesville passing attack. Coach Haynes has mapped out a pass defense which he hopes will the storm through the air. He believes his strong forward wall will be able to repulse any line plays.

Bob Staples, fullback, and Solly Mayer, halfback, who were injured for the Bastrop game last Friday, will be back ready to start this week-end. The only casualty among the Lions in the Bastrop battle was Eddie Bowles, halfback, who was hurt in the first quarter. Bowles was a patient at the Clinic yesterday, suffering a stomach injury and it was uncertain whether or not he would be available for Haynesville.

The showing of Ouachita's reserve back, especially W. B. Stewart, at fullback, against Bastrop, was quite pleasing to Coach Haynes and he believes his boys will beat the Tornado even if he has to use his reserve ball carriers again.

So impressed was Coach Haynes by the work of Stewart against Bastrop that he said last night that Bob Staples might be sent back to his old guard post. Staples is an exceptionally good lineman and with him back in the forward wall it would provide the Lions with an all-veteran line. However, Coach Haynes has not definitely made up his mind to make the change.

The battle will be another of the championship calibre for Haynesville and the first real test of the season for Ouachita. But should the Lions come out of the Tornado with a whole hide they will still have the Yellow Jackets of Byrd high school to pass. They meet Byrd on the following week-end in Shreveport.

But if Haynesville wins they will just be working themselves into deeper water for they meet Homer's Pelicans on the following week and then Byrd of Shreveport next.

Ouachita won't be seen on the local gridiron any more until November 15. At that time they meet their old rivals, the Rayville Hornets. The Hornets are not as impressive this year as they were a few seasons back and the engagement should be a breather for the Lions before they tackle the strong Bolton Bears of Alexandria in the last game on their schedule on Thanksgiving Day.

HAYNESVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Whatever hopes that the followers of the Golden Tornado had of an undefeated season were given a severe jolt after Thursday night's game with the Neville team in Monroe. "Rowboat" Wroten, perhaps the finest ball carrier in north Louisiana, had to be carried from the field after sustaining a wrench knee. He will not play against Ouachita parish, and there is some doubt that he will be ready for any more games this year.

The other reason for worry in Tornado town is that Herschel Sherman, tall right end and star pass receiver, will also be out for two weeks. He came out of the Neville game with a badly battered pair of legs, the result of a series of debates involving the question of Sherman going down the field for passes.

These two boys have been major offensive threats for six games and there is some doubt that the Tornado can maintain its pace without Wroten and Sherman. Fortunately, the Tornado is well fortified in those two positions but the men who will play at end and at left halfback do not quite measure up to the same standards as the regulars.

There is much doubt around Haynesville that the Tornado can take the onrushing Ouachita parish team next Friday. Scouting reports show the visitors to have more power than any team the local club has had to face so far. The Tornado has been able to combine a fine running game with a brilliant passing attack in all of their early games and the fans are anxious for the practice sessions next week to see what type of offense the Tornado will drill on for the Lions.

The fact that the Tornado might lose its first game on the home field since 1931 is causing lots of discussion and football enthusiasts in surrounding towns are preparing to flock into town to see the club that might turn the trick.

WINNSBORO BEATS OAK GROVE, 6 TO 0

OAK GROVE, La., Oct. 25.—(Special)—Scoring a touchdown in the second quarter, Winnsboro High school defeated Oak Grove here today, 6 to 0. The Wildcats protected their early lead against two sustained drives by Oak Grove in the third and fourth quarters, the Tigers reaching the 15 yard line on both occasions.

Winnsboro was stopped in the first period after making four first downs, but in the second quarter a pass from J. Smith to Bradley, who was standing in the end zone, gave the visitors their winning marker. The pass was made from the 25 yard line.

For Oak Grove, O. Butler, M. Butler, Ainsworth, W. Borden and F. Borden were outstanding, while the Winnsboro stars were Holstein, Bankston, Bradley, Chesney, Hamacher and Lane.

Recent Football Results Indicate Doubtfull Value Of Scouting

By John J. Romano

The Skibos of Carnegie Tech thought they discerned a weakness in Notre Dame's line when they held the Fighting Irish to a 14-3 score some weeks ago. The line was said to be so much chaff in the face of an onward charge, and that the backs were forced to make ther own holes to go through. According to the tip passed to scouts of Wisconsin the Skibos took more punishment from Carideo, Shakespeare, Layden, Wilke and Wojcihovski than they did from the line. Center was the weak spot in the Notre Dame line, or so they say.

It is true that the first score was made by Shakespeare and the second by big Bob Wilke. It is equally true that if the center hole was weak or open, the Skibos did not penetrate to such an extent as to score. The only source of consolation was due to a field goal kicked by Johnny Kopsack, Tech's quarterback, in the second period. Not much comfort from that since Wisconsin worked on Notre Dame's supposed weakness and did not do as well as Carnegie Tech.

Notre Dame's first two touchdowns in the Badger game came as a result of passes, and the third from laterals and line smashes. At no time were the Ramblers in danger of losing ground because of a weakness at center. The line held up well against a desperate eleven weakened by injuries, but lead by Clarence Tommerson, a one-man rebellion. The spirit of the Badgers was supposed to be at low ebb, but they were fighting for Coach Doc Spears and they gave everything they had. No greater tribute could be paid his boys than that of Coach Spears after the game, "We faced a hardier, more versatile Notre Dame team than in years and we lost to a better team."

Anything But Weak

"Fat" Spears is not one to mince words. If he thought any of his boys were laying down on the job he would have yanked them out of the game and publicly stated his reasons. His way is not to pamper any misguided or disillusioned pets. He wants a winner and the way Clarence Tommerson played at halfback only proved that the Badger team, despite its third straight defeat, was out to win over Elmer Layden's South Bend team and dispel the idea that Spears was ready to quit because his boys had lost confidence in him.

If Notre Dame is weak in the line then how do they account for Wayne Millner's rush to block Tommerson's kick. Millner plays left end. This play changed the entire complexion of the game and permitted Wojcihovski to smash through the forward wall up to the 19-yard stripe. Note the Irish line opened a hole for the halfback. The latter then dropped back and threw a perfect pass to Shakespeare for the first touchdown.

In the Wisconsin game Notre Dame backs gained 170 yards from rushing and made 13 first downs. If that is any indication of a weakened line, I know a score of more coaches who would like to have such boys as Millner, Pfefferle, Lauter, Pojman, Becker and Peters in the vanguard for a backfield the like of which Elmer Layden can put on the field.

Overemphasis of Scouting

Scouting a team has certain advantages. This is true where the characteristics of certain players are noted. Take a blocking back who cannot carry a ball. It is seldom he is called upon to run. Some times the ability of a certain player in this respect is hidden because it is not necessary for him to perform that duty. Then what happens? It comes to pass that the enemy is covering a ballcarrier effectively. The blocking back is given the ball and ploughs through for a big gain.

"Just luck. We won't be caught off our guard next time," reasons the opposing team. Of course the ball is not given to that back again. Another try is made with the "spotted" back and he is held for no gain. This might happen again and again as the late Knute Rockne often pulled it, and as like as not the supposed non-carrying back gets the ball and rips through the line for the deciding score.

All Teams Leveling Off

Upsets, such as those which have marked engagements between major and so-called minor teams, have been noticeable throughout the country. Small colleges have ceased to be warm-ups for bigger institutions. This can only mean that better material and a more open game is doing more for football than powerized publicity has accomplished in the past. The uncertainty of a game is what attracts the fans and keeps them tense throughout. It is much more entertaining than watching a superior team march down the field against feeble opposition. Such spectacles were unworthy of the national game and tended to discredit the sport.

In the same category belongs scouting. Those who expect to discern weaknesses in a rival have but to look back on reports made on Notre Dame against Wisconsin, Purdue against Fordham, Holy Cross against Harvard, Maryland against North Carolina, Illinois against Southern California and a few others, to appreciate the unreliability of advance dope of a scout or opinion of a rival.

The game is played for all it is worth. A "break" one way or another decides the issue. On that and better-conditioned, well-coached athletes is the sum and substance of all that makes competitive sport the acme of physical achievement throughout the civilized world.

LOUISIANA TECH TROUNCES NORMAL ELEVEN, 32-0

Hewitt's 85-Yard Run Features Techmen's Homecoming Victory

TECH STADIUM, RUSTON, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Louisiana Tech whitewashed the Demons of Louisiana State Normal college, 32-0, here Saturday afternoon in the main event of a full day's program of homecoming activities.

In adding the scalps of the Demons to their conference collection, the Techmen retained their place at the head of the class in the S. I. A. A. The Techsters have held all opponents scoreless this fall.

A feature of the game was the interception of a pass by Herman Hewitt, Tech fullback, who raced 85 yards for a touchdown in the final quarter.

A crowd estimated at close to 4,000 saw the game. Warm and sunny weather, the age-old interest in Tech and Normal athletics competition, and the chance of the year for the local college alumni to renew their classmate comradeship collaborated to draw the large homecoming attendance.

Manifesting a spirit of good will towards both of the state colleges that were coming together again, a mammoth caravan of decorated automobiles paraded the business section of Ruston just before the annual battle.

The engagement Saturday, the first afternoon contest at the college here this fall, was the 18th consecutive meeting of the Tech and Normal gridmen. In the previous 17 games, Tech won 12, having taken all of the clashes from 1918 to 1928. After that, the locals had several lean years, winning only in 1931 and 1933 and tying a scoreless draw in 1929. The Demons, by blocking a punt in the game at Natchitoches last year, defeated the Techmen, 6-0.

The privilege of sitting in the president's box at the Millsaps game here next Friday night was to be granted to the Tech student guessing closest to the Tech-Normal score Saturday. Some of the estimates ran as high as 70 to nothing in favor of Tech.

Tech kicked off to open the game. After trying two line plunges with little gain, the Demons punted. Resorting to homespun football, the local varsity made two first downs. Then Hinkie, Tech halfback, got away for a 37-yard left end run, which placed the ball on Normal's eight-yard line. In four chances to carry the ball across the goal, Tech failed, and the ball went over to the Demons. Later, a Normal pass good for 31 yards, placed the ball in the Demons' possession on Tech's 15-yard line, but Normal lost the ball on downs. The playing was waged on about even terms during the remainder of the first quarter, which ended scoreless.

Tech's "second team" went in at the opening of the second period. Carroll, Tech halfback, broke through the Normal line for a 74-yard dash across the goal line, but Tech was found guilty of clipping and the play was called back. On the next play, a pass from Carroll to Hasha put the ball on Normal's 30-yard line. In consistent gains, Tech carried the ball to Normal's 13-yard stripe. With the situation being Tech's ball on Normal's two-foot line and first down, Turner, Tech halfback, went around left end for a touchdown. Hewitt missed the try for extra point from placement.

Between halves of the game, several guests attending the contest made brief talks from the announcer's booth in the stadium. They included W. Poole Robison of Ruston, president of the Louisiana Tech Alumni association; Mayor Charles C. Goyne of Ruston, and Mayor Sam S. Caldwell of Shreveport, who were introduced by President G. W. Bond.

All made inspirational talks in support of Tech's athletic progress. In congratulating the college, Mayor Caldwell, a Tech alumnus, said "We have a college over there in Shreveport which we all want Tech to beat."

Tech kicked off at the opening of the third quarter. Soon after the period began, Hanna passed to Phillips for a Tech gain of 22 yards, which placed the ball on the Demons' 18-yard line. A pass from Hanna to Beckett was carried over the goal for a touchdown. Hinkie missed the kick from placement.

Shortly afterward, Hinkie, Tech halfback, ran through the line and around left end 46 yards to cross the goal for another counter. Hanna missed the try from placement. The score was Tech 25, Normal 0, as the third quarter ended.

After a few minutes of play in the final period, Normal punted to Tech, who fumbled in receiving and Normal recovered on the Tech 19-yard stripe. A new team relieved the entire Tech eleven in an effort to ward off an apparent touchdown drive by the Demons. Hewitt, Tech fullback, then intercepted a Normal pass on Tech's 15-yard line and ran 85 yards for a touchdown. Hasha made the extra point on a pass from Darling.

Later, Brooks, Tech center, intercepted a pass on the Demon's 43-yard line. Carroll, Tech halfback, attempting a right end run, fumbled and Normal recovered on their own 40-yard mark. Turner intercepted a Demon pass on the latter's 40-yard line. The Techmen advanced the ball to Normal's 19-yard line. A pass from Carroll to Darling put the ball on the Demons' seven-yard mark, with a first down. In the next play, Tech fumbled and Normal recovered. Brooks, Tech center, then intercepted a pass on the Demons' 28-yard line. Tech lost on downs, and Normal punted. The game ended a moment later.

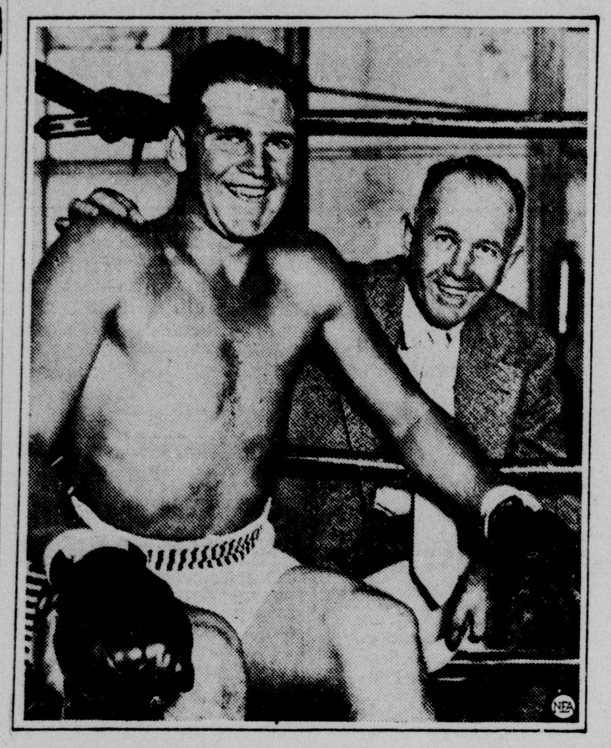
BATH IN HOT WATER



Jack Kearns, who managed Jack Dempsey, and his newest charge, Hank Bath, are under suspension in California following the young Colorado heavyweight's "knockout" of Ralph Norwood, his aged negro sparring partner, in Los Angeles. It is alleged that Norwood went out in the first round from force of habit. He substituted for "Leo the Lion" Hill, a younger and slightly more formidable negro, was was excused under peculiar circumstances. Neither Bath, shown sitting in his corner, nor Kearns, ready to second him, appears worried. Bath is plying his trade outside of California, however.

'Cowboy' Robinson Leads Wolfpack In Victory Over Jaspers

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A North Carolina State Wolfpack huffed and puffed its way to a one-sided 20-to-0 intersectional victory over Manhattan college before a gallery of 18,000 spectators at Ebbets field today.

It was a rough and ready exhibition. At one stage the going became so enthusiastic that Richard Tuckey, Manhattan's star sophomore halfback was banished from the game for slugging.

Paced by their brilliant halfback, "Cowboy" Everett Robinson, who was ably flanked by two other triple-threat scoring aces, the flashy Eddie Berlinski of Bloomfield, N. J., and Eddie Entwistld of Old Orchard Beach, Maine, Coach Hunk Anderson's big boys from the south rushed and passed their way to a touchdown in each of the last three periods, and missed scoring two others by a matter of a few feet.

Manhattan out-rushed State 189 yards to 155 yards. In the air, the southerners gained 69 yards to 11 for the Jaspers.

FROGS UNLEASH STRONG PASSING ATTACK TO WIN

Gents Suffer Worst Defeat In Years At Hands Of Christians

SHREVEPORT, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Unleashing an aerial attack that ran the Centenary college eleven dizzy, the Texas Christians protected their season's record by administering a 27 to 7 defeat to the Gentlemen before a crowd of 6,000 at the Louisiana state fair here this afternoon.

The Frogs' victory was gained on the throwing arm of Sammy Baugh, who riddled the Centenary crew with all types of aerial shots, every touchdown being made by the Frogs resulting from an overhead attack started by the 180-pound halfback.

The Gents matched the undefeated eleven from Fort Worth in running plays and in the third quarter staged a 70-yard drive to give them a touchdown. It was the first defeat for Centenary on local soil since 1931.

The Frogs produced the greatest aerial bombardment ever staged against a Centenary club. They cut loose with 35 passes, ranging from 1 to 31 yards, and completed 19 of them for a gain of 202 yards. So accurate was the shooting of Baugh, and Jimmy Lawrence, who served in the relief role of bomber, that the Gentlemen intercepted only eight shots and eleven were wasted. Of the 13 first downs credited to the visitors, seven were made through the air. The Gents made eight first downs.

Two brilliant goal line stands kept the Frogs from scoring in the first quarter but in the second period the Texans changed their attack, after once being stopped in this session. Standing on the Gents' 20-yard line, Baugh tossed a pass to L. D. Meyer in the end zone for the first score and Meyer added the point from placement.

A few minutes later Lawrence flipped a pass to Harrell from the eight yard line and the ball was caught just beyond the last stripe. Meyer added the extra point.

Centenary was trailing 14 to 0 when the third period got under way. Starting from their own thirty yard line they swept down the field for a score. Crowther and Hooper and Horak completed a lateral pass that was good for 31 yards and Crowther and Huddleston passed for a ten-yard gain. Huddleston then swept 10 yards at left end for a first down on the Frogs' 15-yard mark. On two off tackle smashes Crowther went over the goal line for a touchdown and Lee Stokes kicked the extra point.

The Frogs scored twice in the last quarter. A four-yard pass from Baugh to Meyer was completed behind the goal line. Lawrence and McCall combined to complete a 30 yard pass for another score. The Frogs kept the ball in the Gents' territory for the remainder of the game.

The Dartmouth touchdowns resulted from long marches, climaxed by the successful bucking of Fullback Joe Kiernan and Fred Hollingworth. George Hedblom, the 153-pound fullback, registered the Harvard score on a 35-yard dash throught the Dartmouth line.

MARQUETTE WINS FROM OLE MISS

Golden Avalanche Rumbles Over Walker's Eleven, 33 To 7

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 26.—(AP)—Marquette university's golden avalanche rumbled over Mississippi here today and left the previously unbeaten southerners piled beneath a 33 to 7 score.

Twelve thousand saw the eleven that had averaged 40 points in five earlier games go scoreless until the last period when a short pass prevented a blanking.

Art Guepe, fleet-footed Marquette quarterback, was the largest rock of the avalanche, counting three touchdowns and helping pave the way for two more by the bullet passing left halfback, Ray Buivid, and the puning fullback, Ward Cuff.

Guepe broke loose on the first play after the kick-off, spearing a 50-yard pass from Buivid on Mississippi's 32-yard line and romping across untouched. He counted again in the second by intercepting a pass from C. Hapes, substitute fullback, and running 22 yards to the goal. In the third period, he stood in the end zone and grabbed a pass from Buivid on the Mississippi 12.

It was Buivid, however, who provided the sensation of the game by breaking through the line and running 76 yards in the first period. He suffered several setbacks at the hands of the Ole Miss's linemen, however, and netted only 29 yards in the 12 times he carried the ball. Guepe collected 72 in 14 attempts.

Cuff, who made two of the points after touchdown, scored Marquette's second touchdown in the second period on a short pass from Buivid beyond the Mississippi 8. Big Leonard Mierzwa, sub for Cuff, counted the other extra point.

Mississippi missed one other good chance to score, but in the final period came through as Mierzwa kicked out of a bad hole to the Marquette 22, from where Rab Rodgers, 166-pound halfback, passed to Bobo Foose, end, who stepped across the goal. Dave Bernard, fullback, placekicked the extra point.

Bernard, Ned Peters, and Ray Hapes and Clarence Hapes were the Mississippi eleven's heavy ground gainers.

Participation Of U. S. In Olympics Causes Debate

Argument Still Rages Concerning Germany's Treatment Of Jews

Jeremiah H. Mahoney, president of the American Amateur Athletic union who recently declared Dr. Theodor Lewald, president of the German Olympic committee, was being used as a "screen" by the German government, attacked last night the principles of Nazism in general and General Charles Sherrill in particular.

"I am talking as an individual and not as president of the A. A. U.," he said in a radio talk, "but my heart is in this cause because I know it has the better of the moral issue involved. It is not a question of race or religion any more, or a question of athletics.

"It is a question of whether we shall lend help and endorsement and approval to the Nazi government that knows not the rules of sport or fair play, but which in sport as well as in all other activities and functions of life, resorts to force and oppression and persecution to accomplish its wicked ends."

General Sherrill, who recently returned from Germany, broached the possibility of anti-Semitic trouble here as a result of the opposition to American participation.

He contended that if the 500,000 Americans in training for possible places on Olympic teams suddenly became aware of efforts to thwart their desires, they might instigate anti-Semitic trouble that would last for years.

Referring to this, Mahoney said:

"No real friend of the Jews of this country would attempt to silence any self-respecting Jew by proclaiming that an American protest against conditions in Germany might create an anti-Semitic movement here.

"Such a statement is cowardly and is made merely to intimidate the courageous, fearless, liberty-loving Jews living in our midst, and they will not believe for a moment that anybody who can make such a threat in such an insinuating and insidious manner could be really and honestly a friend of the Jews."

Mahoney quoted General Sherrill as saying that the New York Athletic club, to which both belong, barred Jews from its membership.

"If that is so, it is wrong," Mahoney said. "I am informed that there are some Jews in that club.

"I know it to be a fact that in many clubs to which he (Sherrill) belongs and in which he is most prominent, not only are Jews and negroes barred, but also the finest American citizens noted for accomplishments in the various fields of endeavor, are ineligible merely because they do not represent the so-called first American families."

In Berlin, Dr. Lewald announced that Helene Mayer, outstanding German-Jewish fencer, had accepted an invitation to compete for Germany.

The case of Miss Mayer had been cited often in the controversy, and Lewald regarded her acceptance as disposing of at least one point in the situation. Many had contended that Miss Mayer never had received an invitation.

Dr. Lewald charged Mahoney with "dragging politics into the Olympic arena," a contention which Mahoney also denied in his radio talk. Mahoney said he had no political ambitions.

Stella Walsh, Polish woman athletic star, and Jack Shea, Olympic ice skating champion, announced they were opposed to American participation.

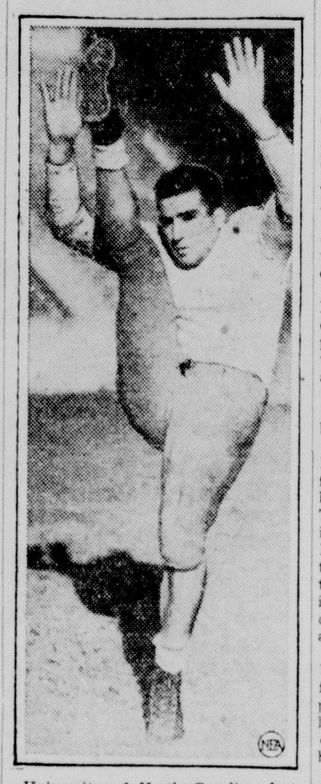
Avery Brundage, chairman of the American Olympic committee who in a recent statement favored participation, was lauded in German newspapers.

DISCOVERY BEATEN IN MARYLAND RACE

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 26.—(AP)—One hundred and thirty-eight pounds weighed heavily on Discovery today and the Vanderbilt sensation went down to defeat in the $10,000 Maryland handicap—in fourth place, more than five lengths back of the winner.

Walter M. Jeffords' 3-year-old colt Firethorn, carrying 119 pounds, raced to a three-length victory in the mile and a quarter feature to pay backers $14 for $2. Second by a nose was Count Arthur with only one third, two lengths ahead of the heavily-weighted Discovery.

TOP TAR HEEL



University of North Carolina football followers are booming Don Jackson, above, for all-America honors. Jackson is a triple threat, but excels in forward passing. In the first three games—one a somewhat surprising 38-13 victory over Tennessee—the senior halfback completed 14 out of 21 forwards for an average of 14 yards. The Sanford, Fla., boy's average from scrimmage is better than six yards, and to punting nearly 40.

Each team made 12 first downs but the Baptists had the necessary scoring plays.

Lions' Chances Of Finishing In Title Playoff Depend On Game

The crucial test of the Ouachita parish high school Lions' class A standing will be given by the Haynesville Golden Tornado, which burst Neville's championship bubble last Thursday night, when the two elevens clash on the Haynesville gridiron Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Last year the Tornado beat Ouachita, 12 to 6, and predictions are that the impending battle will be another close, hard fight.

The Lions will be drilled extensively in every department of the game during the next three days with emphasis on the Haynesville passing attack. Coach Haynes has mapped out a pass defense which he hopes will the storm through the air. He believes his strong forward wall will be able to repulse any line plays.

Bob Staples, fullback, and Solly Mayer, halfback, who were injured for the Bastrop game last Friday, will be back ready to start this week-end. The only casualty among the Lions in the Bastrop battle was Eddie Bowles, halfback, who was hurt in the first quarter. Bowles was a patient at the Clinic yesterday, suffering a stomach injury and it was uncertain whether or not he would be available for Haynesville.

The showing of Ouachita's reserve back, especially W. B. Stewart, at fullback, against Bastrop, was quite pleasing to Coach Haynes and he believes his boys will beat the Tornado even if he has to use his reserve ball carriers again.

So impressed was Coach Haynes by the work of Stewart against Bastrop that he said last night that Bob Staples might be sent back to his old guard post. Staples is an exceptionally good lineman and with him back in the forward wall it would provide the Lions with an all-veteran line. However, Coach Haynes has not definitely made up his mind to make the change.

The battle will be another of the championship calibre for Haynesville and the first real test of the season for Ouachita. But should the Lions come out of the Tornado with a whole hide they will still have the Yellow Jackets of Byrd high school to pass. They meet Byrd on the following week-end in Shreveport.

But if Haynesville wins they will just be working themselves into deeper water for they meet Homer's Pelicans on the following week and then Byrd of Shreveport next.

Ouachita won't be seen on the local gridiron any more until November 15. At that time they meet their old rivals, the Rayville Hornets. The Hornets are not as impressive this year as they were a few seasons back and the engagement should be a breather for the Lions before they tackle the strong Bolton Bears of Alexandria in the last game on their schedule on Thanksgiving Day.

HAYNESVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Whatever hopes that the followers of the Golden Tornado had of an undefeated season were given a severe jolt after Thursday night's game with the Neville team in Monroe. "Rowboat" Wroten, perhaps the finest ball carrier in north Louisiana, had to be carried from the field after sustaining a wrench knee. He will not play against Ouachita parish, and there is some doubt that he will be ready for any more games this year.

The other reason for worry in Tornado town is that Herschel Sherman, tall right end and star pass receiver, will also be out for two weeks. He came out of the Neville game with a badly battered pair of legs, the result of a series of debates involving the question of Sherman going down the field for passes.

These two boys have been major offensive threats for six games and there is some doubt that the Tornado can maintain its pace without Wroten and Sherman. Fortunately, the Tornado is well fortified in those two positions but the men who will play at end and at left halfback do not quite measure up to the same standards as the regulars.

There is much doubt around Haynesville that the Tornado can take the onrushing Ouachita parish team next Friday. Scouting reports show the visitors to have more power than any team the local club has had to face so far. The Tornado has been able to combine a fine running game with a brilliant passing attack in all of their early games and the fans are anxious for the practice sessions next week to see what type of offense the Tornado will drill on for the Lions.

The fact that the Tornado might lose its first game on the home field since 1931 is causing lots of discussion and football enthusiasts in surrounding towns are preparing to flock into town to see the club that might turn the trick.

Recent Football Results Indicate Doubtfull Value Of Scouting

By John J. Romano

The Skibos of Carnegie Tech thought they discerned a weakness in Notre Dame's line when they held the Fighting Irish to a 14-3 score some weeks ago. The line was said to be so much chaff in the face of an onward charge, and that the backs were forced to make ther own holes to go through. According to the tip passed to scouts of Wisconsin the Skibos took more punishment from Carideo, Shakespeare, Layden, Wilke and Wojcihovski than they did from the line. Center was the weak spot in the Notre Dame line, or so they say.

It is true that the first score was made by Shakespeare and the second by big Bob Wilke. It is equally true that if the center hole was weak or open, the Skibos did not penetrate to such an extent as to score. The only source of consolation was due to a field goal kicked by Johnny Kopsack, Tech's quarterback, in the second period. Not much comfort from that since Wisconsin worked on Notre Dame's supposed weakness and did not do as well as Carnegie Tech.

Notre Dame's first two touchdowns in the Badger game came as a result of passes, and the third from laterals and line smashes. At no time were the Ramblers in danger of losing ground because of a weakness at center. The line held up well against a desperate eleven weakened by injuries, but lead by Clarence Tommerson, a one-man rebellion. The spirit of the Badgers was supposed to be at low ebb, but they were fighting for Coach Doc Spears and they gave everything they had. No greater tribute could be paid his boys than that of Coach Spears after the game. "We faced a hardier, more versatile Notre Dame team than in years and we lost to a better team."

Anything But Weak

"Fat" Spears is not one to mince words. If he thought any of his boys were laying down on the job he would have yanked them out of the game and publicly stated his reasons. His way is not to pamper any misguided or disillusioned pets. He wants a winner and the way Clarence Tommerson played at halfback only proved that the Badger team, despite its third straight defeat, was out to win over Elmer Layden's South Bend team and dispel the idea that Spears was ready to quit because his boys had lost confidence in him.

If Notre Dame is weak in the line then how do they account for Wayne Millner's rush to block Tommerson's kick. Millner plays left end. This play changed the entire complexion of the game and permitted Wojcihovski to smash through the forward wall up to the 19-yard stripe. Note the Irish line opened a hole for the halfback. The latter then dropped back and threw a perfect pass to Shakespeare for the first touchdown.

In the Wisconsin game Notre Dame backs gained 170 yards from rushing and made 13 first downs. If that is any indication of a weakened line, I know a score of more coaches who would like to have such boys as Millner, Pfefferle, Lauter, Pojman, Becker and Peters in the vanguard for a backfield the like of which Elmer Layden can put on the field.

Overemphasis of Scouting

Scouting a team has certain advantages. This is true where the characteristics of certain players are noted. Take a blocking back who cannot carry a ball. It is seldom he is called upon to run. Some times the ability of a certain player in this respect is hidden because it is not necessary for him to perform that duty. Then what happens? It comes to pass that the enemy is covering a ballcarrier effectively. The blocking back is given the ball and ploughs through for a big gain.

"Just luck. We won't be caught off our guard next time," reasons the opposing team. Of course the ball is not given to that back again. Another try is made with the "spotted" back and he is held for no gain. This might happen again and again as the late Knute Rockne often pulled it, and as like as not the supposed non-carrying back gets the ball and rips through the line for the deciding score.

All Teams Leveling Off

Upsets, such as those which have marked engagements between major and so-called minor teams, have been noticeable throughout the country. Small colleges have ceased to be warm-ups for bigger institutions. This can only mean that better material and a more open game is doing more for football than powerized publicity has accomplished in the past. The uncertainty of a game is what attracts the fans and keeps them tense throughout. It is much more entertaining than watching a superior team march down the field against feeble opposition. Such spectacles were unworthy of the national game and tended to discredit the sport.

In the same category belongs scouting. Those who expect to discern weaknesses in a rival have but to look back on reports made on Notre Dame against Wisconsin, Purdue against Fordham, Holy Cross against Harvard, Maryland against North Carolina, Illinois against Southern California and a few others, to appreciate the unreliability of advance dope of a scout or opinion of a rival.

The game is played for all it is worth. A "break" one way or another decides the issue. On that and better-conditioned, well-coached athletes is the sum and substance of all that makes competitive sport the acme of physical achievement throughout the civilized world.

WINNSBORO BEATS OAK GROVE, 6 TO 0

OAK GROVE, La., Oct. 25.—(Special)—Scoring a touchdown in the second quarter, Winnsboro High school defeated Oak Grove here today, 6 to 0. The Wildcats protected their early lead against two sustained drives by Oak Grove in the third and fourth quarters, the Tigers reaching the 15 yard line on both occasions

Winnsboro was stopped in the first period after making four first downs, but in the second quarter a pass from J. Smith to Bradley, who was standing in the end zone, gave the visitors their winning marker. The pass was made from the 25 yard line.

For Oak Grove, O. Butler, M. Butler, Ainsworth, W. Borden and F. Borden were outstanding, while the Winnsboro stars were Holstein, Bankston, Bradley, Chesney, Hamacher and Lang.

KELLY MEETS MIDDLEKAUFF AT STADIUM THURSDAY

FORMER FOOTBALL STARS BOOKED IN SCIENTIFIC MATCH

Ernest And Bill Agree To Wrestle On Up And Up In Main Event

Two former football stars, both of whom performed in the old Southern conference, will tangle next Thursday night in the main event of the weekly wrestling card at Roosevelt stadium. Ernest Kelly, popular local favorite, who made a name for himself as a lineman for the University of Tennessee, will meet Bill Middlekauff, former all-America fullback from Florida U.

Although Kelly and Middlekauff never faced each other on the gridiron, there seems to be quite a bit of rivalry between them in wrestling circles. Both lay claim to the stadium championship, despite the fact that each has lost here.

Both Kelly and Middlekauff have agreed to wrestle strictly according to Hoyle, which means that the fans will enjoy a real scientific match for a change. Usually there's one villain and one hero in the local matches, but next Thursday night the local promoters will present a pair of heroes who will fight it out on the up and up.

Middlekauff will have a small weight advantage over Kelly, the Floridian weighing 225 pounds to Ernest's 212. That probably won't be as much advantage as Bill's long legs and arms. Middlekauff towers well over six feet and his long legs make a powerful weapon with scissors holds. He also uses a "drop kick," made famous by Joe Savoldi, to subdue his opponents. In fact, it was that drop kick which beat Tommy Marvin, top-notch heavyweight, in straight falls in the main event of last week's match.

Kelly also won in straight falls last week, disposing of Tex Morgan handily, despite the fact that Morgan had almost 50 pounds in weight advantage. The Tennessecan is well liked here, being a fast, clever grappler who always gives the villains and heroes alike a real tussle.

Both boys are young and fast, and each is a clever performer. Each has plenty of supporters here and they're expected to give the fans a big run for thir money Thursday night.

It has been announced that the winner of the match will receive 22 1-2 per cent of the gate, with the loser getting 17 1-2 per cent. With this difference in the purses, the promoters expect a real battle, as both boys like to pull down the big end of the gate.

The promoters have guaranteed that it will be a scientific battle and a big crowd is expected to turn out for the card.

It was also announced yesterday that two rough boys would be booked for the semi-final match, to offset the scientific main event. The promoters are attempting to get Hank Mteheney, the Missouri meanie, as one of the semi-final attractions.

The main event will be the usual best-two-out-of-three falls, two-hour time limit affair.

RAYVILLE BATTLES MANGHAM TO TIE

RAYVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The Rayville Hornets and the Mangham Dragons battled to a scoreless tie in their annual battle Friday. The game was a hard-fought struggle throughout, with the Mangham boys having a slight edge over the Hornets. Both teams made gains on end runs, but the Drgaons had a short pass over the line that was very effective.

Neither team was able to do much through the middle of the line. Rayville had the best of the punting, as Captain Meadors pushed the Dragons back time after time, with his long, high punts. The Hornets put up a great defensive battle, but their offensive work was handicapped by a crippled backfield.

Most of the game was played in mid-field, with neither team getting closer than the 20-yard line. Mangham made the greatest threat when they had the ball on Rayville's 25-yard line, with a first down, as the half ended. The Hornets reached Mangham's 28-yard line once and the 20 once, but lost the ball on downs each time.

Each team had several outstanding players. Mangham had a great tackle in Tillman, who also shifted to end and received several passes, while Rayville's captain, Meadors, played a bang-up game at tackle. Savage of Rayville and D. Booth of Mangham lived up to their advance notices as great backs, but Piro of Mangham played the best all-around game. He passed, punted, blocked and tackled better than any of the backs, besides making several good runs. Meeks and Greer of Rayville, handicapped with leg injuries, managed to play good games, but not up to their usual standards. O'Neal, at quarter turned in a good game for the Hornets, while the two Hornet ends, Nickols and Wiggington, played their best games.

STANFORD UPSETS WASHINGTON, 6-0

SEATTLE, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The aces and kings of the Stanford "Cards," particularly James "Monk" Moscrip and all-American Bobby Grayson, "set" the University of Washington at football today, 6 to 0, before 30,000 spectators. It was a bitter loss for Washington, who had been charging for Pacific Coast honors and a Rose Bowl bid.

Moscrip, big Cardinal end, provided the winning points for Stanford by booting two field goals in the first period after Grayson had placed him in position for the long range shots.

MAROONS SHADE XAVIER, 7 TO 0

Mississippi State Pushed To Beat Surprisingly Strong Foes

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A surprisingly strong Xavier university threw a scare into Major Ralph Sasse's Mississippi State Maroons today but the southerners managed to trim the Musketeers, 7 to 0, by virtue of a seventy-one yard drive in the third quarter.

The Maroons' running attack functioned brilliantly at all times, but their passes bogged down when a score was needed. Xavier, primed for a defensive game, could do little with the Maroon line on the offense, but its passes forced Mississippi to display all its defensive power to stand off two goal line thrusts.

The Maroons piled up 278 yards from running plays and 105 yards by passes against a Xavier net of no yards gained from running plays and 186 through the air. Mississippi made 22 first downs and Xavier eight.

Mississippi's only sustained drive came shortly after the third quarter opened. Taking the ball on their own 29, the southerners drove 71 yards for the only score of the game, principally because of the ball-toting of Bobby Thames, fleet quarterback from Wesson, Miss. Fred Hight, junior halfback, dove over the line from the two-yard line for the touchdown.

CHOUDRANT LOSES TO JUNCTION CITY

CHOUDRANT, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The Choudrant Aggies completed their home schedule by losing to the Junction City Dragons, 14-0, here Friday. Both touchdowns were made on forward passes in the second and third quarters.

The Aggies threatened several times but were unable to furnish the necessary drive when it would have meant a touchdown. The half ended with the ball on the Dragons' one-yard line in possession of the Aggies. They threatened only once in the third and last quarters and lost their chance on a fumble.

The Aggies are idle next week-end but will meet the Ferriday team November 8 at Ferriday.

NEBRASKA HALTS OKLAHOMA, 19-0

RICE TROUNCES TEXAS, 28 TO 19

Owls Protect Early Lead To Score Convincing Win Over Longhorns

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Rice institute showed a brilliant comeback today by toppling a fighting University of Texas team, 28 to 19, in a Southwest conference game that kept 30,000 frenzied fans on their feet shrieking.

Rice scored within a few minutes of the opening kickoff when Nicholls, center, recovered a Texas fumble on the Longhorn 25, and repeated a few minutes later with a sustained drive from its 40 yard line.

Texas tallied in the second after recovering a fumbled punt on Rice's 9 yard line. The third was scoreless save for a perfect kick from placement from the 15 yard line by John Sylvester, Rice end.

It remained for the fourth period to jolt the huge crowd to its feet. Rice drew first blood when Wallace whirled around Texas' left end for 15 from the 34 yard line and Vickers, a substitute back, started around end but cut back through the secondary to go over almost untoched.

Texas returned to the fray with zest. After three plays and a 15-yard Rice penalty, Jurecka dropped a 27-yard pass into Harris von Zandt's arms across the Rice goal.

LAKE PROVIDENCE WALLOPS FOREST

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—With Lightsey leaping high to receive Bryce's long passes and tearing away from tacklers to dash across the goal line, Coach Morman's Lake Providence Panthers hit their stride here Friday to swamp Forest, 52 to 0.

Lightsey completed four passes for a total gain of 120 yards and two were for touchdowns.

Bryce scored one touchdown on a sweeping end run from midfield, another on an intercepted pass and two on line smashes.

Malcolm Lightsey, a 175 pounder, kicked off, caught passes, threw opponents for many losses, blocked, and occasionally punted to prove his versatility. Local and visiting critics pronounced him the outstanding end developed here since Bill King, all-state selection some years ago.

MICHIGAN WHIPS COLUMBIA, 19-7

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The university of Michigan's big football team defeated the light Columbia Lions 19 to 7 today at Baker field before a near capacity crowd of 34,000. The invaders, playing in New York for the first time, put the game on ice in the first five minutes of play on touchdowns by Smithers and Everhardus.

GREENIES STAGE LATE DRIVE TO TROUNCE TIGERS

By Sam S. Farrington
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Flashing some of its early season brilliance, Tulane's Green Wave rolled over a fighting but pitifully inferior band of mountaineers from the University of the South, 33 to 0, before 10,000 persons here today.

After two periods of ragged, listless football typical of their performances against Auburn, Florida and Minnesota, the Greenies struck their stride in the last half and dazzled the lighter Sewanee eleven with deceptive running and well executed laterals.

Coach Ted Cox, pointing for the intersectional clash with Colgate next Saturday, used 50 men today, grouped into three lines and four backfield combinations, all of which clicked with equal success.

Captain Barney Mintz, hard running Tulane triple threat back, was held out of today's fray in order that he might be in top shape for the battle with Andy Kerr's Red Raiders. All other Tulane regulars saw service today and gave a good account of themselves.

Tulane's first score came mid-way of the opening period after Billy Henderson had advanced the ball to Sewanee's five-yard line on two brilliant runs of 30 and 15 yards. Thames went over for the touchdown.

The Greenies counted again in the second period, Big John Andrews going over after a series of passes. Dick Watson tallied again for Tulane in the third quarter after leading a drive from midfield.

The Wave's final markers came in the last quarter as the result of a perfectly executed lateral that was good for 30 yards, with Al Flettrich substitute back, scoring, and a pass, Odom to Ary that was good for 19 yards.

Tulane made good three of its five attempts for point after touchdown and marked up 20 first downs against two for Sewanee.

Montgomery, Blair, Poage and Gillespie turned in good performances for the losers.

Pair Of Touchdowns In Second Period Gives Ramblers Victory

By Dillon Graham
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—The Ramblers of Notre Dame, roaring along the gridiron trail that may lead to their first unbeaten season since Rockne's days, struck with two swift, sudden aerial blows today to whip Navy 14 to 0. A crowd of around 65,000, largest in the east this year, witnessed the Irish's clean-cut victory.

The triumph, Notre Dame's fifth of the campaign, not only kept the "Fighting Irish" in the battle for the national championship, but allowed them to avenge the setbacks the Midshipmen have handed them in two previous contests.

After the Sailors had thrown up a stout defense to halt Notre Dame's opening challenge in the first period, a drive that was brought up short within the shadow of the Midshipmen's goal, the Ramblers, wearing their famous green shirts for the first time this year, unloosed a rushing attack that swept the Navy back, slowly but surely, to the Notre Dame 45.

Then Andy Pilney, a 175-pound halfback from Chicago, started out around right end and the Sailors moved in to hem him. Suddenly he turned and whipped a long diagonal pass to Francis Joseph Gaul, the Raiders' No. 2 quarterback, who was lying out near the sidelines.

Gaul snagged the pass in the clear, wheeled and sped on across the goal. Kenneth Stilley, a reserve tackle, booted a perfect placement for the extra point.

Still startled by the swiftness of Notre Dame's surprise blow through the air, the Sailors were unable to get their anti-aircraft defense arranged and four short minutes later the Ramblers tallied again.

It was the same Pilney youngster who started the second scoring maneuver as well as ended it. He grabbed a Navy punt on his 35 and wriggled and side stepped his way back to the Tars' 39. From the 25 he tossed another pass to Gaul. But Gaul stumbled and fell almost in the clear on the 10-yard line after he had speared the throw.

Down to the three went the Ramblers in two bucks and, as Navy braced for another shock through the line, Pilney lobbed a short toss directly over center to Mike Layden, brother of the Notre Dame coach. Stilley again kicked the extra point from placement.

That ended the scoring, although both teams threatened several times.

The lineups:

Notre Dame	Pos.	Navy
Millener	LE	Fike

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A 46-yard touchdown dash by Capt. Nat Machlowitz and extra point booted by Salvatore Somma, the blocking halfback, in the fourth quarter, gave undefeated New York university a 7-6 triumph here today over Georgetown's "G-Men."

By Harry Grayson

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—The case of the unhappy James Emory Foxx is not likely to become a new symbol for frustration in America, supplanting that of Evangeline and Gabriel, who spent 40 years looking for one another among the pralines of New Orleans.

Foxx's services are much to valuable and his salary a bit high for him to be permitted to pine for new playmates and surroundings.

The fact that Foxx is dissatisfied in Philadelphia and has given up on the city and Connie Mack is as good a reason as any for suspecting that the all-round star of the Athletics will appear in strange livery in 1936, most likely in that of the immensely wealthy Boston Red Sox.

Foxx made the world series trip with Thomas Austin Yawkey, the young man of many millions who owns the Hub entry; Edward Trowbridge Collins, his general manager; and Joe Cronin, his field marshal and shortstop. Yawkey, Foxx and Collins are close personal friends. Foxx and Collins formerly resided next door to each other just outside of Philadelphia. They hunt together.

Upon leaving for his home in San Francisco, Cronin hinted that a large transaction with the Athletics was on—one that should enable the Red Sox to cop the plums in 1936.

Yawkey would pay the Athletics a fancy figure for Foxx, the longest-distance right-hand hitter of all time, but believes that the $200,000 asked by Mack would be more wisely invested in a flock of young players.

When Mack placed the $200,000 tag on Foxx, Yawkey didn't bring up the question of the transfer of Roger Cramer, Frank Higgins, Bob Johnson, other Athletics mentioned as having a good chance of getting reprieves in Philadelphia in a deal with the Red Sox.

However, as Foxx explains, the Philadelphia club was $250,000 in debt at the start of the past season and lost another $200,000. Night baseball may help, but it seems that the city has soured on the Macks and the club, which isn't going any place without pitching.

The supposition is that Mack will bail out himself and the Shibes by disposing of Foxx and another one or two.

Foxx points out that the customers are aboard him in Philadelphia, despite his heroic exploits, and that there is little satisfaction in performing with a tail-end outfit after having been a member of the pennant-gathering aggregations of 1929, '30, and '31. He is the only one of the old Athletics left, by the way.

Fenway His Favorite

Foxx is not exceptionally fond of Yawkey and his management, but Fenway park is his favorite ball yard. He believes that he would stand an excellent chance of breaking Babe Ruth's major league mark of 60 home runs in playing 77 games at Fenway park, with its comparatively short left field wall.

Foxx asserts that his being with the Athletics costs him about $12,000 a year. He gets $18,000. He'd be a $30,000-a-year man with either the Red Sox or New York Yankees.

"It isn't Mack's fault. He's paying me all he can afford to," relates the Sold Man of Sudlersville, with a sardonic grin.

Foxx believes that Cramer, Higgins and himself could help the fourth-place Red Sox of 1935 to a pennant next season.

Foxx, who is only 28, is an amazing ball player. He looks after first base flawlessly, is a gifted second baseman, a shortstop far above the average, and is a perennial choice for third base whenever an all-star American league team is nominated. His throwing makes him an outfielder for whom any manager would practically give his owner's franchise.

At Home Anywhere

Foxx came to the Athletics a decade ago, as a youthful catcher. Last spring Mack, sorely pressed for receivers since the sale of Mickey Cochrane, sent Jimmy behind the bat again and old-timers pronounced him the daddy of the maskmen.

Nick Altrock, who chucked them up to the game's most glamorous backstops, says that if Foxx had played in the days of Bresnahan, Kling, Schreck, and Archer those immortals of the large mitt would have been substitutes to him.

Foxx is an excellent pitcher. He has a fast ball faster than any regulation hurler's in either big league, as anyone who saw him pitch for last winter's barnstormers in Japan will tell you.

With the exception of Ruth no man ever hit a baseball harder than Foxx. No man, save Ruth, ever hit as many home runs. Many consider Foxx's feat of hitting 58 home runs in 1932 more phenomenal than Ruth's 60. The Babe, a left-hand hitter, was favored by facing the majority of right-hand pitchers and the majority of shorter right-field fences.

While there never will be much balance in a circuit in which weaker arrays peddle luminaries to stronger ones, it is quite natural for such an outstanding player as James Emory Foxx to be annoyed at wasting his talent in such a hopeless set-up as the current one in Philadelphia.

Bobby Jones Says

One of the things which more commonly worries the average golfer is what to do with his left thumb. From several letters which have recently come in there is evidence of any number of ways in which it can cause trouble.

Most beginners instructively grasp a club in such a way that the most natural location for the left thumb is squarely upon the top of the shaft, usually with little more than the tip touching the leather. This position is made possible because the proper diagonal relation to the palm of the hand is not given to the shaft. The left thumb on top tends to restrict the backswing in its upper area, and puts an unnecessary strain upon the hands. In order to complete the backswing, the thumb must either bend straight back or slide along the shaft. The first can be done only to a limited extent, and the second causes an immediate loss of control.

Another common mistake is made when the thumb is flattened along its entire length upon the top of the shaft. When this is done the left hand becomes weak, and the grip, as a whole so utterly bad that its faults are too numerous to point out.

In my opinion, the best location for the left thumb is on the right side of the shaft, about 30 to 45 degrees from the top. The contact with the handle of the club should extend along the entire length of the end joint. The V thus formed between thumb and forefinger will point approximately toward the right shoulder.

After passing over the middle joint of the index finger in entering the left hand, the club should touch the palm of the hand along the bases of the fingers. Being gripped mainly by the fingers the normal angle between the shaft and the left arm is properly accounted for. When the grip is made in this way, it will be noticed that the tip of the left thumb and the crook of the index finger are about on a line upon opposite sides of the shaft.

Many players, a few really good ones, wrap the left thumb around the shaft, allowing it to remain outside the right hand. My objections to this are two—first, that the thumb is thus made useless as a control factor, and second, that by interposing itself between the two hands it detracts from the possible compactness of the grip. The grip certainly looks and feels like more of a unit when the left thumb has been fitted underneath the palm of the right hand.

The left thumb is important. It is obvious that its location must affect the way in which the entire hand is placed upon the club. So well is this recognized that a professional instructor, in speaking of one of his members or a player he has observed, may often say simply, "He has a bad left thumb." One may know from this about what to expect.

ALABAMA SCORES LATE TO DEFEAT GEORGIA, 17 TO 7

Crimson Tide Spoils Bulldogs' Record With Spectacular Victory

By Kenneth Gregory
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

SANFORD STADIUM, ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 26.—Into the sodden turf of Sanford stadium, with dusk creeping over the field and the score deadlocked, Alabama's Crimson Tide rallied spectacularly to old time form today to bury Georgia's unconquered Bulldogs under a 17 to 7 score in a traditional gridiron battle.

Fighting doggedly for three periods, with the count standing at 7 to 7, the Rose Bowl champions capitalized on awaited breaks to score a field goal and add a touchdown in the waning minutes to annihilate the previously unbeaten and untied Georgia gridders.

Georgia scored first, midway the opening period, on a pass from John Bond to Al Minot that netted 43 yards, Minot catching the startling heave across the goal line after Georgia had been given the ball on the Tide's 32 because of interference on a forward pass. Bond place-kicked the extra point.

With the Tide line opening up holes and Alabama showing the first initiative, Riley Smith paved the way for a touchdown with a 24-yard off-tackle thrust to Georgia's 22. An end around play, with Bryant carrying the ball, gave Alabama first down on the eleven. Riley added 6, and Young Boozer, a snake-hipped runner, slashed off tackle on third down for a touchdown and Smith added the extra point.

Both teams started the fourth period with ferocious attacks, opening up with all ammunition in an effort to break the deadlock.

Georgia shot the works early as John Bond raced 25 yards around end to Alabama's 21, and Glen Johnson picked up 10 more to the 11. Again, Johnson picked up five, but Georgia was penalized 15 yards and after three plays Alabama took the ball when a pass over the goal line was incomplete.

Alabama picked up nine yards in three line thrusts and kicked and here came the break. The punt rolled out of bounds on Georgia's 41 and Alabama took the ball on its own 41 on a clipping penalty.

Play continued in midfield momentarily, but Kay Francis, a defense center bulwark all afternoon who batted down three Georgia passes, intercepted a pass from Bond on Georgia's 47. On a fake, Riley handed the ball to Rhordanz who raced 16-yards to Georgia's 26. Georgia was penalized 15 to the 11, and on fourth down Riley Smith dropped back and booted a perfect placement from the Georgia 16 to give the Tide a 10 to 7 lead.

There was 2 1-2 minutes to play as the teams lined up for the kick-off with Georgia receiving.

After taking the kick-off Georgia gambled with passes, and on an attempted aerial toss, Al Anderson fumbled and Alabama recovered on Georgia's nine-yard line, Ryba, a substitute guard falling on the ball. Bryant skirted end for eight yards on a familiar Alabama end around and on the next play Smith scored on a quarterback sneak.

The game was witnessed by 25,000 spectators.

Choudrant, one of the leading Class "B" teams of the state, will be in Ferriday for a game on November 8. The next date, November 15, is open and the coaches would like to hear from teams in this section interested in closing for that date.

Winner's Bulldogs will be played on November 25 and the final game of the season is the contest with the Waterproof high school Tigers in Ferriday on Thanksgiving day.

KELLY MEETS MIDDLEKAUFF AT STADIUM THURSDAY

FORMER FOOTBALL STARS BOOKED IN SCIENTIFIC MATCH

Ernest And Bill Agree To Wrestle On Up And Up In Main Event

Two former football stars, both of whom performed in the old Southern conference, will tangle next Thursday night in the main event of the weekly wrestling card at Roosevelt stadium. Ernest Kelly, popular local favorite, who made a name for himself as a lineman for the University of Tennessee, will meet Bill Middlekauff, former all-America fullback from Florida U.

Although Kelly and Middlekauff never faced each other on the gridiron, there seems to be quite a bit of rivalry between them in wrestling circles. Both lay claim to the stadium championship, despite the fact that each has lost here.

Both Kelly and Middlekauff have agreed to wrestle strictly according to Hoyle, which means that the fans will enjoy a real scientific match for a change. Usually there's one villain and one hero in the local matches, but next Thursday night the local promoters will present a pair of heroes who will fight it out on the up and up.

Middlekauff will have a small weight advantage over Kelly, the Floridian weighing 225 pounds to Ernest's 212. That probably won't be as much advantage as Bill's long legs and arms. Middlekauff towers well over six feet and his long legs make a powerful weapon with scissors holds. He also uses a "drop kick," made famous by Joe Savoldi, to subdue his opponents. In fact, it was that drop kick which beat Tommy Marvin, top-notch heavyweight, in straight falls in the main event of last week's match.

Kelly also won in straight falls last week, disposing of Tex Morgan handily, despite the fact that Morgan had almost 50 pounds in weight advantage. The Tennessean is well liked here, being a fast, clever grappler who always gives the villains and heroes alike a real tussle.

Both boys are young and fast, and each is a clever performer. Each has plenty of supporters here and they're expected to give the fans a big run for thir money Thursday night.

It has been announced that the winner of the match will receive 22 1-2 per cent of the gate, with the loser getting 17 1-2 per cent. With this difference in the purses, the promoters expect a real battle, as both boys like to pull down the big end of the gate.

The promoters have guaranteed that it will be a scientific battle and a big crowd is expected to turn out for the card.

It was also announced yesterday that two rough boys would be booked for the semi-final match, to offset the scientific main event. The promoters are attempting to get Hank Mteheney, the Missouri meanie, as one of the semi-final attractions.

The main event will be the usual best-two-out-of-three falls, two-hour time limit affair.

RAYVILLE BATTLES MANGHAM TO TIE

RAYVILLE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The Rayville Hornets and the Mangham Dragons battled to a scoreless tie in their annual battle Friday. The game was a hard-fought struggle throughout, with the Mangham boys having a slight edge over the Hornets. Both teams made gains on end runs, but the Drgaons had a short pass over the line that was very effective.

Neither team was able to do much through the middle of the line. Rayville had the best of the punting, as Captain Meadors pushed the Dragons back time after time, with his long, high punts. The Hornets put up a great defensive battle, but their offensive work was handicapped by a crippled backfield.

Most of the game was played in mid-field, with neither team getting closer than the 20-yard line. Mangham made the greatest threat when they had the ball on Rayville's 25-yard line, with a first down, as the half ended. The Hornets reached Mangham's 28-yard line once and the 20 once, but lost the ball on downs each time.

Each team had several outstanding players. Mangham had a great tackle in Tillman, who also shifted to end and received several passes, while Rayville's captain, Meadors, played a bang-up game at tackle. Savage of Rayville and D. Booth of Mangham lived up to their advance notices as great backs, but Piro of Mangham played the best all-around game. He passed, punted, blocked and tackled better than any of the backs, besides making several good runs. Meeks and Greer of Rayville, handicapped with leg injuries, managed to play good games, but not up to their usual standards. O'Neal, at quarter turned in a good game for the Hornets, while the two Hornet ends, Nickols and Wiggington, played their best games.

STANFORD UPSETS WASHINGTON, 6-0

SEATTLE, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The aces and kings of the Stanford "Cards," particularly James "Monk" Moscrip and all-American Bobby Grayson, "set" the University of Washington at football today, 6 to 0, before 30,000 spectators. It was a bitter loss for Washington, who had been charging for Pacific Coast honors and a Rose Bowl bid.

Moscrip, big Cardinal end, provided the winning points for Stanford by booting two field goals in the first period after Grayson had placed him in position for the long range shots.

MAROONS SHADE XAVIER, 7 TO 0

Mississippi State Pushed To Beat Surprisingly Strong Foes

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A surprisingly strong Xavier university threw a scare into Major Ralph Sasse's Mississippi State Maroons today but the southerners managed to trim the Musketeers, 7 to 0, by virtue of a seventy-one yard drive in the third quarter.

The Maroons' running attack functioned brilliantly at all times, but their passes bogged down when a score was needed. Xavier, primed for a defensive game, could do little with the Maroon line on the offense, but its passes forced Mississippi to display all its defensive power to stand off two goal line thrusts.

The Maroons piled up 278 yards from running plays and 105 yards by passes against a Xavier net of no yards gained from running plays and 186 through the air. Mississippi made 22 first downs and Xavier eight.

Mississippi's only sustained drive came shortly after the third quarter opened. Taking the ball on their own 29, the southerners drove 71 yards for the only score of the game, principally because of the ball-toting of Bobby Thames, fleet quarterback from Wesson, Miss. Fred Hight, junior halfback, dove over the line from the two-yard line for the touchdown.

The summary:

Miss. State.	Pos.	Xavier.

CHOUDRANT LOSES TO JUNCTION CITY

CHOUDRANT, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—The Choudrant Aggies completed their home schedule by losing to the Junction City Dragons, 14-0, here Friday. Both touchdowns were made on forward passes in the second and third quarters.

The Aggies threatened several times but were unable to furnish the necessary drive when it would have meant a touchdown. The half ended with the ball on the Dragons' one-yard line in possession of the Aggies. They threatened only once in the third and last quarters and lost their chance on a fumble.

The Aggies are idle next week-end but will meet the Ferriday team November 8 at Ferriday.

NEBRASKA HALTS OKLAHOMA, 19-0

RICE TROUNCES TEXAS, 28 TO 19

Owls Protect Early Lead To Score Convincing Win Over Longhorns

AUSTIN, Texas, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Rice institute showed a brilliant comeback today by toppling a fighting University of Texas team, 28 to 19, in a Southwest conference game that kept 30,000 frenzied fans on their feet shrieking.

Rice scored within a few minutes of the opening kickoff when Nicholls, center, recovered a Texas fumble on the Longhorn 25, and repeated a few minutes later with a sustained drive from its 40 yard line.

Texas tallied in the second after recovering a fumbled punt on Rice's 9 yard line. The third was scoreless save for a perfect kick from placement from the 15 yard line by John Sylvester, Rice end.

It remained for the fourth period to jolt the huge crowd to its feet. Rice drew first blood when Wallace whirled around Texas' left end for 15 from the 34 yard line and Vickers, a substitute back, started around end but cut back through the secondary to go over almost untouched.

Texas returned to the fray with zest. After three plays and a 15-yard Rice penalty, Jurecka dropped a 27-yard pass into Harris von Zandt's arms across the Rice goal.

LAKE PROVIDENCE WALLOPS FOREST

LAKE PROVIDENCE, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—With Lightsey leaping high to receive Bryce's long passes and tearing away from tacklers to dash across the goal line, Coach Morman's Lake Providence Panthers hit their stride here Friday to swamp Forest, 52 to 0.

Lightsey completed four passes for a total gain of 120 yards and two were for touchdowns.

Bryce scored one touchdown on a sweeping end run from midfield, another on an intercepted pass and two on line smashes.

Malcolm Lightsey, a 175 pounder, kicked off, caught passes, threw opponents for many losses, blocked, and occasionally punted to prove his versatility. Local and visiting critics pronounced him the outstanding end developed here since Bill King, all-state selection some years ago.

MICHIGAN WHIPS COLUMBIA, 19-7

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The university of Michigan's big football team defeated the light Columbia Lions 19 to 7 today at Baker field before a near capacity crowd of 34,000. The invaders, playing in New York for the first time, put the game on ice in the first five minutes of play on touchdowns by Smithers and Everhardus.

GREENIES STAGE LATE DRIVE TO TROUNCE TIGERS

By Sam S. Farrington
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—Flashing some of its early season brilliance, Tulane's Green Wave rolled over a fighting but pitifully inferior band of mountaineers from the University of the South, 33 to 0, before 10,000 persons here today.

After two periods of ragged, listless football typical of their performances against Auburn, Florida and Minnesota, the Greenies struck their stride in the last half and dazzled the lighter Sewanee eleven with deceptive running and well executed laterals.

Coach Ted Cox, pointing for the intersectional clash with Colgate next Saturday, used 50 men today, grouped into three lines and four backfield combinations, all of which clicked with equal success.

Captain Barney Mintz, hard running Tulane triple threat back, was held out of today's fray in order that he might be in top shape for the battle with Andy Kerr's Red Raiders. All other Tulane regulars saw service today and gave a good account of themselves.

Tulane's first score came mid-way of the opening period after Billy Henderson had advanced the ball to Sewanee's five-yard line on two brilliant runs of 30 and 15 yards. Thames went over for the touchdown.

The Greenies counted again in the second period. Big John Andrews going over after a series of passes. Dick Watson tallied again for Tulane in the third quarter after leading a drive from midfield.

The Wave's final markers came in the last quarter as the result of a perfectly executed lateral that was good for 30 yards, with Al Flettrich substitute back, scoring, and a pass, Odom to Ary that was good for 19 yards.

Tulane made good three of its five attempts for point after touchdown and marked up 20 first downs against two for Sewanee.

Montgomery, Blair, Poage and Gillespie turned in good performances for the losers.

Pair Of Touchdowns In Second Period Gives Ramblers Victory

By Dillon Graham
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

MUNICIPAL STADIUM, BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—The Ramblers of Notre Dame, roaring along the gridiron trail that may lead to their first unbeaten season since Rockne's days, struck with two swift, sudden aerial blows today to whip Navy 14 to 0. A crowd of around 65,000, largest in the east this year, witnessed the Irish's clean-cut victory.

The triumph, Notre Dame's fifth of the campaign, not only kept the "Fighting Irish" in the battle for the national championship, but allowed them to avenge the setbacks the Midshipmen have handed them in two previous contests.

After the Sailors had thrown up a stout defense to halt Notre Dame's opening challenge in the first period, a drive that was brought up short within the shadow of the Midshipmen's goal, the Ramblers, wearing their famous green shirts for the first time this year, unloosed a rushing attack that swept the Navy back, slowly but surely, to the Notre Dame 45.

Then Andy Pilney, a 175-pound halfback from Chicago, started out around right end and the Sailors moved in to hem him. Suddenly he turned and whipped a long diagonal pass to Francis Joseph Gaul, the Raiders' No. 2 quarterback, who was lying out near the sidelines.

Gaul snagged the pass in the clear, wheeled and sped on across the goal. Kenneth Stilley, a reserve tackle, booted a perfect placement for the extra point.

Still startled by the swiftness of Notre Dame's surprise blow through the air, the Sailors were unable to get their anti-aircraft defense arranged and four short minutes later the Ramblers tallied again.

It was the same Pilney youngster who started the second scoring maneuver as well as ended it. He grabbed a Navy punt on his 35 and wriggled and side stepped his way back to the Tars' 39. From the 25 he tossed another pass to Gaul. But Gaul stumbled and fell almost in the clear on the 10-yard line after he had speared the throw.

Down to the three went the Ramblers in two bucks and, as Navy braced for another shock through the line, Pilney lobbed a short toss directly over center to Mike Layden, brother of the Notre Dame coach. Stilley again kicked the extra point from placement.

That ended the scoring, although both teams threatened several times.

The lineups:

Notre Dame	Pos.	Navy
Millener	LE	Fike
Pfefferle	LT	Ferrara
Lauter	LG	Cole
Solari	C	Robertshaw
Martin	RG	Morrell
Kopczak	RT	Hesse
Peters	RE	Soucek
Fromhart	QB	King
Shakespeare	LH	Pratt
Wojcihovski	RH	Evans
Elser	FB	Schmidt

Score by quarters:

Notre Dame	0	14	0	0	—14

YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—(AP)—A 46-yard touchdown dash by Capt. Nat Machlowitz and extra point booted by Salvatore Somma, the blocking halfback, in the fourth quarter, gave undefeated New York university a 7-6 triumph here today over Georgetown's "G-Men."

By HARRY GRAYSON

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—The case of the unhappy James Emory Foxx is not likely to become a new symbol for frustration in America, supplanting that of Evangeline and Gabriel, who spent 40 years looking for one another among the pralines of New Orleans.

Foxx's services are much to valuable and his salary a bit high for him to be permitted to pine for new playmates and surroundings.

The fact that Foxx is dissatisfied in Philadelphia and has given up on the city and Connie Mack is as good a reason as any for suspecting that the all-round star of the Athletics will appear in strange livery in 1936, most likely in that of the immensely wealthy Boston Red Sox.

Foxx made the world series trip with Thomas Austin Yawkey, the young man of many millions who owns the Hub entry; Edward Trowbridge Collins, his general manager; and Joe Cronin, his field marshal and shortstop. Yawkey, Foxx and Collins are close personal friends. Foxx and Collins formerly resided next door to each other just outside of Philadelphia. They hunt together.

Upon leaving for his home in San Francisco, Cronin hinted that a large transaction with the Athletics was on—one that should enable the Red Sox to cop the plums in 1936.

Yawkey would pay the Athletics a fancy figure for Foxx, the longest-distance right-hand hitter of all time, but believes that the $200,000 asked by Mack would be more wisely invested in a flock of young players.

When Mack placed the $200,000 tag on Foxx, Yawkey didn't bring up the question of the transfer of Roger Cramer, Frank Higgins, Bob Johnson, other Athletics mentioned as having a good chance of getting reprieves in Philadelphia in a deal with the Red Sox.

However, as Foxx explains, the Philadelphia club was $250,000 in debt at the start of the past season and lost another $200,000. Night baseball may help, but it seems that the city has soured on the Macks and the club, which isn't going any place without pitching.

The supposition is that Mack will bail out himself and the Shibes by disposing of Foxx and another one or two.

Foxx points out that the customers are aboard him in Philadelphia, despite his heroic exploits, and that there is little satisfaction in performing with a tail-end outfit after having been a member of the pennant-gathering aggregations of 1929, '30, and '31. He is the only one of the old Athletics left, by the way.

Fenway His Favorite

Foxx is not exceptionally fond of Yawkey and his management, but Fenway park is his favorite ball yard. He believes that he would stand an excellent chance of breaking Babe Ruth's major league mark of 60 home runs in playing 77 games at Fenway park, with its comparatively short left field wall.

Foxx asserts that his being with the Athletics costs him about $12,000 a year. He gets $18,000. He'd be a $30,000-a-year man with either the Red Sox or New York Yankees.

"It isn't Mack's fault. He's paying me all he can afford to," relates the Sold Man of Sudlersville, with a sardonic grin.

Foxx believes that Cramer, Higgins and himself could help the fourth-place Red Sox of 1935 to a pennant next season.

Foxx, who is only 28, is an amazing ball player. He looks after first base flawlessly, is a gifted second baseman, a shortstop far above the average, and is a perennial choice for third base whenever an all-star American league team is nominated. His throwing makes him an outfielder for whom any manager would practically give his owner's franchise.

At Home Anywhere

Foxx came to the Athletics a decade ago, as a youthful catcher. Last spring Mack, sorely pressed for receivers since the sale of Mickey Cochrane, sent Jimmy behind the bat again and old-timers pronounced him the daddy of the maskmen.

Nick Altrock, who chucked them up to the game's most glamorous backstops, says that if Foxx had played in the days of Bresnahan, Kling, Schreck, and Archer those immortals of the large mitt would have been substitutes to him.

Foxx is an excellent pitcher. He has a fast ball faster than any regulation hurler's in either big league, as anyone who saw him pitch for last winter's barnstormers in Japan will tell you.

With the exception of Ruth no man ever hit a baseball harder than Foxx. No man, save Ruth, ever hit as many home runs. Many consider Foxx's feat of hitting 58 home runs in 1932 more phenomenal than Ruth's 60. The Babe, a left-hand hitter, was favored by facing the majority of right-hand pitchers and the majority of shorter right-field fences.

While there never will be much balance in a circuit in which weaker arrays peddle luminaries to stronger ones, it is quite natural for such an outstanding player as James Emory Foxx to be annoyed at wasting his talent in such a hopeless set-up as the current one in Philadelphia.

Bobby Jones Says

One of the things which more commonly worries the average golfer is what to do with his left thumb. From several letters which have recently come in there is evidence of any number of ways in which it can cause trouble.

Most beginners instructively grasp a club in such a way that the most natural location for the left thumb is squarely upon the top of the shaft, usually with little more than the tip touching the leather. This position is made possible because the proper diagonal relation to the palm of the hand is not given to the shaft. The left thumb on top tends to restrict the backswing in its upper area, and puts an unnecessary strain upon the hands. In order to complete the backswing, the thumb must either bend straight back or slide along the shaft. The first can be done only to a limited extent, and the second causes an immediate loss of control.

Another common mistake is made when the thumb is flattened along its entire length upon the top of the shaft. When this is done the left hand becomes weak, and the grip, as a whole so utterly bad that its faults are too numerous to point out.

In my opinion, the best location for the left thumb is on the right side of the shaft, about 30 to 45 degrees from the top. The contact with the handle of the club should extend along the entire length of the end joint. The V thus formed between thumb and forefinger will point approximately toward the right shoulder.

After passing over the middle joint of the index finger in entering the left hand, the club should touch the palm of the hand along the bases of the fingers. Being gripped mainly by the fingers the normal angle between the shaft and the left arm is properly accounted for. When the grip is made in this way, it will be noticed that the tip of the left thumb and the crook of the index finger are about on a line upon opposite sides of the shaft.

Many players, a few really good ones, wrap the left thumb around the shaft, allowing it to remain outside the right hand. My objections to this are two—first, that the thumb is thus made useless as a control factor, and second, that by interposing itself between the two hands it detracts from the possible compactness of the grip. The grip certainly looks and feels like more of a unit when the left thumb has been fitted underneath the palm of the right hand.

The left thumb is important. It is obvious that its location must affect the way in which the entire hand is placed upon the club. So well is this recognized that a professional instructor, in speaking of one of his members or a player he has observed, may often say simply, "He has a bad left thumb." One may know from this about what to expect.

SANFORD STADIUM, ATHENS, Ga., Oct. 26—Into the sodden turf of Sanford stadium, with dusk creeping over the field and the score deadlocked, Alabama's Crimson Tide rallied spectacularly to old time form today to bury Georgia's unconquered Bulldogs under a 17 to 7 score in a traditional gridiron battle.

Fighting doggedly for three periods, with the count standing at 7 to 7, the Rose Bowl champions capitalized on awaited breaks to score a field goal and add a touchdown in the waning minutes to annihilate the previously unbeaten and untied Georgia gridders.

Georgia scored first, midway the opening period, on a pass from John Bond to Al Minot that netted 43 yards, Minot catching the startling heave across the goal line after Georgia had been given the ball on the Tide's 32 because of interference on a forward pass. Bond place-kicked the extra point.

With the Tide line opening up holes and Alabama showing the first initiative, Riley Smith paved the way for a touchdown with a 24-yard off-tackle thrust to Georgia's 22. An end around play, with Bryant carrying the ball, gave Alabama first down on the eleven. Riley added 6, and Young Boozer, a snake-hipped runner, slashed off tackle on third down for a touchdown and Smith added the extra point.

Both teams started the fourth period with ferocious attacks, opening up with all ammunition in an effort to break the deadlock.

Georgia shot the works early as John Bond raced 25 yards around end to Alabama's 21, and Glen Johnson picked up 10 more to the 11. Again, Johnson picked up five, but Georgia was penalized 15 yards and after three plays Alabama took the ball when a pass over the goal line was incomplete.

Alabama picked up nine yards in three line thrusts and kicked and here came the break. The punt rolled out of bounds on Georgia's 41 and Alabama took the ball on its own 41 on a clipping penalty.

Play continued in midfield momentarily, but Kay Francis, a defense center bulwark all afternoon who batted down three Georgia passes, intercepted a pass from Bond on Georgia's 47. On a fake, Riley handed the ball to Rhordanz who raced 16-yards to Georgia's 26. Georgia was penalized 15 to the 11, and on fourth down Riley Smith dropped back and booted a perfect placement from the Georgia 16 to give the Tide a 10 to 7 lead.

There was 2 1-2 minutes to play as the teams lined up for the kick-off with Georgia receiving.

After taking the kick-off Georgia gambled with passes, and on an attempted aerial toss, Al Anderson fumbled and Alabama recovered on Georgia's nine-yard line, Ryba, a substitute guard falling on the ball. Bryant skirted end for eight yards on a familiar Alabama end around and on the next play Smith scored on a quarterback sneak.

APPLICATION FOR GAS WELL PERMIT IS FILED

An application for permit to drill a gas well in the bed of the Ouachita river north of Sterlington, to be known as the "J. E. Farrell, state of Louisiana No. 10," has been filed with Lunsford E. Oliver, lieutenant colonel of the corps of engineers at Vicksburg.

HEALTH CLINIC IS IN BANK BUILDING

Health, Foot, And Solar Therapy Form Three Distinct Departments

The Health and Foot clinic, located in suite 312 of the Ouachita Bank building, has three distinct departments: health, foot and solar therapy.

It is under the direction of Dr. M. L. Graves, who has had 36 years' experience in health work and 20 years' experience in foot treatment. He graduated from college in 1900 and practiced in Monroe from 1906 to 1912, when he went to Denver because of his health. He returned to Monroe in 1929, at which time he resumed his practice.

"In the health department adjustments, scientific massage, pressure anaesthesia and posture exercises are given," Dr. Graves said. "Among other treatments diet in selected cases and personal exercises are outlined. Pressure anaesthesia is given for the relief of pains instead of morphine or sedatives and for the relief of nervousness. Fractured and dislocated bones are set. Backs are fixed.

"In the solar therapy department, very expensive equipment is used. A highly selective lens filters out and allows only the ultra-violet rays of the sun to come through. This is the distructive ray. It will remove tags, moles, papillae, vesicles, soft corns, epidermona, granuloma pyogenicum, warts, papules, pedicles, xanthoma, skin cancers, senile patches, blebs, ulcers, pustules, ringworm, neoplasms, raised birth marks, eczema patches and other raised skin blemishes.

"Athletes foot and Indian fire can be cured in one treatment without leaving a scar. All work is guaranteed."

"In the foot department, in-grown nails are removed. They are molded back into shape by my new method. Corns and bunions are relieved without pain or chance for infection.

"If calluses bother you, we will remove them and tell you how to never have another develop. We will give references if you desire."

"Dr. Edwards health shoes and Dr. Reed felt cushion shoes are used in correcting foot ailments."

"For all kinds of body work and general repairs, our shop is the most complete of its kind in the city," C. W. Boyce of Boyce-Kendall garage said. "Our equipment is the latest type, and we have gone to great expense to give a complete service to the people of Monroe."

Boyce-Kendall garage is located at 111 North Third street and specializes in wrecks of all kinds. A complete body department is located on the second floor of the establishment. There all metal work is straightened and painting is done. Boyce-Kendall features Duco paint finish on all automobiles. Two men are employed in this department and it is under the direction of Frank Eyres, who has long been identified with automobile body work in Monroe.

If the frame of a car needs straightening, Boyce-Kendall can do the work. The concern is equipped with the Bee-Line system for aligning and straightening axles and wheels. It corrects, shimmy, hard steering and tire wear. All this is done without heating the part to be straightened and it is more accurate than the old way.

The garage has an expert brake man who relines and adjusts all makes of brakes.

For those who require wrecker service the garage has excellent facilities to handle all kinds of jobs, Mr. Boyce said. A telephone call will bring quick service to a customer. The telephone number is 247.

The garage is conveniently located in the main business section of Monroe, making it easily available to those who have headquarters in the section.

Mr. Boyce said about $3,000 worth of equipment had been installed to give this complete automobile service.

INDUSTRY MAKES PLANT EXPANSION

$25,000,000 Program Is Completed In Ten Chevrolet Plants

M. E. Coyle, president of the Chevrolet company, revealed yesterday that the company has completed during the current year a $25,000,000 program of plant expansion, increasing the production capacity of the ten Chevrolet assembly plants in the United States by 25 per cent, and raising the capacity of the company's own manufacturing plants, devoted to the making of axles, engines, transmissions and other units, to enable them to keep pace with the enlarged assembly plants.

The expenditure of $25,000,000 was made for the erection and equipment of new buildings at assembly and manufacturing plants, and for the re-equipment and complete modernization of existing buildings. With few exceptions, most of the operations were undertaken and carried out without announcement to the public, the list of completed improvements given out today being the first publication of details of the program.

Announcement of the virtual completion of the company's 1935 expansion plans was made by Mr. Coyle to a group of newspaper automobile editors as incidental to his statement that all ten Chevrolet assembly plants have been changed over within the last several weeks to produce new models of the Master deluxe and Standard Chevrolets for 1936, to be introduced in November, and that the manufacturing plants and assembly plants are already producing the new cars.

Production is increasing daily, Mr. Coyle said, and the company will have built an ample supply of the new models to stock its 10,000 dealers with the 1936 cars before their introduction early next month, and to insure immediate delivery to retail purchasers on and after announcement day. Increased schedules have been set for November and December, in order to replenish dealers' stocks as rapidly as is necessary to provide for quick deliveries to purchasers.

While the great part of Chevrolet's expenditure of $25,000,000 was to attain increased capacity in preparation for an expected increase in demand during the coming year, Mr. Coyle declared that during the current year the company had carried out a comprehensive program of construction at assembly plants for the purpose of equalizing employment. This has been accomplished by providing greatly enlarged storage space at the plants, to receive and hold manufactured units till they are needed in assembly.

The installation of industrial motors and wiring of large industrial plants, sawmills, etc., are done by the local concern.

The concern is often called upon to overhaul, rewind and condition enormous motors and the public is invited to call at the plant and watch this interesting work. The address is 2019 DeSiard street, and the telephone number is 98. Mr. Harrison welcomes any inquiries concerning electrical work. He will gladly furnish estimates for any job and there is no obligation. Owners of industrial motors will find the prices charged by the Monroe Armature works most reasonable.

INDUSTRY MAKES PLANT EXPANSION

$25,000,000 Program Is Completed In Ten Chevrolet Plants

M. E. Coyle, president of the Chevrolet company, revealed yesterday that the company has completed during the current year a $25,000,000 program of plant expansion, increasing the production capacity of the ten Chevrolet assembly plants in the United States by 25 per cent, and raising the capacity of the company's own manufacturing plants, devoted to the making of axles, engines, transmissions and other units, to enable them to keep pace with the enlarged assembly plants.

The expenditure of $25,000,000 was made for the erection and equipment of new buildings at assembly and manufacturing plants, and for the re-equipment and complete modernization of existing buildings. With few exceptions, most of the operations were undertaken and carried out without announcement to the public, the list of completed improvements given out today being the first publication of details of the program.

Announcement of the virtual completion of the company's 1935 expansion plans was made by Mr. Coyle to a group of newspaper automobile editors as incidental to his statement that all ten Chevrolet assembly plants have been changed over within the last several weeks to produce new models of the Master deluxe and Standard Chevrolets for 1936, to be introduced in November, and that the manufacturing plants and assembly plants are already producing the new cars.

Production is increasing daily, Mr. Coyle said, and the company will have built an ample supply of the new models to stock its 10,000 dealers with the 1936 cars before their introduction early next month, and to insure immediate delivery to retail purchasers on and after announcement day. Increased schedules have been set for November and December, in order to replenish dealers' stocks as rapidly as is necessary to provide for quick deliveries to purchasers.

While the great part of Chevrolet's expenditure of $25,000,000 was to attain increased capacity in preparation for an expected increase in demand during the coming year, Mr. Coyle declared that during the current year the company had carried out a comprehensive program of construction at assembly plants for the purpose of equalizing employment. This has been accomplished by providing greatly enlarged storage space at the plants, to receive and hold manufactured units till they are needed in assembly.

EXPERT SERVICE ON AUTO WRECKS

"For all kinds of body work and general repairs, our shop is the most complete of its kind in the city," C. W. Boyce of Boyce-Kendall garage said. "Our equipment is the latest type, and we have gone to great expense to give a complete service to the people of Monroe."

Boyce-Kendall garage is located at 111 North Third street and specializes in wrecks of all kinds. A complete body department is located on the second floor of the establishment. There all metal work is straightened and painting is done. Boyce-Kendall features Duco paint finish on all automobiles. Two men are employed in this department and it is under the direction of Frank Eyres, who has long been identified with automobile body work in Monroe.

If the frame of a car needs straightening, Boyce-Kendall can do the work. The concern is equipped with the Bee-Line system for aligning and straightening axles and wheels. It corrects, shimmy, hard steering and tire wear. All this is done without heating the part to be straightened and it is more accurate than the old way.

The garage has an expert brake man who relines and adjusts all makes of brakes.

For those who require wrecker service the garage has excellent facilities to handle all kinds of jobs, Mr. Boyce said. A telephone call will bring quick service to a customer. The telephone number is 247.

The garage is conveniently located in the main business section of Monroe, making it easily available to those who have headquarters in the section.

Mr. Boyce said about $3,000 worth of equipment had been installed to give this complete automobile service.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The stock market edged forward today, many issues to new highs for the past four years or so, despite the restraining influence of week-end profit taking.

Scattered specialties again found followings at substantial advances, but the list, as a whole, moved in a fractional range. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

Trade happenings were still bullish. Earnings statements, on the whole, were comforting. The Sun Oil company declared an extra dividend of 7 per cent in stock in addition to the regular quarterly 25-cent disbursement. Union Oil of California raised its prices for crude 50 cents a barrel to the highest level in more than two years.

Grains sagged both at Chicago and Winnipeg. Cotton was little better than even most of the day. Bonds were mixed and foreign exchanges slipped a shade in either direction.

Shares of Budd Manufacturing Preferred got up 3 points and others, fractionally to a point or more improved, included Johns-Manville, Tennessee Corporation, Libby-Owens, Burroughs Adding, Allis-Chalmers, Food Machinery, Great Northern, New York Central, Westinghouse, Airbrake, Baldwin preferred, Pullman, Case, General Electric, General Motors, Western Union, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. The steels, coppers and oils were narrow.

The majority of the day's market letters were inclined to stress the need of caution in the equities division because of the rapid advance of the list.

At the same time there was little change in the view that the long-pull trend for sound stocks is upward. Reactionary sentiment of the so-called professional element in the commission houses was expected to slow the forward push from time to time.

Foreign developments were not quite so favorable, with cables stating a stalemate had been reached in efforts to end the African war and that there were few hopes of an early cessation of hostilities.

New York Stocks

By Victor Eubank
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The stock market edged forward today, many issues to new highs for the past four years or so, despite the restraining influence of week-end profit taking.

Scattered specialties again found followings at substantial advances, but the list, as a whole, moved in a fractional range. The close was steady. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

It was one of the most active Saturday sessions in several weeks, with realizing accounting for much of the volume. Nibbling continued at the motors, rails, oils and merchandising stocks.

Trade happenings were still bullish. Earnings statements, on the whole, were comforting. The Sun Oil company declared an extra dividend of 7 per cent in stock in addition to the regular quarterly 25-cent disbursement. Union Oil of California raised its prices for crude 50 cents a barrel to the highest level in more than two years.

Grains sagged both at Chicago and Winnipeg. Cotton was little better than even most of the day. Bonds were mixed and foreign exchanges slipped a shade in either direction.

Shares of Budd Manufacturing Preferred got up 3 points and others, fractionally to a point or more improved, included Johns-Manville, Tennessee Corporation, Libby-Owens, Burroughs Adding, Allis-Chalmers, Food Machinery, Great Northern, New York Central, Westinghouse, Airbrake, Baldwin preferred, Pullman, Case, General Electric, General Motors, Western Union, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery Ward. The steels, coppers and oils were narrow.

The majority of the day's market letters were inclined to stress the need of caution in the equities division because of the rapid advance of the list.

At the same time there was little change in the view that the long-pull trend for sound stocks is upward. Reactionary sentiment of the so-called professional element in the commission houses was expected to slow the forward push from time to time.

Foreign developments were not quite so favorable, with cables stating a stalemate had been reached in efforts to end the African war and that there were few hopes of an early cessation of hostilities.

STRAHAN ISSUES FEDERAL CHECKS

Cotton Payments To Ouachita Parish Farmers Distributed

Approximately half of 1,340 federal cotton rental checks for Ouachita parish farmers received here Thursday by E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent, had been distributed late yesterday to farmers who called at Mr. Strahan's office in the courthouse and signed receipts for their checks.

The checks represent 1,076 contracts and have a total immediate cash value of $36,455.35. They are the second allotment to farmers of the parish this season.

Checks for 74 late contracts are yet to be received by the parish agent. They are expected within several weeks.

Workers in the agent's office were engaged practically the entire day yesterday in issuing checks to the contract holders. Farmers who have not yet called at the agent's office for their checks are requested to call there Monday or Tuesday.

RUIN LEFT IN WAKE OF MONTANA QUAKE

Typical of the ruin wrought by the quake which caused more than $2,000,000 damage and claimed two lives in Helena, Mont., is that shown at this home, where the occupants narrowly escaped with their lives when the structure collapsed. More than 400 buildings were damaged in the Montana capital, a city of 14,000, and the Red Cross has taken over the relief of scores of families. Hundreds of Helena residents fled in terror into the open country as shock followed shock.

WOUND IS FATAL TO STRIKE GUARD

Longshoremen Gun Battle Claims Third Death Victim

LAKE CHARLES, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The third death from last Tuesday's bloody gun battle in the International Longshoremen's association dock strike occurred today while the labor controversy over demanded recognition of the I. L. A. remained in a deadlock in the gulf ports.

William Blake, of New Orleans, one of ten special guards shot and wounded in the encounter between 75 heavily armed men on the dock patrol and hundreds of I. L. A. sympathizers, died today in the hospital here, bringing the death list to three in Lake Charles and five in the gulf coast district since the strike began October 1.

Lake Charles port has been closed to commerce under an indefinite truce declared by Governor O. K. Allen of Louisiana just after the smoke of battle cleared at the docks.

But a mass meeting of 400 citizens here last night adopted resolutions asking the governor to open the port and permit the resumption of business with the use of the national guard or any other method which the chief executive chose to employ.

A delegation of citizens was sent today to New Orleans to deliver the appeal to Governor Allen.

Elsewhere along the gulf coast from Pensocal to and including the Texas ports, similar deadlocked conditions prevailed in the strike and picketing with ships being loaded in most cases with independent labor.

Gulfport, Miss., had notified their docks, with a special harbor patrol on duty to meet any anticipated emergency and the representatives of organized labor there were appealing to Governor Sennett Conner, of Mississippi, to close that port until the controversy is settled.

Governor Conner decided against closing the port but he appealed to the federal labor relations board to seek arbitration of the differences.

ARREST NEGRO WHO ESCAPED CUSTODY IN AUGUST, 1934

Stillmore Williams, negro, 28, who escaped from the city chain gang here August of last year while serving a 180-day sentence for stealing chickens, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives L. G. Parker and D. J. Bedsole near North Eighteenth and Short Washington streets.

The officers were making their rounds in a patrol car when they saw Williams standing on the rear of a porch. The negro bolted from the porch and fled, but the officers, in hot pursuit, overtook him as he crawled beneath a house in an effort to conceal himself.

Described by police as a habitual criminal, having served a five-year term in the Mississippi state penitentiary, as well as numerous sentences imposed by the Monroe city court, Williams possibly may be linked with a robbery at Jackson, Miss., about a month ago, it was stated.

At the time of his arrest, Green had been released only a short time previously from the Louisiana state penitentiary, where he was sent from Monroe to serve a sentence.

RED CROSS WILL AVERT ACCIDENTS

Local Committee Named; Homes Will Be Given Careful Inspection

The Ouachita parish chapter of the Red Cross has named committees to carry out the home and farm accident prevention campaign launched by the national organization on October 1. It is said that 11 other chapters in the state have done likewise.

The local group is headed by G. W. Welch, chairman, and the other committee members are as follows: Mrs. E. G. Waring, Isador Leibreich, Berney Oakland, Lee Hawkins, Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, Mrs. T. L. Morris, Mrs. Parker McComb, Mrs. J. E. Bryan and Mrs. J. H. Cordell.

Data will be collected from hospitals, the chamber of commerce, safety councils and public officials in an effort to provide information to avert avoidable accidents and fatalities.

According to statistics released by the Red Cross, millions of persons in this country are injured in their homes. Last year, in the United States, 34,000 people were killed and over 150,000 permanently injured in home accidents. In Louisiana alone, 1,415 men, women and children lost their lives in accidents which might have been prevented. Chapters in the state that have already named committees in the campaign that is about to start are as follows: Calcasieu and Cameron parishes, East Carroll parish, New Orleans, Ouachita parish, Plaquemines parish, Red River parish, Richland parish, Tangipahoa parish, Tensas parish, Terrebonne parish and Washington parish.

A home inspection campaign will be started during the week which will give householders an opportunity to check up and correct hazards in the home.

Inspection blanks already have been or will be distributed at the schools for parents to list hazards found in homes of the parish. The blanks are then to be returned to the Red Cross chapter where a tabulation of all inspections will be made.

The home inspection phase of the safety program will be followed by additional corrective measures after the home hazard blanks have been checked and analyzed.

In conjunction with the home and farm program, Louisiana chapters are planning to establish highway first aid stations throughout the state. The Red Cross highway safety program is already under way in New England where many first aid stations are now in operation.

This phase of the safety program in Louisiana will be greatly expanded during the coming month, it is stated.

STRAHAN ISSUES FEDERAL CHECKS

Cotton Payments To Ouachita Parish Farmers Distributed

Approximately half of 1,340 federal cotton rental checks for Ouachita parish farmers received here Thursday by E. R. Strahan, parish agricultural agent, had been distributed late yesterday to farmers who called at Mr. Strahan's office in the courthouse and signed receipts for their checks.

The checks represent 1,076 contracts and have a total immediate cash value of $36,455.35. They are the second allotment to farmers of the parish this season.

Checks for 74 late contracts are yet to be received by the parish agent. They are expected within several weeks.

Workers in the agent's office were engaged practically the entire day yesterday in issuing checks to the contract holders. Farmers who have not yet called at the agent's office for their checks are requested to call there Monday or Tuesday.

RUIN LEFT IN WAKE OF MONTANA QUAKE

Typical of the ruin wrought by the quake which caused more than $2,000,000 damage and claimed two lives in Helena, Mont., is that shown at this home, where the occupants narrowly escaped with their lives when the structure collapsed. More than 400 buildings were damaged in the Montana capital, a city of 14,000, and the Red Cross has taken over the relief of scores of families. Hundreds of Helena residents fled in terror into the open country as shock followed shock.

WOUND IS FATAL TO STRIKE GUARD

Longshoremen Gun Battle Claims Third Death Victim

LAKE CHARLES, La., Oct. 26.—(AP)—The third death from last Tuesday's bloody gun battle in the International Longshoremen's association dock strike occurred today while the labor controversy over demanded recognition of the I. L. A. remained in a deadlock in the gulf ports.

William Blake, of New Orleans, one of ten special guards shot and wounded in the encounter between 75 heavily armed men on the dock patrol and hundreds of I. L. A. sympathizers, died today in the hospital here, bringing the death list to three in Lake Charles and five in the gulf coast district since the strike began October 1.

Lake Charles port has been closed to commerce under an indefinite truce declared by Governor O. K. Allen of Louisiana just after the smoke of battle cleared at the docks.

But a mass meeting of 400 citizens here last night adopted resolutions asking the governor to open the port and permit the resumption of business with the use of the national guard or any other method which the chief executive chose to employ.

A delegation of citizens was sent today to New Orleans to deliver the appeal to Governor Allen.

Elsewhere along the gulf coast from Pensocal to and including the Texas ports, similar deadlocked conditions prevailed in the strike and picketing with ships being loaded in most cases with independent labor.

Gulfport, Miss., had notified their docks, with a special harbor patrol on duty to meet any anticipated emergency and the representatives of organized labor there were appealing to Governor Sennett Conner, of Mississippi, to close that port until the controversy is settled.

Governor Conner decided against closing the port but he appealed to the federal labor relations board to seek arbitration of the differences.

ARREST NEGRO WHO ESCAPED CUSTODY IN AUGUST, 1934

Stillmore Williams, negro, 28, who escaped from the city chain gang here August of last year while serving a 180-day sentence for stealing chickens, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detectives L. G. Parker and D. J. Bedsole near North Eighteenth and Short Washington streets.

The officers were making their rounds in a patrol car when they saw Williams standing on the rear of a porch. The negro bolted from the porch and fled, but the officers, in hot pursuit, overtook him as he crawled beneath a house in an effort to conceal himself.

Described by police as a habitual criminal, having served a five-year term in the Mississippi state penitentiary, as well as numerous sentences imposed by the Monroe city court, Williams possibly may be linked with a robbery at Jackson, Miss., about a month ago, it was stated.

At the time of his arrest, Green had been released only a short time previously from the Louisiana state penitentiary, where he was sent from Monroe to serve a sentence.

RED CROSS WILL AVERT ACCIDENTS

Local Committee Named; Homes Will Be Given Careful Inspection

The Ouachita parish chapter of the Red Cross has named committees to carry out the home and farm accident prevention campaign launched by the national organization on October 1. It is said that 11 other chapters in the state have done likewise.

The local group is headed by G. W. Welch, chairman, and the other committee members are as follows: Mrs. E. G. Waring, Isador Leibreich, Berney Oakland, Lee Hawkins, Mrs. Jewel McQuiller, Mrs. T. L. Morris, Mrs. Parker McComb, Mrs. J. E. Bryan and Mrs. J. H. Cordell.

Data will be collected from hospitals, the chamber of commerce, safety councils and public officials in an effort to provide information to avert avoidable accidents and fatalities.

According to statistics released by the Red Cross, millions of persons in this country are injured in their homes. Last year, in the United States, 34,000 people were killed and over 150,000 permanently injured in home accidents. In Louisiana alone, 1,415 men, women and children lost their lives in accidents which might have been prevented. Chapters in the state that have already named committees in the campaign that is about to start are as follows: Calcasieu and Cameron parishes, East Carroll parish, New Orleans, Ouachita parish, Plaquemines parish, Red River parish, Richland parish, Tangipahoa parish, Tensas parish, Terrebonne parish and Washington parish.

A home inspection campaign will be started during the week which will give householders an opportunity to check up and correct hazards in the home.

Inspection blanks already have been or will be distributed at the schools for parents to list hazards found in homes of the parish. The blanks are then to be returned to the Red Cross chapter where a tabulation of all inspections will be made.

The home inspection phase of the safety program will be followed by additional corrective measures after the home hazard blanks have been checked and analyzed.

In conjunction with the home and farm program, Louisiana chapters are planning to establish highway first aid stations throughout the state. The Red Cross highway safety program is already under way in New England where many first aid stations are now in operation.

This phase of the safety program in Louisiana will be greatly expanded during the coming month, it is stated.

Flower Show Is To Be Presented Thursday By Garden Club

Legion Home To Be Scene Of Exhibition

By Eve Bradford

"The frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock." King Midas is now abroad in the land touching the world with his magic hand. Golden sunsets fall on golden leaves. Golden pumpkins ripening in the fields form long golden avenues. The corn shocks, dry and sear, wave fantastic arms over the ears of solid gold. Golden butterflies continue to wing their way over gardens, where giant bronze chrysanthemums lift shaggy heads in the golden sunshine. They will be gathered to glorify the American Legion home on Thursday where they will be exhibited in the fall flower show. Giant daisies, never before as beautiful as this year, will also add lustre to the exhibit. If Monroe isn't the most beautiful spot in the world in which to live, it is not the fault of garden club members. They have encouraged all this golden splendor. Even now they are getting their heads together with plans for beautifying Louisville avenue. They would like to make it a great white way leading from West Monroe straight through to the college.

We are now entering upon that friendly season. When the shades of night begin their winter specialty of falling fast, we draw our divans closer to the fire and indulge in fireside conversations, innocent vanities, jests and the cheerful glass. We are sanguine over the prospects of the happiest holidays for many years.

There is one home in particular in Monroe where friends love to gather before the leaping flames in the old-fashioned fireplace. Yes, you have guessed who it is in the home of Maud Stubbs, one of the most charming hostesses in the city today. If there is such a thing as a perfect hostess, Maud certainly deserves the name. To approach the ideal in this role one must be the ultimate in charm, personality, efficiency and so many other branches of the art that it would seem that only a superhuman person might qualify. Perfection in any art is the goal we all try to achieve, but few reach.

If ever there were two human beings ideally suited to each other, they are Fred and Josephine Millsaps. Fishing or golfing, swimming or boating, they are always together, happy and contented. Saw them last week emerging from their houseboat, anchored in a shady spot far up the river. Josephine, in blue overalls and wide-brimmed hat, was ready for an evening of fishing, far removed from habitation. An invitation from friends on board the Sun Dart bound for a distant point up the river was accepted and Josephine, undaunted by attire, boarded the boat and joined the merry crowd. Her recipe for happiness has to do with worth while things of life, courage and faith in the unseen things, far removed from lipstick and powder and the latest kink in the silhouette.

It's no wonder the music clubs of the state put Stella Hullum at the helm of their state federation. She's a delightful person with plenty of vitality and common sense to back up her charm of manner and her musical ability. She is quite eager at this time that there be a good representation of Monroe music lovers at the Dalies Frantz concert in Shreveport on the fifteenth of November. So well known is Nino Martini, famous tenor, Mrs. Hullum feels that urging people to attend his concert on the fourth of December will not be necessary. They will just naturally gravitate toward Shreveport for this brilliant event.

Summer lingers at the swimming pool in the Carl McHenry garden. Saw Frances emerging from the pool last week after a refreshing plunge. She was alone on this occasion but this is not often the case. Friends are continually motoring out to their pool to enjoy the privacy it affords. It was rather a novel idea that prompted Frances to invite members of her bridge club to come early last week so that they might enjoy an invigorating swim before the game. A cup of fragrant coffee awaited them indoors. The McHenrys' chubby little daughter, Martha Wilton, has taken to the water like a duck. Perfectly fearless, she takes a high dive with all the confidence of an Annette Kellerman.

Bride Is Honored

A charming compliment to a lovely bride of recent date, Mrs. Elliott Thompson, was the luncheon-bridge on Friday, with Miss Sybil Thompson hostess.

Mrs. Thompson, in a chic olive green wool model with brown fox furs and brown accessories, was the central figure in the flower-banked reception suite, where the tables were grouped for the luncheon and later for bridge. Mexican daisies of vivid hue centered the linen-covered luncheon tables. A delicious luncheon course followed by demi tasse was served.

The interesting games of contract resulted in Miss Melba Liner's claiming the handsome purse for high score, and Miss Nanette Selig's taking chiffon hosiery for consolation. Mrs. Thompson's gift from her hostess was a set of rock crystal cocktail glasses.

Accepting Miss Thompson's hospitality were, in addition to the guest of honor, Mrs. E. G. Hinkle, Mrs. C. C. Thompson, Mrs. G. I. Hemphill, Mrs. James Dorman, Mrs. D. Nichols, Mrs. Walter Kellogg, Mrs. Freida Bridge, Mrs. Sydney Grubb, Miss Suzanne Hirsch, Miss Gretchen Talbot, Miss Lillian Johnson, Miss Nanette Selig, Miss Mary Trousdale and Miss Melba Liner.

Musician Visits Monroe

Miss Vera Fransee of Houston, Tex., talented young violinist and composer, was a recent visitor in Monroe and a guest in the homes of Mrs. J. L. Humble in Cole addition and Miss Janie Brothers. While here, Miss Fransee delighted friends with her beautiful violin compositions.

Miss Fransee, now only 20 years of age, has pursued an intensive program of training and activity that should be an encouraging example to young people. To begin with, Miss Fransee made her first public appearance as a violin soloist at the age of six. At the age of nine years she played her first complete concerto in a recital at the Houston city auditorium. At the age of 14 she was summoned to play before Conductor Metod Delazil and his Prague chorus that was appearing in Houston on an international concert tour. This eminent musical conductor was so impressed with her musical talent of such superior order that she was promptly offered a scholarship at the Prague Conservatory of Music at Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Supplementary to the foregoing activities and studies, Miss Fransee not only has taken an advanced course in violin and piano at the Juilliard Institute of Music, New York, but has been playing for five years in the Houston Symphony orchestra as first violinist and also appearing in both radio and private recitals. In addition to these activities, she teaches regularly the violin and piano at the Fransee Music school in Houston. Moreover, in order to keep her academic education abreast with her musical studies and meet her exacting public she was obliged to finish her high school education through home study, and did so in record time.

At the opening of the Texas Centennial exposition in 1936 no less than 14 finished waltzes, marches, choral songs, violin and piano solos of Miss Fransee's own composition will be offered during the exposition's musical program depicting the cultural advancement of Texas.

Miss Fransee comes of a family of three generations of recognized musicians and educators. While her father directed symphony orchestras and operas in Europe and in the United States, his sister, Vera's aunt, also carried on the pedagogical profession as private tutor to the children of President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia. Thus we see a charming and talented daughter doing credit to her people and to our neighboring state of Texas.

Vital Question Argued

A woman lawyer from South Carolina speaking to the New York League of Business and Professional Women, burst a bomb the other day when she declared that "women may have lost their sense of values in going into business and renouncing their chief business—that of motherhood"—and that "the most important thing to a nation is its children."

Dorothy Bramley, in the New York Telegram, says in reply: "I'd like to argue the point with the speaker—and with Herr Hitler that a nation's children cannot rise above the level of a nation's mothers, and that, therefore, the education and all-around development of a nation's women is as important to the race as are its children. I should also like to remind her that there's some difference of opinion about all women being natural-born mothers. Didn't a mere man, Mr. Bernard S. Deutsch, say the other day, 'Let us debunk once and for all the ancient myth of motherhood. There are good mothers, diligent mothers, intelligent mothers and ignorant mothers.'

"But no matter what my personal convictions are, I'll grant that the lady from South Carolina has raised a subject that calls for sober consideration. If we're going to begin to get to the bottom of it we need more knowledge than we now have. For one thing we need statistics to tell us how many working women have preferred a pay envelope or a career of their own to a really desirable marriage. Probably a very small minority, and if they have been prejudiced against men and marriage per se it's because of some deep-rooted complex rather than pernicious feminist doctrine.

"On the other hand, it's true that a great many women whose earning power has made them free to take marriage or leave it have left it because the available man didn't come up to specifications. While almost all of these women regret the children they haven't had, I've never seen any of them shed tears for what would have been a poor excuse for a husband.

"Also to be considered are the married women who have had few or no children and have gone on working. They, too, might be accused of having renounced 'their chief business,' if you believe that women were endowed with minds as a mere addendum to their biological functions.

"What it comes down to is that a complex of forces—feminism, universal education and the industrial age—have given intelligent women standards of living and functionig which have iterfered with, or we might say modified, their biological processes. Whether you believe that women, and therefore the race, have lost or gained whether you believe we are witnessing an evolution or a devolution, depends upon your point of view.

"Do you think that a loveless marriage will bring a women more happiness, provided she can have children, than an independent life? Do you believe that a career can make up to a woman for the lack of children? Do you think that motherhood is every woman's chief business,' or is it your idea that women differ in capacity and temperament? Is it your guess that the woman who has only one or two children and a job would be happier if she went in for motherhood on a large scale? Do you think her children would be better off? Is the father as responsible as the mother for family limitation? And, finally, are the self-supporting unmarried women you know definitely unhappier than the mothers of your acquaintance?

"If you can answer these questions you'll at least be true to yourself, and then, if Shakespeare was right, you cannot be false to any man."

Flower Show Is To Be Presented Thursday By Garden Club

Legion Home To Be Scene Of Exhibition

By Eve Bradford

"The frost is on the punkin and the fodder's in the shock." King Midas is now abroad in the land touching the world with his magic hand. Golden sunsets fall on golden leaves. Golden pumpkins ripening in the fields form long golden avenues. The corn shocks, dry and sear, wave fantastic arms over the ears of solid gold. Golden butterflies continue to wing their way over gardens, where giant bronze chrysanthemums lift shaggy heads in the golden sunshine. They will be gathered to glorify the American Legion home on Thursday where they will be exhibited in the fall flower show. Giant daisies, never before as beautiful as this year, will also add lustre to the exhibit. If Monroe isn't the most beautiful spot in the world in which to live, it is not the fault of garden club members. They have encouraged all this golden splendor. Even now they are getting their heads together with plans for beautifying Louisville avenue. They would like to make it a great white way leading from West Monroe straight through to the college.

We are now entering upon that friendly season. When the shades of night begin their winter specialty of falling fast, we draw our divans closer to the fire and indulge in fireside conversations, innocent vanities, jests and the cheerful glass. We are sanguine over the prospects of the happiest holidays for many years.

There is one home in particular in Monroe where friends love to gather before the leaping flames in the old-fashioned fireplace. Yes, you have guessed who it is in the home of Maud Stubbs, one of the most charming hostesses in the city today. If there is such a thing as a perfect hostess, Maud certainly deserves the name. To approach the ideal in this role one must be the ultimate in charm, personality, efficiency and so many other branches of the art that it would seem that only a superhuman person might qualify. Perfection in any art is the goal we all try to achieve, but few reach.

If ever there were two human beings ideally suited to each other, they are Fred and Josephine Millsaps. Fishing or golfing, swimming or boating, they are always together, happy and contented. Saw them last week emerging from their houseboat, anchored in a shady spot far up the river. Josephine, in blue overalls and wide-brimmed hat, was ready for an evening of fishing, far removed from habitation. An invitation from friends on board the Sun Dart bound for a distant point up the river was accepted and Josephine, undaunted by attire, boarded the boat and joined the merry crowd. Her recipe for happiness has to do with worth while things of life, courage and faith in the unseen things, far removed from lipstick and powder and the latest kink in the silhouette.

It's no wonder the music clubs of the state put Stella Hullum at the helm of their state federation. She's a delightful person with plenty of vitality and common sense to back up her charm of manner and her musical ability. She is quite eager at this time that there be a good representation of Monroe music lovers at the Dalies Frantz concert in Shreveport on the fifteenth of November. So well known is Nino Martini, famous tenor, Mrs. Hullum feels that urging people to attend his concert on the fourth of December will not be necessary. They will just naturally gravitate toward Shreveport for this brilliant event.

Summer lingers at the swimming pool in the Carl McHenry garden. Saw Frances emerging from the pool last week after a refreshing plunge. She was alone on this occasion but this is not often the case. Friends are continually motoring out to their pool to enjoy the privacy it affords. It was rather a novel idea that prompted Frances to invite members of her bridge club to come early last week so that they might enjoy an invigorating swim before the game. A cup of fragrant coffee awaited them indoors. The McHenrys' chubby little daughter, Martha Wilton, has taken to the water like a duck. Perfectly fearless, she takes a high dive with all the confidence of an Annette Kellerman.

The interesting games of contract resulted in Miss Melba Liner's claiming the handsome purse for high score, and Miss Nanette Selig's taking chiffon hosiery for consolation. Mrs. Thompson's gift from her hostess was a set of rock crystal cocktail glasses.

Accepting Miss Thompson's hospitality were, in addition to the guest of honor, Mrs. E. G. Hinkle, Mrs. C. C. Thompson, Mrs. G. I. Hemphill, Mrs. James Dorman, Mrs. D. Nichols, Mrs. Walter Kellogg, Mrs. Freida Bridge, Mrs. Sydney Grubb, Miss Suzanne Hirsch, Miss Gretchen Talbot, Miss Lillian Johnson, Miss Nanette Selig, Miss Mary Trousdale and Miss Melba Liner.

Musician Visits Monroe

Miss Vera Fransee of Houston, Tex., talented young violinist and composer, was a recent visitor in Monroe and a guest in the homes of Mrs. J. L. Humble in Cole addition and Miss Janie Brothers. While here, Miss Fransee delighted friends with her beautiful violin compositions.

Miss Fransee, now only 20 years of age, has pursued an intensive program of training and activity that should be an encouraging example to young people. To begin with, Miss Fransee made her first public appearance as a violin soloist at the age of six. At the age of nine years she played her first complete concerto in a recital at the Houston city auditorium. At the age of 14 she was summoned to play before Conductor Metod Delazil and his Prague chorus that was appearing in Houston on an international concert tour. This eminent musical conductor was so impressed with her musical talent of such superior order that she was promptly offered a scholarship at the Prague Conservatory of Music at Prague, Czechoslovakia.

Supplementary to the foregoing activities and studies, Miss Fransee not only has taken an advanced course in violin and piano at the Juilliard Institute of Music, New York, but has been playing for five years in the Houston Symphony orchestra as first violinist and also appearing in both radio and private recitals. In addition to these activities, she teaches regularly the violin and piano at the Fransee Music school in Houston. Moreover, in order to keep her academic education abreast with her musical studies and meet her exacting public she was obliged to finish her high school education through home study, and did so in record time.

At the opening of the Texas Centennial exposition in 1936 no less than 14 finished waltzes, marches, choral songs, violin and piano solos of Miss Fransee's own composition will be offered during the exposition's musical program depicting the cultural advancement of Texas.

Miss Fransee comes of a family of three generations of recognized musicians and educators. While her father directed symphony orchestras and operas in Europe and in the United States, his sister, Vera's aunt, also carried on the pedagogical profession as private tutor to the children of President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia. Thus we see a charming and talented daughter doing credit to her people and to our neighboring state of Texas.

Vital Question Argued

A woman lawyer from South Carolina speaking to the New York League of Business and Professional Women, burst a bomb the other day when she declared that "women may have lost their sense of values in going into business and renouncing their chief business—that of motherhood"—and that "the most important thing to a nation is its children."

Dorothy Bramley, in the New York Telegram, says in reply: "I'd like to argue the point with the speaker—and with Herr Hitler that a nation's children cannot rise above the level of a nation's mothers, and that, therefore, the education and all-around development of a nation's women is as important to the race as are its children. I should also like to remind her that there's some difference of opinion about all women being natural-born mothers. Didn't a mere man, Mr. Bernard S. Deutsch, say the other day, 'Let us debunk once and for all the ancient myth of motherhood. There are good mothers, diligent mothers, intelligent mothers and ignorant mothers.'

"But no matter what my personal convictions are, I'll grant that the lady from South Carolina has raised a subject that calls for sober consideration. If we're going to begin to get to the bottom of it we need more knowledge than we now have. For one thing we need statistics to tell us how many working women have preferred a pay envelope or a career of their own to a really desirable marriage. Probably a very small minority, and if they have been prejudiced against men and marriage per se it's because of some deep-rooted complex rather than pernicious feminist doctrine.

"On the other hand, it's true that a great many women whose earning power has made them free to take marriage or leave it have left it because the available man didn't come up to specifications. While almost all of these women regret the children they haven't had, I've never seen any of them shed tears for what would have been a poor excuse for a husband.

"Also to be considered are the married women who have had few or no children and have gone on working. They, too, might be accused of having renounced 'their chief business,' if you believe that women were endowed with minds as a mere addendum to their biological functions.

"What it comes down to is that a complex of forces—feminism, universal education and the industrial age—have given intelligent women standards of living and functionig which have iterfered with, or we might say modified, their biological processes. Whether you believe that women, and therefore the race, have lost or gained whether you believe we are witnessing an evolution or a devolution, depends upon your point of view.

"Do you think that a loveless marriage will bring a women more happiness, provided she can have children, than an independent life? Do you believe that a career can make up to a woman for the lack of children? Do you think that motherhood is every woman's chief business,' or is it your idea that women differ in capacity and temperament? Is it your guess that the woman who has only one or two children and a job would be happier if she went in for motherhood on a large scale? Do you think her children would be better off? Is the father as responsible as the mother for family limitation? And, finally, are the self-supporting unmarried women you know definitely unhappier than the mothers of your acquaintance?

"If you can answer these questions you'll at least be true to yourself, and then, if Shakespeare was right, you cannot be false to any man."

Carnegie's Life Reviewed

Mrs. Frank Black gave a most interesting autobiography of Andrew Carnegie when she appeared on the program of the Welcome Branch Book Club meeting last week. That our readers might familiarize themselves with the eventful life of this well known national figure, extracts from Mrs. Black's review are given:

"Andrew Carnegie was born in Scotland November 25, 1835. His parents were poor, hard workers, and thinkers. It was perhaps from his grandfather that he inherited his optimistic nature—his ability to laugh through life making 'all his ducks swans,' as his friends often said of him. His father was a damask weaver. The change from hand-loom to steam-loom weaving was disastrous to him as he struggled under the old system. Trade grew worse and worse until the Carnegies gave it up and sailed for America in 1848 with their two sons, Andrew, 13, and Tom, 5 years of age. They setted in Pittsburgh, where his mother's two sisters lived. One of them provided two small rooms over a weaver's shop for them free of rent. His father continued making table cloths and sold them from door to door. The returns were extremely meager. In attempting to find some work for Andrew to do, an uncle suggested to Mrs. Carnegie that if a basket were filled with knicknacks to sell, he could peddle them around the wharves and make a considerable sum. The thought of her son mingling with rough men on the wharves so angered her that she asked him to leave her; then she took her son in her arms and told him there were many useful things he could do where he would be honored and respected, if he would only do right. Seeing the anxiety in his mother's face as she awaited the return of his father from his sales trips, Andrew resolved to relieve their poverty when he got to be a man.

"He attended school very little. From an uncle he learned much British history of Wallace, Bruce and Burns, who were his heroes in youth and helped him never to give up. He often quotes the grand rule of life from Burns. 'Thine own reproach alone do fear.' In Pittsburgh he attended night school and studied French and elocution under a private teacher. Col. James Anderson opened his private library of 400 volumes to working boys. Carnegie says to him he owes his taste for literature, which he would not exchange for all the millions amassed by man. Close friendships were formed with people who had all the advantages of higher education. One of these, a Miss Addison, became his best friend because she was his severest critic. She influenced him to improve his English as well as his manners and dress. Previously he had worn great heavy boots, loose collar, and rough clothing. His education was continued by joining a literary society which required reading and study. Later in life he traveled extensively through Europe and learned much of sculpture, music and art.

"Andrew's first position was 'bobbin boy' in a factory in Pittsburgh at $1.20 per week. He said, 'The millions I made in later life gave me no such happiness as that first week's earnings, for now I was a bread winner, a helper of the family. He got his first real start in life when he became messenger boy for the telegraph company at the age of 15. Here he earned $2.50 a week. A few years in the telegraph office and Carnegie was promoted to superintendent of the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania railroad, with a salary of $1,500. He was then enabled to move with his family from smoky Pittsburgh to a beautiful country estate surrounded by woods, glens and running brooks. There his mother spent the happiest years of her life among her flowers and chickens and the surroundings of country life. The greatest benefit of the new home, however, was making friends with the leading families of western Pennsylvania. This was really a section of large homes of educated and cultured people.

"During the Civil war he was summoned to Washington, where he had charge of the military railroads and telegraphs of the government. In that way he was brought in close contact with President Lincoln. By 1864 the government railway lines were badly in need of new rails, which led him to organie a rail-making concern in Pittsburgh. A few years later he organized the locomotive works and was soon making locomotives that gained an enviable reputation throughout the United States.

"Carnegie was determined to make a fortune and saw that he could not honestly do so at any salary the railroad company could afford to pay, and he wouldn't do it by dishonesty. He said when he lay down at night he was going to have a verdict of approval from the highest of all tribunals, the judge within. He resigned his position with the railroad company and never worked for a salary again. His time and thought were devoted to the manufacture of iron and steel goods, and by rapid stages he rose to be the great iron master with enormous shops in Pittsburgh, where he made his fortune. He believed the proper policy was to put all good eggs in one basket, and then watch the basket.

"After his book, 'The Gospel of Wealth,' was published, it was inevitable that he should live up to its teachings by ceasing to struggle for more money. He believed that private wealth is a public trust and should be so used. In 1900 his business was netting him forty millions of dollars per year. He resolved to sell his business and begin the more serious and difficult task of wise distribution. His interests were sold to Mr. Morgan. The price was not given, but insiders said he could have easily got $100,000,000 more than he did if he had only asked it.

"His first gift, after retiring, was to the men in the mills. He gave five millions of dollars in bond to provide for their future needs—such as pensions and rewards. A part of it, too, was to maintain the libraries and halls he had built for them.

"His gifts to the city of Pittsburgh amounted to $28,000,000. They embraced a museum, a picture gallery, a technical school and the Margaret Morrison school for girls, named for his mother.

"He gave endowment or building funds to 500 colleges, amounting to $27,000,000. He gave more than 7,000 organs to as many churches at a cost of over $6,000,000.

"To various towns and cities he gave over 2,800 library buildings at a cost of over $60,000,000. His largest gift he did not mention. The editor gave an account of it in a footnote. It was the Carnegie Corporation of New York. It was to be used for many different things, one of which was scientific research.

"All told, the Carnegie benefactions amounted to something over $350,000,000. Surely a huge sum to have been brought together and then distributed by one man.

"After his death in 1919, Elihu Root said of him: 'He belonged to that great race of nation-builders who have made the development of America the wonder of the world. He was the kindliest man I ever knew. Wealth had brought to him no hardening of the heart nor made him forget the dreams of his youth. I wish that all the people who think of him as a rich man giving away money he did not need could know of the hundreds of kindly things he did unknown to the world.'

"He truly believed 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

Books Are Reviewed

Mrs. T. C. Rowland and Mrs. Fred Fudickar will represent the Review club at the state meeting of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs in Natchitoches on the eighth of November. Selection of these two delegates was made at the regular meeting last week in the home of Mrs. J. Norman Coon, with Mrs. C. C. Colvert presiding.

The afternoon's program was devoted to interesting book reviews. Mrs. Ben Breard ably reviewed "What Is American," by Frank Earnest Hill. She brought out that Mr. Hill has had varied experiences, having served as English instructor at Columbia university, in the flying service during the war and as editorial writer for various papers. The book, "What Is American," she said, is an effort to understand and define new America. It is partly an intellectual psychological history. "The author has emphasized in a new way the 'Americanness of America,' and our national individuality. Here, he points out, have been experiences differing sharply from those of all other civilized countries. He thinks of America not as a source but as a product, and that 'America of today cannot be separated from or understood without studying and understanding the elements and experiences that have produced her. When we seek to compare some of the American experiences with European experiences, we find nothing in Europe that will serve for comparison. So, this book has tried to define American quality in terms of what Americans have lived with, used and done."

Mrs. J. Norman Coon, in reviewing "Through English Eyes," by John Alfred Spender, gave a vivid picture of America as seen by an English journalist, stating that the author's book is finely balanced, dispassionate and wisely observant. "This is a book of exposition and description and Mr. Spender's use of words in his descriptions of places and things is unsurpassed," she said. He is eager to applaud but not to blame, though his critical tone is carefully diplomatic and we find him almost too ready to explain away faults he points out. Following recent visits to the United States, Mr. Spender, editor of the Westminsiter Gazette, writes this book of contrasts, describing American life, interests and activities against the background of his own experience of their English counterparts."

The club will meet November fourth with Mrs. Fred Fudickar.

Those present were Mesdames C. V. McGimsey, Ben J. Breard, Henry Colbert, W. E. Leigh, C. C. Colvert, C. B. Braun, C. A. Nenny, J. Norman Coon, S. A. Collins, T. C. Rowland, Fred Fudickar, J. A. Biedenharn, Walter Rhodes, E. R. Yancey, J. W. Worthington, and E. C. McGee.

At this meeting, ten dollars was contributed to the Norma Overby scholarship fund.

Speaks Before Club

A program in keeping with the Business and Professional Women's slogan for the year, "Women Unite for Effective Democracy," featured the regular meeting last week at the clubhouse.

Miss Eleanor Faulk, legislative chairman, was privileged to present the guest speaker, Mr. Thomas Davenport, who talked on the subject of "Democracy" as follows:

"We are unfortunate in our belief that democracy is immortal. We forget that democracy has died before in history. And those who had known it and prized it most seemed not sorry to see it go, nor did they stoop in Greece or Rome to fan a dying flame. Few of us knew the vast distance of time scanned by Woodrow Wilson in his statement that the carnage of 1914 was a war to make the world safe for democracy, nor did we view the thought as more than a slogan of the hour. Only the swift rolling seasons brought realization that since 1914, from one end of the western world to the other, democracy has been seriously challenged and, in one country after another, successfully supplanted by dictatorships of one sort or another. There has been a dramatic drift away from democracy. And there is nothing to be gained in our refusing to realize that the United States is in the shadow of this world-wide threat to democratic self-government. The alarming instabilities of the post-war period coupled with the tragedy of world-wide financial depression has forced the issue clearly before the people. Our national capitol has become the battleground of the nation, our legislative bodies are grinding out experimental theories, our judicial bodies are calling a halt on the permanent alteration of the national tradition, and our executives are demanding further progress into an unknown distance. Through it all comes the roar of a gigantic stream of federal spending and federal subsidy, without an apparent thought of results occasioned by such continued activities. If the wheels of industry and agriculture are not forced to turn under artificial stimulus we shall be faced by an inevitable and increasing impatience in our people. We shall be faced by an insistent demand, based upon one of the major delusions of the hour, for a strong and highly centralized government under the direction of a man forced by fate into our midst. Strong governments drive men into artificial loyalty to their slogans and dictatorship offers us the quickest path to strong government. It is not strong government that we need, but wise government with an acute sense of social values. Democracy rests upon responsible leadership and popular understanding, and has forever been impotent in times of crisis if leadership is derelict and popular understanding darkened. Our instincts are forever against the lone cry of the alarmist, yet this hour in our government must be met with something more than tub-thumping oratory and apoplectic defense of a constitution said to be outmoded in parts.

"Let me caution you that in approach to the constitution you should take neither the position of a social reactionary nor of uncritical ancestor worship of our constitutional fathers. It is the plain desire of the present national administration to bring about an unprecedented centralization of power in Washington even at the sacrifice of constitutional provisions. No document can be sacred save the soundness of the principles which it enunciates and no idea can be sacred save the utilities which it offers our people Our forefathers did not work in perfect agreement in forging that great instrument of government, nor would they desire us to accept their work as an immutable law for all time to come. They faced the facts and problems of 1787 as wisely as they could and it would be their sincere desire that we face the facts and problems of 1935 in the same frame of mind and to strike away the dead hand of the past where it is shown to impede the progress of the present. But, my friends, we cannot be too critical of this growing centralization of power, despite the protestations of liberal purposes with which it is promoted. We must not forget that what was said of Oliver Cromwell reaches true through the centuries, that 'a knot of determined men, who see their courses with the terrible simplicity of the fanatic and have armed force to do their bidding, are more than a match for a million puzzled civilians.' I beg you to believe with me that no price which we may be called upon to pay to prevent this will be too high a price for the continuance of our government of balanced powers and purposely frictionized departments with their proved system of checks and balances.

"The cycle of dictatorship has now run long enough to prove there is no magic in it and the long-run liabilities of dictatorship begin to emerge in the form of a nation forced into war, a nation struggling under the harsh rule of communism, and a nation still shuddering under the incredible reversion to the medevial practice of the blood purge. The last decade has been designated as the twilight hour of democracy, yet our future historians may record this era as the period in which democracy made its greatest advances and proved its worth by healthy contrast.

"Let me urge that you give more time to your government, that your fealty be constant and not confined to the spasmodic turmoil of intense political campaigns. Let me ask that your influence be felt and that your views be known in order that we may erect bulwarks against encroaching shadows thrown across the seas and now resting heavily shrouded above areas withi these United States. Finally, force your thoughts into a greater circuit that the orbit of our difficulties may be lessened and that the citizens of this nation may realize that their sincere consideration of public affairs is demanded. Above all, bring a clear and unprejudiced mind into contact with the varying interpretation of policies forced upon you, and by your own open mind be convinced of the contrast between the wise and the foolish, the hasty and the well founded.

Bible Class Banquet

A group of splendid young women, members of the Vota Vita Bible class of the First Baptist church, who have dedicated their lives to a high resolve, greeted each other over the banquet table Friday night at the Frances hotel, and enjoyed one of the most delightful social affairs since organiaztion.

Peacock blue tapers in tall crystal candlesticks were placed down the full length of white damask covered tables alternated with square cut mirrors reflecting crystal bowls overflowing with crimson salvia. The place cards were clever little conceits in the form of old-fashioned albums flaunting miniature photographs of each member. Places at the table were identified in this manner. The evening's program was noted on the leaves of the album.

Mrs. Florence Duval, wearing a smart pink Alencon lace evening model, presided as toastmistress. She introduced the president, Miss Bernice McCoy, a charming figure in Hunter's green crepe evening model. Miss McCoy led the devotional in inspirational manner. Others appearing on the evening's program were Mrs. L. T. Hastings, Miss Elizabeth Trull, Miss Maud Gallman and Miss Florence Ziegler.

Mrs. T. D. Boaz of Shreveport, the main speaker of the evening, was responsible for a splendid address.

The presence of two young Chinese women, Miss Itsuko Saito and Mrs. Lily D'jang, students at Dodd college, Shreveport, added considerable interest to the evening's program.

Miss Duval, in introducing each member of the class, added a personal touch by stressing their characteristics. Mrs. Renneker, the beloved class mother, responded to the introduction with characteristic graciousness. The class teacher, Mrs. Percy Walker, received an ovation when introduced.

A sumptuous five-course dinner was faultlessly served to Helen Walker, Eva Madden, Bernice McCoy, Avie Foster White, Ann Allen, Lola Simmermaker, Olive Tabb, Vina Gallman, Rosalyn Blackmon, Hattie Haddick, Elizabeth Trull, Maud Gallman, Dorothy Greer, Lorena Bedsole King, Helen Keys, Merrie Lee Ford, Emma Busby, Helen Carr, Orma Odom, Johnnie Tucker, Itsuko Saito, Olive L. Hope To Get Quota

Members of the fifth district of the Federated Women's Clubs of Louisiana are greatly agitated over the possibility of losing control of the Norma Overby scholarship fund to the state. With the section only $167 short of its quota of $1,000, the time for raising the required amount is fast approaching.

At a recent meeting of the Cosmopolitan club of Ruston, members were taxed fifty cents each, resulting in the sum of ten dollars being raised. With twenty-two clubs comprising the fifth district, leaders feel that the amount can be raised before the deadline, November the first.

Suede Muff Purses And Matching Trim Lend Smart Touch To New Winter Suits

By Adelaide Kerr

PARIS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The spirit of youth and chic mark the new 1936 clothes which smart Parisians are beginning to wear about town. Back from the mountains and shore they again are being seen in fashionable restaurants in trim youthful wool suits accompanied by smart gadgets.

Suede gloves which button across the back of the wrist and suede muff bags, swung around the neck on a strap, lend chic to tailleurs. Bright suede belts—red or green—give a vivid touch to black frocks, gold acorns and keys fasten wool costumes.

A 'Black Winter'

Several chic Parisians are seen in black suits worn with blouses of velvet or dark cravat silk splashed with white figures, their high necklines touched by some jewel as a garnet brooch or a triple strand of pearls. The small black hats worn with them are often feathered with a cascade of coque or a small bright fantasy.

Green Popular Too

Green promises to be another "big shot" in fashions. It is seen in a deep blackish hue, in a bronzed shade and in bottle and Veronese tones. The American Vicomtesse de Maublanc wears a green tweed suit fastened with bright red plastic slide fasteners and a chic French woman has chosen a dark blue green wool costume the three-quarter length coat of which is fastened with silver keys and finished with a pumpkin yellow scarf tucked inside the collar.

Capes top a number of smart costumes. Sometimes they appear in brown or russet toned tweed or one of the multi-colored modern wools to match a frock. Again they are seen in such fur as astrakhan or nutria, often being finished with hooded collars.

A muff purse of brown suede swung around the neck by a strap lends a smart accessory touch to this suit of brown and cream checked wool designed by Creed. The same leather accents the pockets and collar. The brown felt hat encircled by a cream colored cord is by Rose Valois.

Carnegie's Life Reviewed

Mrs. Frank Black gave a most interesting autobiography of Andrew Carnegie when she appeared on the program of the Welcome Branch Book club meeting last week. That our readers might familiarize themselves with the eventful life of this well known national figure, extracts from Mrs. Black's review are given:

"Andrew Carnegie was born in Scotland November 25, 1835. His parents were poor, hard workers, and thinkers. It was perhaps from his grandfather that he inherited his optimistic nature—his ability to laugh through life making 'all his ducks swans,' as his friends often said of him. His father was a damask weaver. The change from hand-loom to steam-loom weaving was disastrous to him as he struggled under the old system. Trade grew worse and worse until the Carnegies gave it up and sailed for America in 1848 with their two sons, Andrew, 13, and Tom, 5 years of age. They settled in Pittsburgh, where his mother's two sisters lived. One of them provided two small rooms over a weaver's shop for them free of rent. His father continued making table cloths and sold them from door to door. The returns were extremely meager. In attempting to find some work for Andrew to do, an uncle suggested to Mrs. Carnegie that if a basket were filled with knicknacks to sell, he could peddle them around the wharves and make a considerable sum. The thought of her son mingling with rough men on the wharves so angered her that she asked him to leave her; then she took her son in her arms and told him there were many useful things he could do where he would be honored and respected, if he would only do right. Seeing the anxiety in his mother's face as she awaited the return of his father from his sales trips, Andrew resolved to relieve their poverty when he got to be a man.

"He attended school very little. From an uncle he learned much British history of Wallace, Bruce and Burns, who were his heroes in youth and helped him never to give up. He often quotes the grand rule of life from Burns. 'Thine own reproach alone do fear.' In Pittsburgh he attended night school and studied French and elocution under a private teacher. Col. James Anderson opened his private library of 400 volumes to working boys. Carnegie says to him he owes his taste for literature, which he would not exchange for all the millions amassed by man. Close friendships were formed with people who had all the advantages of higher education. One of these, a Miss Addison, became his best friend because she was his severest critic. She influenced him to improve his English as well as his manners and dress. Previously he had worn great heavy boots, loose collar, and rough clothing. His education was continued by joining a literary society which required reading and study. Later in life he traveled extensively through Europe and learned much of sculpture, music and art.

"Andrew's first position was 'bobbin boy' in a factory in Pittsburgh at $1.20 per week. He said, 'The millions I made in later life gave me no such happiness as that first week's earnings, for now I was a bread winner, a helper of the family. He got his first real start in life when he became messenger boy for the telegraph company at the age of 15. Here he earned $2.50 a week. A few years in the telegraph office and Carnegie was promoted to superintendent of the Pittsburgh division of the Pennsylvania railroad, with a salary of $1,500. He was then enabled to move with his family from smoky Pittsburgh to a beautiful country estate surrounded by woods, glens and running brooks. There his mother spent the happiest years of her life among her flowers and chickens and the surroundings of country life. The greatest benefit of the new home, however, was making friends with the leading families of western Pennsylvania. This was really a section of large homes of educated and cultured people.

"During the Civil war he was summoned to Washington, where he had charge of the military railroads and telegraphs of the government. In that way he was brought in close contact with President Lincoln. By 1864 the government railway lines were badly in need of new rails, which led him to organie a rail-making concern in Pittsburgh. A few years later he organized the locomotive works and was soon making locomotives that gained an enviable reputation throughout the United States.

"Carnegie was determined to make a fortune and saw that he could not honestly do so at any salary the railroad company could afford to pay, and he woudn't do it by dishonesty. He said when he lay down at night he was going to have a verdict of approval from the highest of all tribunals, the judge within. He resigned his position with the railroad company and never worked for a salary again. His time and thought were devoted to the manufacture of iron and steel goods, and by rapid stages he rose to be the great iron master with enormous shops in Pittsburgh, where he made his fortune. He believed the proper policy was to put all good eggs in one basket, and then watch the basket.

"After his book, 'The Gospel of Wealth,' was published, it was inevitable that he should live up to its teachings by ceasing to struggle for more money. He believed that private wealth is a public trust and should be so used. In 1900 his business was netting him forty millions of dollars per year. He resolved to sell his business and begin the more serious and difficult task of wise distribution. His interests were sold to Mr. Morgan. The price was not given, but insiders said he could have easily got $100,000,000 more than he did if he had only asked it.

"His first gift, after retiring, was to the men in the mills. He gave five millions of dollars in bond to provide for their future needs—such as pensions and rewards. A part of it, too, was to maintain the libraries and halls he had built for them.

"His gifts to the city of Pittsburgh amounted to $28,000,000. They embraced a museum, a picture gallery, a technical school and the Margaret Morrison school for girls, named for his mother.

"He gave endowment or building funds to 500 colleges, amounting to $27,000,000. He gave more than 7,000 organs to as many churches at a cost of over $6,000,000.

"To various towns and cities he gave over 2,800 library buildings at a cost of over $60,000,000. His largest gift he did not mention. The editor gave an account of it in a footnote. It was the Carnegie Corporation of New York. It was to be used for many different things, one of which was scientific research.

"All told, the Carnegie benefactions amounted to something over $350,000,000. Surely a huge sum to have been brought together and then distributed by one man.

"After his death in 1919, Elihu Root said of him: 'He belonged to that great race of nation-builders who have made the development of America the wonder of the world. He was the kindliest man I ever knew. Wealth had brought to him no hardening of the heart nor made him forget the dreams of his youth. I wish that all the people who think of him as a rich man giving away money he did not need could know of the hundreds of kindly things he did unknown to the world.'

"He truly believed 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.'"

Books Are Reviewed

Mrs. T. C. Rowland and Mrs. Fred Fudickar will represent the Review club at the state meeting of the Louisiana Federation of Women's clubs in Natchitoches on the eighth of November. Selection of these two delegates was made at the regular meeting last week in the home of Mrs. J. Norman Coon, with Mrs. C. C. Colvert presiding.

The afternoon's program was devoted to interesting book reviews. Mrs. Ben Breard ably reviewed "What Is American," by Frank Earnest Hill. She brought out that Mr. Hill has had varied experiences, having served as English instructor at Columbia university, in the flying service during the war and as editorial writer for various papers. The book, "What Is American," she said, is an effort to understand and define new America. It is partly an intellectual psychological history. "The author has emphasized in a new way the 'Americanness of America,' and our national individuality. Here, he points out, have been experiences differing sharply from those of all other civilized countries. He thinks of America not as a source but as a product, and that America of today cannot be separated from or understood without studying and understanding the elements and experiences that have produced her. When we seek to compare some of the American experiences with European experiences, we find nothing in Europe that will serve for comparison. So, this book has tried to define American quality in terms of what Americans have lived with, used and done."

Mrs. J. Norman Coon, in reviewing "Through English Eyes," by John Alfred Spender, gave a vivid picture of America as seen by an English journalist, stating that the author's book is finely balanced, dispassionate and wisely observant. "This is a book of exposition and description and Mr. Spender's use of words in his descriptions of places and things is unsurpassed," she said. He is eager to applaud but not to blame, though his critical tone is carefully diplomatic and we find him almost too ready to explain away faults he points out. Following recent visits to the United States, Mr. Spender, editor of the Westminsiter Gazette, writes this book of contrasts, describing American life, interests and activities against the background of his own experience of their English counterparts."

The club will meet November fourth with Mrs. Fred Fudickar.

Those present were Mesdames C. V. McGimsey, Ben J. Breard, Henry Colbert, W. E. Leigh, C. C. Colvert, C. B. Braun, C. A. Nenny, J. Norman Coon, S. A. Collins, T. C. Rowland, Fred Fudickar, J. A. Biedenharn, Walter Rhodes, E. R. Yancey, J. W. Worthington, and E. C. McGee.

At this meeting, ten dollars was contributed to the Norma Overby scholarship fund.

Speaks Before Club

A program in keeping with the Business and Professional Women's slogan for the year, "Women Unite for Effective Democracy," featured the regular meeting last week at the clubhouse.

Miss Eleanor Faulk, legislative chairman, was privileged to present the guest speaker, Mr. Thomas Davenport, who talked on the subject of "Democracy" as follows:

"We are unfortunate in our belief that democracy is immortal. We forget that democracy has died before in history. And those who had known it and prized it most seemed not sorry to see it go, nor did they stoop in Greece or Rome to fan a dying flame. Few of us knew the vast distance of time scanned by Woodrow Wilson in his statement that the carnage of 1914 was a war to make the world safe for democracy, nor did we view the thought as more than a slogan of the hour. Only the swift rolling seasons brought realization that since 1914, from one end of the western world to the other, democracy has been seriously challenged and, in one country after another, successfully supplanted by dictatorships of one sort or another. There has been a dramatic drift away from democracy. And there is nothing to be gained in our refusing to realize that the United States is in the shadow of this world-wide threat to democratic self-government. The alarming instabilities of the post-war period coupled with the tragedy of world-wide financial depression has forced the issue clearly before the people. Our national capitol has become the battleground of the nation, our legislative bodies are grinding out experimental theories, our judicial bodies are calling a halt on the permanent alteration of the national tradition, and our executives are demanding further progress into an unknown distance. Through it all comes the roar of a gigantic stream of federal spending and federal subsidy, without an apparent thought of results occasioned by such continued activities. If the wheels of industry and agriculture are not forced to turn under artificial stimulus we shall be faced by an inevitable and increasing impatience in our people. We shall be faced by an insistent demand, based upon one of the major delusions of the hour, for a strong and highly centralized government under the direction of a man forced by fate into our midst. Strong governments drive men into artificial loyalty to their slogans and dictatorship offers us the quickest path to strong government. It is not strong government that we need, but wise government with an acute sense of social values. Democracy rests upon responsible leadership and popular understanding, and has forever been impotent in times of crisis if leadership is derelict and popular understanding darkened. Our instincts are forever against the lone cry of the alarmist, yet this hour in our government must be met with something more than tub-thumping oratory and apoplectic defense of a constitution said to be outmoded in parts.

"Let me caution you that in approach to the constitution you should take neither the position of a social reactionary nor of uncritical ancestor worship of our constitutional fathers. It is the plain desire of the present national administration to bring about an unprecedented centralization of power in Washington even at the sacrifice of constitutional provisions. No document can be sacred save the soundness of the principles which it enunciates and no idea can be sacred save the utilities which it offers our people. Our forefathers did not work in perfect agreement in forging that great instrument of government, nor would they desire us to accept their work as an immutable law for all time to come. They faced the facts and problems of 1787 as wisely as they could and it would be their sincere desire that we face the facts and problems of 1935 in the same frame of mind and to strike away the dead hand of the past where it is shown to impede the progress of the present. But, my friends, we cannot be too critical of this growing centralization of power, despite the protestations of liberal purposes with which it is promoted. We must not forget that what was said of Oliver Cromwell reaches true through the centuries, that 'a knot of determined men, who see their courses with the terrible simplicity of the fanatic and have armed force to do their bidding, are more than a match for a million puzzled civilians.' I beg you to believe with me that no price which we may be called upon to pay to prevent this will be too high a price for the continuance of our government of balanced powers and purposely frictionized departments with their proved system of checks and balances.

"The cycle of dictatorship has now run long enough to prove there is no magic in it and the long-run liabilities of dictatorship begin to emerge in the form of a nation forced into war, a nation struggling under the harsh rule of communism, and a nation still shuddering under the incredible reversion to the medevial practice of the blood purge. The last decade has been designated as the twilight hour of democracy, yet our future historians may record this era as the period in which democracy made its greatest advances and proved its worth by healthy contrast.

"Let me urge that you give more time to your government, that your fealty be constant and not confined to the spasmodic turmoil of intense political campaigns. Let me ask that your influence be felt and that your views be known in order that we may erect bulwarks against encroaching shadows thrown across the seas and now resting heavily shrouded above areas withi these United States. Finally, force your thoughts into a greater circuit that the orbit of our difficulties may be lessened and that the citizens of this nation may realize that their sincere consideration of public affairs is demanded. Above all, bring a clear and unprejudiced mind into contact with the varying interpretation of policies forced upon you, and by your own open mind be convinced of the contrast between the wise and the foolish, the hasty and the well founded.

Bible Class Banquet

A group of splendid young women, members of the Vota Vita Bible class of the First Baptist church, who have dedicated their lives to a high resolve, greeted each other over the banquet table Friday night at the Frances hotel, and enjoyed one of the most delightful social affairs since organiaztion.

Peacock blue tapers in tall crystal candlesticks were placed down the full length of white damask covered tables alternated with square cut mirrors reflecting crystal bowls overflowing with crimson salvia. The place cards were clever little conceits in the form of old-fashioned albums flaunting miniature photographs of each member. Places at the table were identified in this manner. The evening's program was noted on the leaves of the album.

Mrs. Florence Duval, wearing a smart pink Alencon lace evening model, presided as toastmistress. She introduced the president, Miss Bernice McCoy, a charming figure in Hunter's green crepe evening model. Miss McCoy led the devotional in inspirational manner. Others appearing on the evening's program were Mrs. L. T. Hastings, Miss Elizabeth Trull, Miss Maud Gallman and Miss Florence Ziegler.

Mrs. T. D. Boaz of Shreveport, the main speaker of the evening, was responsible for a splendid address.

The presence of two young Chinese women, Miss Itsuko Saito and Mrs. Lily D'jang, students at Dodd college, Shreveport, added considerable interest to the evening's program.

Miss Duval, in introducing each member of the class, added a personal touch by stressing their characteristics. Mrs. Renneker, the beloved class mother, responded to the introduction with characteristic graciousness. The class teacher, Mrs. Percy Walker, received an ovation when introduced.

A sumptuous five-course dinner was faultlessly served to Helen Walker, Eva Madden, Bernice McCoy, Avie Foster White, Ann Allen, Lola Simmermaker, Olive Tabb, Vina Gallman, Rosalyn Blackmon, Hattie Haddick, Elizabeth Trull, Maud Gallman, Dorothy Greer, Lorena Bedsole King, Helen Keys, Merrie Lee Ford, Emma Busby, Helen Carr, Orma Odom, Johnnie Tucker, Itsuko Saito, Olive L. Suede Muff Purses And Matching Trim Lend Smart Touch To New Winter Suits

PARIS, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The spirit of youth and chic mark the new 1936 clothes which smart Parisians are beginning to wear about town. Back from the mountains and shore they again are being seen in fashionable restaurants in trim youthful wool suits accompanied by smart gadgets.

Suede gloves which button across the back of the wrist and suede muff bags, swung around the neck on a strap, lend chic to tailleurs. Bright suede belts—red or green—give a vivid touch to black frocks, gold acorns and keys fasten wool costumes.

A 'Black Winter'

Several chic Parisians are seen in black suits worn with blouses of velvet or dark cravat silk splashed with white figures, their high necklines touched by some jewel as a garnet brooch or a triple strand of pearls. The small black hats worn with them are often feathered with a cascade of coque or a small bright fantasy.

Green promises to be another "big shot" in fashions. It is seen in a deep blackish hue, in a bronzed shade and in bottle and Veronese tones. The American Vicomtesse de Maublanc wears a green tweed suit fastened with bright red plastic slide fasteners and a chic French woman has chosen a dark blue green wool costume the three-quarter length coat of which is fastened with silver keys and finished with a pumpkin yellow scarf tucked inside the collar.

Capes top a number of smart costumes. Sometimes they appear in brown or russet toned tweed or one of the multi-colored modern wools to match a frock. Again they are seen in such fur as astrakhan or nutria, often being finished with hooded collars.

A muff purse of brown suede swung around the neck by a strap lends a smart accessory touch to this suit of brown and cream checked wool designed by Creed. The same leather accents the pockets and collar. The brown felt hat encircled by a cream colored cord is by Rose Valois.

Parent-Teacher Groups Are Busy In Northeast Louisiana

Associations Plan Programs For Year

Many Local Units Of Louisiana Congress Have Undertaken Worthy Projects For 1935-36 School Term

Council Meetings Held

Mrs. Albert Smith, president of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. L. A. Mailhes, past president, were guests at a special meeting October 23 of the Twin City council of Parent-Teacher associations. She said the council should assist the associations with their individual problems.

A safety program has been selected as the major project of the year by the council. Another is dressing dolls to be distributed among underprivileged children during Christmas.

The question of the advisability of sponsoring an educational motion picture was placed in the hands of a committee composed of Miss Julia Wossman, Mrs. Carl Couch, Mrs. Jason Johnson, Mrs. W. M. Greenwall, Mrs. J. G. Durrett, Mrs. H. A. McDonald, Mrs. E. E. Eaves and Mrs. R. E. Wilson.

At a meeting of the council October 4, a new treasurer was elected to fill a vacancy creation by resignation and a decision was reached to sponsor a series of lectures on "Money Management."

Mrs. Jessie Weil was elected treasurer to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. H. C. Mize. The lectures were given at Neville high school and Northeast Center of Louisiana State university by Lawrens Brown, a noted economist.

Mrs. Johnson was appointed publicity chairman. Miss Eloena Brinsmade was named her assistant.

It was announced that a fifth district P.-T. A. meeting would be held at Crosley school in West Monroe November 9. A school of instruction will be conducted by state officers. It was also announced that each local association having its quota of members present would receive credit in the school.

Sherrouse P.-T. A.

Twenty-four members attended the October 16 meeting of the Sherrouse school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers. The meeting, which resolved itself into a round-table discussion, was marked by a splendid spirit of optimism and cooperation.

Mrs. Harry Rice was appointed chairman of the finance committee and Mrs. I. S. Wood was appointed chairman of the mother singers.

Plans for the holding of an entertainment affair for raising funds for the year's budget were discussed in detail. A Halloween party is to be held, with Mrs. McBride in charge.

A plea for the stationing of a traffic police officer at the DeSiard street and Sherrouse avenue intersection will be made to city officials by Mrs. John Salhoun.

"The children are certainly entitled to assistance in crossing this highway where traffic is so heavy and so fast," Mrs. Calhoun said.

The current month's program, "Newer Methods of Teaching the three R's," proved exceptionally interesting. Mrs. I. S. Wood talked interectingly of "The Three R's in the School of Yesterday," and Mrs. Edward Brown discussed "New Methods in Teaching. "Home Management in Connection With the Three R's," introduced a general discussion, Mrs. Vincent inviting questions on the children's home work and allied subjects. She explained the first year system of grading.

Preceding the meeting, the study group met with Mrs. Calhoun for an interesting session.

Lida Benton P.-T. A.

Thirty-five mothers responded to invitations of children of rooms 1-A and 1-B of Lida Benton school to attend a party given by the executive committee of the Lida Benton school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers October 16.

Interest and entertainment was created by the holding of a flower contest. Mrs. Dallas Cain won first prize. After other contests, punch and cake were served.

The entertainment was the first of a series of similar "get acquainted" affairs to be held by the grade mothers.

The first grade is to entertain the second grade at an early date, with Mrs. C. H. Sisson, room mother for room 1-B, and Mrs. J. H. Moore, room mother for room 1-A, in charge.

The Lida Benton P.-T. A. met October 24 with the newly-installed president, Mrs. G. C. McAuliffe, presiding. A nature program was given by the fourth, fifth and sixth grades.

Miss Madie Moore, principal, introduced the six junior policemen, Jewel Colvin, Brooks Stein, Collier Murphy, Billie Clark, Mansford Parker and William Pouge. They are to protect the children on the campus and to assist them in avoiding traffic accidents.

Mrs. W. O. Cornett introduced the subject, "Safety," for a general discussion.

A letter from the Red Cross stressing safety in the home was read.

The president announced that a Halloween party will be given on the night of October 31, under the sponsorship of the first and seventh grades.

Mrs. J. H. Moore was appointed general chairman of the doll dressing committee for the Christmas toy shop.

Mrs. Carl Couch, fifth district chairman, was a guest at the session and she extended an invitation to members of the association to attend the fifth district meeting to be held November 9 at Crosley school, West Monroe.

Rewards went to the seventh grade and room 2-B for having the most parents present. A social hour was enjoyed after the business session.

Winnsboro P.-T. A.

The Winnsboro Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers began its new year's work with its meeting of October 7. The officers for 1935-36 are as follows:

Mrs. A. L. Price, president; Mrs. B. S. Landis, vice-president; Mrs. W. B. Glover, secretary; Mrs. J. O. Henry, treasurer; Miss Rebecca Guice, historian.

All committees for the year have been appointed and are working enthusiastically.

The aims adopted by the association at its meeting are:

A bigger and better P.-T. A. through the cooperation and intelligent work of each committee.

A membership campaign setting the goal of two hundred members, seventy-five or more to be men.

To have its quota of state and national publications.

To keep a record publicity book and a historian record book.

To have active room representation.

To sponsor school athletics.

he parent education study group held its first meeting at the Winnsboro high school building, October 16, with eight members present. Mrs. H. Lampe led the discussion built around the subject, "Founding A Home," setting forth the fact that love and understanding combined with a certain knowledge of thrift and homemaking were first essentials in making the setting for a home and rearing children.

At the conclusion of the discussions, Mrs. E. Fay Walter, state chairman of correspondence courses, presented two lessons of the correspondence courses A and B, which is a detailed description of the first pages of the manual. Mrs. W. B. Glover acted as secretary for the group and answered the questions in writing. Mrs. Walter, in assigning the work for the next group meeting, asked Mrs. W. F. Cooper to outline a program for the year.

The Winnsboro Parent-Teacher association plans through its welfare committee, to observe "clothes day," October 30, and urges everyone to bring any wearing apparal that can be spared to the Home Economics cottage, where there will be a special committee to receive it and place it with underprivileged children.

Barkdull Faulk P.-T. A.

The Barkdull Faulk school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers held its first "dads' meeting" October 17, with Mrs. B. S. McRaney presiding.

Mrs. R. H. Goza served as program leader and presented Mrs. DeLuca in two violin solos accompanied at the piano by Porf. DeLuca. She rendered Gavotle Modern by Sivern, and the Hungarian Douce by Hoesche.

R. W. Germany, in a clever manner, discussed the methods used years ago in teaching the "three R's." One of the ifrst qualifications for a school lad was stub toe, stone bruise and blue-black speller, he said. The terms were very short about three months a year, and there was only one teacher for all the children. There were no grades, a child was classified by the reader he had finished.

"It was compulsory to know the alphabet first and was a common thing for a child to 'hang up' up on one letter three weeks," Mr. Germany said. He stressed the responsibility of the teacher now and urged parents to join the P.-T. A. and cooperate with the teacher.

In contrast with what Mr. Germany said Mrs. R. J. McClendon and Miss Julia Wossman explained the present methods of teaching. Objects are used to make a picture and stories are told to create interest. A child learns easily in the heat of interest and it is a pleasure. Children now have far better buildings, teachers and nine months of school. The older children have rooms for each grade and are not annoyed by recitation of the other children as was the case in the one-room school, it was explained.

Miss Margaret Baugh proved that the mere appearance, construction, paper print and pictures surpass the old books. "Not all books are good reading, however, and the helpful guidance available should be used," she said. There are librarians in schools and libraries familiar with the better books and glady advise parents the best material."

Mr. Gaushell, the band instructor, spoke briefly about the children taking music, and invited parents to visit the rehearsals. Mrs. McCook, chairman of the music club, asked all parents interested in music to allow their children to join the club.

The president had reports from all committees and both the national and state president's messages were read.

Miss Daisy Richardson's room received the reward for having 39 parents present.

Mitchell P.-T. A.,

The W. R. Mitchell school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers has completed plans for a Hallowe'en carnival to be held at the school October 31 at 7 p. m.

An announcement of the features to be provided at the carnival follows:

"Madam Zuzu, the wizard fortune teller, will be present with her magic crystal to tell your fortune; there will be a fish pond, filled with every species of fish imaginable; there will be home-made candy, popcorn balls and lemonade.

"One end of the hall will be given over to a 'cake walk,' and what a 'cake walk' it promises to be! Great big tasty home-made cakes are to be given away for the small sum of five cents!"

An invitation is extended to the public to attend the affair.

Simsboro P.-T. A.

The Simsboro Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers met Thursday for its regular monthly meeting. Reports were given by the committees, and Mrs. Loyd Mullen, local president, was appointed as delegate to attend the annual P.-T. A. convention at West Monroe.

An inspirational talk, "Methods of Old Schools," was given by Mrs. W. W. Strain. In this she told of the "three R's" that were the principal subjects taught. She also told of things she experienced in her early school days, such as the spelling of words by syllables and sounding each syllable.

Another interesting talk, "Methods of Teaching Today" in contrast to the old methods, was given by Miss Spencer. More time, more and better trained teachers, better equipment and many other advantages brought about more effective teaching, she said.

A demonstration of a first grade reading lesson was given by Miss Elsie Daniel.

Miss Giron Calahan presented new and old reading books and pointed out the contrast in the stories of years ago and in the stories children enjoy today.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday.

Ouachita P.-T. A.

The first meeting of the new year of the Ouachita Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers was held October 17 in the high school auditorium. Officers for the new years are:

President, Mrs. Jason Johnson; vice-president, Mrs. J. F. Meadowns; corresponding secretary, Mrs. A. S. McHenry; recording secretary, Miss Mabel Lann; treasurer, Mrs. S. D. Kennedy.

Committees for the forthcoming year and plans for a membership drive were announced by the president.

The following program was enjoyed by the more than four hundred parents and teachers present:

Safety first program, Mr. Goza; vocal solos, "Spooky Night," and "Lady Moon," Miss Edith Beeson; "Importance of Health Education," Ben Rush; violin solo, "Humoresque," Mrs. Roy Nichols.

After the program the parents were invited into the school cafeteria to meet the teachers during a delightful social hour.

Hodge P.-T. A.

The Hodge Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers held its regular meeting October 22 at the grammar school building, with Mrs. David Bell, newly-elected president, presiding.

A short business session preceded the presentation of the program.

Mound P.-T. A.

Two meetings of the entire unit, with various executive meetings, have been called by the president when she deemed them necessary.

A money-raising scheme planned by the organization is the making of a quilt pieced by the members to be raffled off at an early date.

Canning groups have put up over 100 quarts of soup mixtures and vegetables to be used during the winter months for serving soups and hot lunches to the school children. The Girl Scouts will serve the soup, to be made by mother members of the P.-T. A. The serving will be under the supervision of the teachers. The Girl Scout group is being sponsored by the association.

The association has undertaken the progressive home study course and interesting papers were given at the past two meetings of the organization.

Marion P.-T. A.

An enthusiastic group of Marion parents and teachers met in the home economics cottage October 16 for the purpose of organizing a Parent-Teacher association.

A number of officials of the fifth district association and other units of the state group were present and gave interesting talks. Others preent were Miss Irene Clark, parish elementary supervisor, and Miss Hilda Fuller, parish high school supervisor, both of Farmerville.

The supper was served buffet style from a beautifully appointed table in the dining room. After the little guests had arrived and the birthday gifts had been opened, the children retired to the lawn to play until they were invited into the dining room which was attractively decorated with witches, pumpkins and Jack o'Lanterns. This made a perfect setting for the cutting of the birthday cake.

ISSUES GREETINGS

MRS. ALBERT L. SMITH

Congratulations upon this forward step in publicity in your district. And congratulations and appreciation to the publishers of this fine paper who have recognized the importance of our organization and are willing to cooperate so splendidly in your district publicity plans. Our very best wishes are with you.

On November 9 the 5th district will hold the fall district meeting with the Crosley school in West Monroe. Our hope is that every local unit in the district will be well represented. Begin now to make your plans for the largest attendance you have ever had at a 5th district meeting. These meetings afford a wonderful opportunity to come together in behalf of our greatest asset—our children. Someone has said the word "together" is the most inspiring word in the English language—for

"Together is a beginning.
Keeping together is progress,
Thinking together is unity,
Working together is success."

Together may we learn about our plans for our work and together put these plans into effect.

You have made splendid progress in the 5th district and we have every reason to believe we are now beginning the greatest year in the history of our association. May you continue to grow in strength and in service to the children of the 5th district.

Cordially,
MRS. ALBERT L. SMITH,
President.

I AM BREAD
By CAROLYN DEASON TIMMONS

I am life.
I am simple food.
In the palace of the king, in the millionaire's mansion,
Where rich viands appear, and exotic fruits are served,
I am always present.
But not alone in surroundings of wealth is my place.
I am in the working man's home.
The busy housewife depends on me.
Hungry children clamor for me, and I answer their need.
Again, in the lunch box of the day laborer, in the paper wrapped package of the clerk or sweat-shop worker, in the hand-out to the tramp at the door, I am always there.
With me, wars are won, mighty armies march to conquest.
Without me, defeat is certain.
For me, men trade their wealth, and women barter their jewels.
Yet the poorest wage-earner may have me in his home, and share me with his family.
Winter's chill, summer's sun, balm of spring and autumn's crisp cold, do not alter me, nor make need of me the less.
I am dependable, adaptable, convenient.
I meet man's universal need.
I am bread.

Many Local Units Of Louisiana Congress Have Undertaken Worthy Projects For 1935-36 School Term

Council Meetings Held

Mrs. Albert Smith, president of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers, and Mrs. L. A. Mailhes, past president, were guests at a special meeting October 23 of the Twin City council of Parent-Teacher associations. She said the council should assist the associations with their individual problems.

A safety program has been selected as the major project of the year by the council. Another is dressing dolls to be distributed among underprivileged children during Christmas.

The question of the advisability of sponsoring an educational motion picture was placed in the hands of a committee composed of Miss Julia Wossman, Mrs. Carl Couch, Mrs. Jason Johnson, Mrs. W. M. Greenwall, Mrs. J. G. Durrett, Mrs. H. A. McDonald, Mrs. E. E. Eaves and Mrs. R. E. Wilson.

At a meeting of the council October 4, a new treasurer was elected to fill a vacancy creation by resignation and a decision was reached to sponsor a series of lectures on "Money Management."

Mrs. Jessie Weil was elected treasurer to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. H. C. Mize. The lectures were given at Neville high school and Northeast Center of Louisiana State university by Lawrens Brown, a noted economist.

Mrs. Johnson was appointed publicity chairman. Miss Eloena Brinsmade was named her assistant.

"The children are certainly entitled to assistance in crossing this highway where traffic is so heavy and so fast," Mrs. Calhoun said.

The current month's program, "Newer Methods of Teaching the three R's," proved exceptionally interesting. Mrs. I. S. Wood talked interectingly of "The Three R's in the School of Yesterday," and Mrs. Edward Brown discussed "New Methods in Teaching. "Home Management in Connection With the Three R's," introduced a general discussion, Mrs. Vincent inviting questions on the children's home work and allied subjeects. She explained the first year system of grading.

Thirty-five mothers responded to invitations of children of rooms 1-A and 1-B of Lida Benton school to attend a party given by the executive committee of the Lida Benton school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers October 16.

Interest and entertainment was created by the holding of a flower contest. Mrs. Dallas Cain won first prize. After other contests, punch and cake were served.

The entertainment was the first of a series of similar "get acquainted" affairs to be held by the grade mothers.

The first grade is to entertain the second grade at an early date, with Mrs. C. H. Sisson, room mother for room 1-B, and Mrs. J. H. Moore, room mother for room 1-A, in charge.

To have its quota of state and national publications.

To keep a record publicity book and a historian record book.

To have active room representation.

To sponsor school athletics.

he parent education study group held its first meeting at the Winnsboro high school building, October 16, with eight members present, Mrs. H. Lampe led the discussion built around the subject, "Founding A Home," setting forth the fact that love and understanding combined with a certain knowledge of thrift and homemaking were first essentials in making the setting for a home and rearing children.

At the conclusion of the discussions, Mrs. E. Fay Walter, state chairman of correspondence courses, presented two lessons of the correspondence courses A and B, which is a detailed description of the first pages of the manual. Mrs. W. B. Barkdull Faulk P.-T. A.

The Barkdull Faulk school Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers held its first "dads' meeting" October 17, with Mrs. B. S. McRaney presiding.

Mrs. R. H. Goza served as program leader and presented Mrs. DeLuca in two violin solos accompanied at the piano by Porf. DeLuca. She rendered Gavotle Modern by Sivern, and the Hungarian Douce by Hoesche.

R. W. Germany, in a clever manner, discussed the methods used years ago in teaching the "three R's." One of the ifrst qualifications for a school lad was stub toe, stone bruise and blue-black speller, he said. The terms were very short about three months a year, and there was only one teacher for all the children. There were no grades, a child was classified by the reader he had finished.

"It was compulsory to know the alphabet first and was a common thing for a child to 'hang up' up on one letter three weeks," Mr. Germany said. He stressed the responsibility of the teacher now and urged parents to join the P.-T. A. and cooperate with the teacher.

In contrast with what Mr. Germany said Mrs. R. J. McClendon and Miss Julia Wossman explained the present methods of teaching. Objects are used to make a picture and stories are told to create interest. A child learns easily in the heat of interest and it is a pleasure. Children now have far better buildings, teachers and nine months of school. The older children have rooms for each grade and are not annoyed by recitation of the other children as was the case in the one-room school, it was explained.

Miss Margaret Baugh proved that the mere appearance, construction, paper print and pictures surpass the old books. "Not all books are good reading, however, and the helpful guidance available should be used," she said. There are librarians in schools and libraries familiar with the better books and glady advise parents the best material."

Mr. Gaushell, the band instructor, spoke briefly about the children taking music, and invited parents to visit the rehearsals. Mrs. McCook, chairman of the music club, asked all parents interested in music to allow their children to join the club.

The president had reports from all committees and both the national and state president's messages were read.

Miss Daisy Richardson's room received the reward for having 39 parents present.

The hospitality committee had prepared delicious refreshments in the kindergarten room which was decorated with the Hallowe'en color scheme.

"One end of the hall will be given over to a 'cake walk,' and what a 'cake walk' it promises to be! Great big tasty home-made cakes are to be given away for the small sum of five cents!"

An invitation is extended to the public to attend the affair.

Simsboro P.-T. A.

The Simsboro Parent-Teacher association of the Louisiana Congress of Parents and Teachers met Thursday for its regular monthly meeting. Reports were given by the committees, and Mrs. Loyd Mullen, local president, was appointed as delegate to attend the annual P.-T. A. convention at West Monroe.

An inspirational talk, "Methods of Old Schools," was given by Mrs. W. W. Strain. In this she told of the "three R's" that were the principal subjects taught. She also told of things she experienced in her early school days, such as the spelling of words by syllables and sounding each syllable.

Another interesting talk, "Methods of Teaching Today" in contrast to the old methods, was given by Miss Spencer. More time, more and better trained teachers, better equipment and many other advantages brought about more effective teaching, she said.

A demonstration of a first grade reading lesson was given by Miss Elsie Daniel.

Miss Giron Calahan presented new and old reading books and pointed out the contrast in the stories of years ago and in the stories children enjoy today.

The next meeting will be held Wednesday.

Bastrop

Ladies' day at the Country club continues to hold the interest of the golf and bridge contigent and on Thursday the golf course was dotted with twosomes, while many interesting games of bridge were in progress at the club house. Mrs. W. V. Garnier, Mrs. W. B. Gladney, Mrs. G. H. Beekman and Mrs. A. C. Volk composed the serving committee on this occasion and were responsible for the delectable luncheon served to Mesdames Fred Coats, C. N. Dalton, W. P. Douglass, E. L. Gladney, Jr., George H. Goodwin, Leland Howard, George Khourt, George T. Madison, James Madison, Arthur Ross, H. I. Seligman, Charles Grossman, H. Webb Madison, J. B. Tisdale, A. C. Volk, John Coats, F. P. Robinson, J. W. Gillen, Field Montgomery, Miss Tina Collins, Mrs. Simon Michael, Miss Anna Michael of Athens, Gr., and Miss Elizabeth Carr of Collinston.

Mrs. W. B. Gladney won the prize offered on the links and Mrs. A. C. Volk received the prize for highest score in the bridge games.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Williams were hosts at a delightful affair when they entertained with a bridge supper at the home of Mrs. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Goodwin in East Madison street, honoring their attractive house guest, Mrs. D. H. Bell, Jr., of Hodge.

The supper was served buffet style from a beautifully appointed table in the dining room. The table, covered with a handsome linen and lace cloth, had as its centerpiece a lovely plaque of azuritums and fern. Guests found their places at small daintily appointed tables in the living room, where gorgeous dahlias, arranged in pottery jars, formed the floral decorations.

Bridge followed the supper and after several interesting games Mrs. George T. Madison was presented with exquisite sheer hosiery in a new fall shade for high score in the games. Mr. George T. Madison was awarded the men's prize for high score and received a lovely handmade tie. The honor guest was also presented with hosiery as a remembrance gift.

After the little guests had arrived and the birthday gifts had been opened, the children retired to the lawn to play until they were invited into the dining room which was attractively decorated with witches, pumpkins and Jack o'Lanterns. This made a perfect setting for the cutting of the birthday cake.

MRS. ALBERT L. SMITH

Congratulations upon this forward step in publicity in your district. And congratulations and appreciation to the publishers of this fine paper who have recognized the importance of our organization and are wiliing to cooperate so splendidly in your district publicity plans. Our very best wishes are with you.

On November 9 the 5th district will hold the fall district meeting with the Crosley school in West Monroe. Our hope is that every local unit in the district will be well represented. Begin now to make your plans for the largest attendance you have ever had at a 5th district meeting. These meetings afford a wonderful opportunity to come together in behalf of our greatest asset—our children. Someone has said the word "together" is the most inspiring word in the English language—for

"Together is a beginning.
Keeping together is progress.
Thinking together is unity.
Working together is success."

Together may we learn about our plans for our work and together put these plans into effect.

You have made splendid progress in the 5th district and we have every reason to believe we are now beginning the greatest year in the history of our association. May you continue to grow in strength and in service to the children of the 5th district.

Cordially,
MRS. ALBERT L. SMITH,
President.

I AM BREAD
By CAROLYN DEASON TIMMONS

I am life.
I am simple food.
In the palace of the king, in the millionaire's mansion,
Where rich viands appear, and exotic fruits are served,
I am always present.
But not alone in surroundings of wealth is my place.
I am in the working man's home.
The busy housewife depends on me.
Hungry children clamor for me, and I answer their need.
Again, in the lunch box of the day laborer, in the paper wrapped package of the clerk or sweat-shop worker, in the hand-out to the tramp at the door, I am always there.
With me, wars are won, mighty armies march to conquest.
Without me, defeat is certain.
For me, men trade their wealth, and women barter their jewels.
Yet the poorest wage-earner may have me in his home, and share me with his family.
Winter's chill, summer's sun, balm of spring and autumn's crisp cold, do not alter me, nor make need of me the less.
I am dependable, adaptable, convenient.
I meet man's universal need.
I am bread.

'Ears-Of-Corn' Headdress Tops Gown In Bridal Style Set By British Royalty

By Millie Hudson

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The coming marriage of the Duke of Gloucester, King George's third son, to Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott on November 6 is expected to set new fashions for brides.

Unusual interest is being taken in bridal gowns at the fall shows. Many society brides are following the lead of the Duchess of Kent and Lady Alice Scott, both of whom selected November as the month.

The king and queen had another abbey wedding ceremony on their engagement list this fall—that of their god-children, the young Duke of Roxburghe and Lady Mary Crewe-Milnes. The king gave special permission for the union to be solemnized in Westminster Abbey.

Instead of the usual receptions, many "Little season" brides are planning cocktail parties and fork luncheons.

Long retinues of bridesmaids and pages in striking costumes are to be features of the ceremonies.

Gowns are to be simpler, many have high necklines, while the bridal veil and headdress is more ornate. Close fitting it reveals the line of the head. Sleeves are often tight, unlike dresses for other occasions.

Tulle veils will be spotted with butterflies in flight, bunches of white flowers, or trimmed with organdie frills. Heavier materials may be used, draped in eastern or nun-like effects.

Trains are to be wider and more important. Oyster, pale pink or blue materials make a change from the all-white vogue, and the new semi-transparent fabrics are becoming very popular.

A new idea for a headdress is gold ears of corn to be worn with a cream and gold lace Stiebel model. A powder blue chiffon slip gives a mist blue effect. The fitting gown is flared from the knee and ends in a long train. The round neck and waist tie with gold cord. Corn is mingled with daisies for the bouquet and a mist blue ribbon bow.

Molyneux, who designed the wedding gown of the Duchess of Kent last fall, shows another new headdress that looks like a piece of Roman sculpture. It is a flower bandeaux made in plaster which holds in place a heavy dull white crepe romaine veil draped nun-wise. The veil is very long and forms a train. The gown, slim and clean cut is of the same material with a small train. Plaster flowers ornament the bodice.

A traditional white satin gown is featured by Reville, the leading designer of many court gowns including the queen's for state occasions. A diamond and pearl leaf tiara is placed over a fine net veil which covers a six-yard satin train. The simply cut gown is finished with an embroidered band of pearls at the cuff and a matching waistbelt.

Three large lilies trim either side of the head of Schiaparelli's model and the off-white veil is short all around like a cape. The close fitting gown is one of the same material patterned in big gold lame lilies. High-necked, the gown has a long double train. Bridesmaids' dresses are of shaded pink chiffon worn with caps made of small pink roses.

A novelty in modes for brides is this model by Stiebel, distinguished by a headdress of gold "ears-of-corn." A powder blue chiffon slip gives a mist blue effect. The flared skirt ends in a long train. The "ears-of-corn" headdress may be whitened to match white gowns and silvered to go with gowns of silver or pastel shades.

CHAPTER XIV

Ruth was far more happy than she was unhappy. Far more gay than apprehensive. She was in love, and knew it. She moved in that soaring, tremulous state when the mere recalling of a beloved pair of eyes, a beloved voice, sent the pulses pounding. The anticipation of another meeting with John McNeill—another such rendezvous as last night's ride—made life a glorious adventure. Her happiness dimmed her fears for the future, caused her to forget the insecurity of her position, and lulled her pricking conscience into comfortable quiescence.

In short, Ruth Woodson, becomingly clothed in one of the charity-box hand-knit dresses, moved gracefully through the old Hunter house, in and out its rooms, up and down its stairs, quite as if she owned the place. Old mirrors, cleared of dust by her own agile hands, reflected her presence; dim corners echoed her laughter and the sound of her singing.

Penny said feelingly that morning: "Lo', Miss Elaine, it's good to have you here. You cheer up the place considerable!"

In the afternoon mail there arrived a check from "Miss Gwen." After Penny had pulled the letter from the rusty mail box she stood in the hall, handling it with trembling fingers.

To Ruth, passing through the hall, she said importantly, "It's from your mother. It's the money she sends me regular for takin' care of the house. But seems like I'm gettin' more and more afraid to open 'em. There might come a letter any time now, sayin' I'm pensioned off. . . ." Her voice trailed away anxiously.

Ruth's anxiety caught fire, too. She realized that the letter in Penny's hands was a sort of bomb which might, in its explosion, blow her temporary little world of happiness to atoms. But she said, her voice held steady, "Don't anticipate bad news, Penny, and maybe it won't ever come. Open the letter."

Penny obeyed, removing from the creamy, square envelope a check and a folded sheet of paper. She said, handing the letter to Ruth, "You read it to me, Miss Elaine. I can't make out pen and ink writin' very good lately."

Ruth unfolded the paper and ran her eyes down it hastily and anxiously. She thought, "If it says anything about Elaine—anything that will give me away, I'll skip it." Presently she breathed a quick sigh of relief. There was nothing at all in the letter to upset her own world or poor old Penny's. She read aloud:

"Dear Bertha: I am sorry to be a week or two late with your check but I have been in France and have just gotten home. I hope you have not been inconvenienced. Please see that the leaks in the slate roof are attended to, also the guttering, and whatever other repairs are needed. Have the bills sent to Mr. Deal's secretary, as usual. I don't want the old house to go to pieces.

"I hope you are keeping well and that your eyesight is improving. Do get new glasses. That often helps. Call on me if you need extra funds, of course. Affectionately, Gwendolyn Hunter Deal."

"There!" said Ruth, handing it back. "I don't believe they've any idea of pensioning you off, Penny. Quit worrying!"

Penny was nodding her head in relief. "I'll take the check right down to the bank," she said. "I haven't been down town for about three months. I've got to lay in some staples at the grocery store. I'd be obliged if you'd keep house for me while I'm gone?"

"Of course I will," Ruth assured her. "Give me that cloth and let me finish dusting. Then you can get ready and go right away."

When Penny came down a bit later, hatted and coated for the occasion and wearing overshoes and an anxious expression, it was evident that this trip "to town" was an important event in her life. Actually she left the house only four times a year, and that was for the purpose of banking her quarterly check. Pausing before she went out the door, she said to Ruth earnestly, "I won't be gone more'n an hour and a half, all told. If anybody comes here askin' for me—askin' for me by name, I mean—will you have 'em come in and wait?"

Bertha nodded. "I'm careful, and I use my umbrella for a cane. I never have any trouble that way."

On a highway leading from a southerly direction a small, unnoticeable automobile had just picked up a nail and blown a tire. The car, traveling rapidly at the time, was thrown smartly across the road and was partially wedged between a tree and a fence.

The driver, its sole occupant, recovering from the shock of the impact, lifted himself from the steering wheel and rubbed his chest. His prodding hand found a sore rib that made him wince with pain. From a cut on his palm blood was trickling. He was the man who, some time before, had escaped from a place where the criminally insane are detained.

Climbing cautiously from the car, John Smith inspected the damage done. He could, he decided, extricate his car without help if the engine still ran. But first he must change the tire which had blown out. This he proceeded to do, getting the tools from the place he knew them to be, and applying the jack with fumbling, unaccustomed fingers. It took him all of an hour to do this. At last, weary from his exertions, he sat on the running board and smoked a cigaret while his mind wrestled with his problems.

His hand had started to bleed again. He wrapped the blood-soaked handkerchief tighter and frowned. He contemplate looking for a doctor in the next town, then decided against it. He could not afford to have any one recognize his picture, should it be published in the interest of his capture. No, better push on to Worthville. Better put himself in the old woman's hands.

"The old house is like a fort," he thought. "I could dig in there and stay indefinitely—"

A car was coming to a halt beside him. Breaks ground, tires skidded, and from the window of a gleaming coupe a tanned, hatless young man leaned out and called pleasantly, "Can I help you?"

"Thanks, no," John Smith replied in a gruff voice, not his own. His hat was pulled low over his eyes. He partially concealed his mouth and chin by manipulating his cigaret with his uninjured hand. "It was a blowout." Then he added, lying, "I was going the other way. Car turned completely around!"

"What you know about that!" exclaimed the young man, with surprised interest. "Well, you're lucky you didn't crash that tree."

"Yeah," replied John Smith. He was narrowly eyeing the nonchalant, clear-cut young man whose gaze was so direct and who wanted to be helpful. He wondered why the young man looked vaguely familiar to him. After all, he, "John Smith," hadn't been in this vicinity for 10 years. And 10 years ago that young chap must have been only 14 or 15 years old.

The young man lifted his hand in salute, shifted gears and drove on. Toward Worthville. An advertising cover on his spare tire said "McNeill Pumps make hard water unnecessary!"

John Smith lifted an eyebrow. So that was it. The McNeill boy, grown up. He was glad he'd kept his own face covered. The interview caused him to reconsider his plans. It was possible, even probable, that the McNeill family still lived next door to the old Hunter place. This boy might recognize him after the roadside meeting. Certainly he would recognize the injured car. John Smith decided to abandon the car and continue on foot until overtaken by a bus. The bus would carry him to Worthville. Here he would alight at some busy intersection, and from there would saunter, perhaps under cover of falling darkness, to the old house.

John McNeill, already forgetful of the incident just past, skillfully lighted his pipe without reducing speed. He'd signed up the dealer he wanted in Akron—the third such achievement in a month—and things looked bright for McNeill Pumps. The factory would soon be running full time again, if this sort of thing kept up.

"Dad would be proud as all get-out, if he could see me carrying on," he thought contentedly. "I guess I'm going to be a fair to middlin' salesman after all."

Then, persistently, through these pleasant meditations recurred the image of the wiry, thin-faced slouching figure on the running board back there. "Where've I seen that guy before?" he asked himself. The question was unanswerable. He thought he had dismissed it, but the subconscious mind never dismisses the unsolved. Back, back through the years went the trail of his subconscious thoughts while his conscious mind took up a happier theme.

"Elaine!" he said aloud, and laughed in the wind. "Lord!" he said, "I believe I'm in love with her. I believe I'd rather have her for my wife than any girl on earth!"

He imagined her in his arms, in his house, in his life. Belonging in those places. Happy to be there. His pulses pounded harder and his eyes narrowed in determination.

"I'm going to let myself go," he decided. "I'm going to make love to her. I'm going to try to win her. Some hunch tells me I could!"

Then he thought of his mother, whom he loved and whose opinions he respected. He could imagine her saying in her sane, gentle way, "An unsuitable match, John! It would end in trouble. Maybe divorce—"

"But I want her anyway," John McNeill thought unreasonably. And that was how he knew that he loved her.

MILK SAFETY

Why should intelligent people worry about the danger of typhoid fever and other diseases transmittable by milk?

Leslie M. Frank, Sanitary Engineer in charge, United States Public Service, in a recent bulletin says, "Milk may be safeguarded so as to prevent it from transmitting such diseases as Typhoid Fever, Tuberculosis, Diphtheria, Septic Sore Throat and Undulant Fever by careful production and proper Pasteurization. NEITHER PRODUCTION PRECAUTIONS ALONE NOR PASTEURIZATION ALONE ARE ADEQUATE, BOTH ARE NECESSARY. Consumers may assure themselves that the milk they drink has thus been properly safeguarded by purchasing GRADE A PASTEURIZED MILK as defined by the United States Public Health Service ordinance."

Monroe and West Monroe are operating under this ordinance and the local Health Officers are rigidly enforcing it. Therefore the answer is obvious: Use Pasteurized milk and dairy products and SAFEGUARD THE HEALTH OF YOUR FAMILY.

'Ears-Of-Corn' Headdress Tops Gown In Bridal Style Set By British Royalty

By Millie Hudson

LONDON, Oct. 26.—(AP)—The coming marriage of the Duke of Gloucester, King George's third son, to Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott on November 6 is expected to set new fashions for brides.

Unusual interest is being taken in bridal gowns at the fall shows. Many society brides are following the lead of the Duchess of Kent and Lady Alice Scott, both of whom selected November as the month.

The king and queen had another abbey wedding ceremony on their engagement list this fall—that of their god-children, the young Duke of Roxburghe and Lady Mary Crewe-Milnes. The king gave special permission for the union to be solemnized in Westminster Abbey.

Instead of the usual receptions, many "Little season" brides are planning cocktail parties and fork luncheons.

Long retinues of bridesmaids and pages in striking costumes are to be features of the ceremonies.

Gowns are to be simpler, many have high necklines, while the bridal veil and headdress is more ornate. Close fitting it reveals the line of the head. Sleeves are often tight, unlike dresses for other occasions.

Tulle veils will be spotted with butterflies in flight, bunches of white flowers, or trimmed with organdie frills. Heavier materials may be used, draped in eastern or nun-like effects.

Trains are to be wider and more important. Oyster, pale pink or blue materials make a change from the all-white vogue, and the new semi-transparent fabrics are becoming very popular.

A new idea for a headdress is gold ears of corn to be worn with a cream and gold lace Stiebel model. A powder blue chiffon slip gives a mist blue effect. The fitting gown is flared from the knee and ends in a long train. The round neck and waist tie with gold cord. Corn is mingled with daisies for the bouquet and a mist blue ribbon bow.

Molyneux, who designed the wedding gown of the Duchess of Kent last fall, shows another new headdress that looks like a piece of Roman sculpture. It is a flower bandeaux made in plaster which holds in place a heavy dull white crepe romaine veil draped nun-wise. The veil is very long and forms a train. The gown, slim and clean cut is of the same material with a small train. Plaster flowers ornament the bodice.

A traditional white satin gown is featured by Reville, the leading designer of many court gowns including the queen's for state occasions. A diamond and pearl leaf tiara is placed over a fine net veil which covers a six-yard satin train. The simply cut gown is finished with an embroidered band of pearls at the cuff and a matching waistbelt.

Three large lilies trim either side of the head of Schiaparelli's model and the off-white veil is short all around like a cape. The close fitting gown is one of the same material patterned in big gold lame lilies. High-necked, the gown has a long double train. Bridesmaids' dresses are of shaded pink chiffon worn with caps made of small pink roses.

A novelty in modes for brides is this model by Stiebel, distinguished by a headdress of gold "ears-of-corn." A powder blue chiffon slip gives a mist blue effect. The flared skirt ends in a long train. The "ears-of-corn" headdress may be whitened to match white gowns and silvered to go with gowns of silver or pastel shades.

CHAPTER XIV

Ruth was far more happy than she was unhappy. Far more gay than apprehensive. She was in love, and knew it. She moved in that soaring, tremulous state when the mere recalling of a beloved pair of eyes, a beloved voice, sent the pulses pounding. The anticipation of another meeting with John McNeill—another such rendezvous as last night's ride—made life a glorious adventure. Her happiness dimmed her fears for the future, caused her to forget the insecurity of her position, and lulled her pricking conscience into comfortable quiescence.

In short, Ruth Woodson, becomingly clothed in one of the charity-box hand-knit dresses, moved gracefully through the old Hunter house, in and out its rooms, up and down its stairs, quite as if she owned the place. Old mirrors, cleared of dust by her own agile hands, reflected her presence; dim corners echoed her laughter and the sound of her singing.

Penny said feelingly that morning: "Lo', Miss Elaine, it's good to have you here. You cheer up the place considerable!"

In the afternoon mail there arrived a check from "Miss Gwen." After Penny had pulled the letter from the rusty mail box she stood in the hall, handling it with trembling fingers.

To Ruth, passing through the hall, she said importantly, "It's from your mother. It's the money she sends me regular for takin' care of the house. But seems like I'm gettin' more and more afraid to open 'em. There might come a letter any time now, sayin' I'm pensioned off. . . ." Her voice trailed away anxiously.

Ruth's anxiety caught fire, too. She realized that the letter in Penny's hands was a sort of bomb which might, in its explosion, blow her temporary little world of happiness to atoms. But she said, her voice held steady, "Don't anticipate bad news, Penny, and maybe it won't ever come. Open the letter."

Penny obeyed, removing from the creamy, square envelope a check and a folded sheet of paper. She said, handing the letter to Ruth, "You read it to me, Miss Elaine. I can't make out pen and ink writin' very good lately."

Ruth unfolded the paper and ran her eyes down it hastily and anxiously. She thought, "If it says anything about Elaine—anything that will give me away, I'll skip it." Presently she breathed a quick sigh of relief. There was nothing at all in the letter to upset her own world or poor old Penny's. She read aloud:

"Dear Bertha: I am sorry to be a week or two late with your check but I have been in France and have just gotten home. I hope you have not been inconvenienced. Please see that the leaks in the slate roof are attended to, also the guttering, and whatever other repairs are needed. Have the bills sent to Mr. Deal's secretary, as usual. I don't want the old house to go to pieces.

"I hope you are keeping well and that your eyesight is improving. Do get new glasses. That often helps. Call on me if you need extra funds, of course. Affectionately, Gwendolyn Hunter Deal."

"There!" said Ruth, handing it back. "I don't believe they've any idea of pensioning you off, Penny. Quit worrying!"

Penny was nodding her head in relief. "I'll take the check right down to the bank," she said. "I haven't been down town for about three months. I've got to lay in some staples at the grocery store. I'd be obliged if you'd keep house for me while I'm gone?"

"Of course I will," Ruth assured her. "Give me that cloth and let me finish dusting. Then you can get ready and go right away."

When Penny came down a bit later, hatted and coated for the occasion and wearing overshoes and an anxious expression, it was evident that this trip "to town" was an important event in her life. Actually she left the house only four times a year, and that was for the purpose of banking her quarterly check. Pausing before she went out the door, she said to Ruth earnestly, "I won't be gone more'n an hour and a half, all told. If anybody comes here askin' for me—askin' for me by name, I mean—will you have 'em come in and wait?"

Bertha nodded. "I'm careful, and I use my umbrella for a cane. I never have any trouble that way."

On a highway leading from a southerly direction a small, unnoticeable automobile had just picked up a nail and blown a tire. The car, traveling rapidly at the time, was thrown smartly across the road and was partially wedged between a tree and a fence.

The driver, its sole occupant, recovering from the shock of the impact, lifted himself from the steering wheel and rubbed his chest. His prodding hand found a sore rib that made him wince with pain. From a cut on his palm blood was trickling. He was the man who, some time before, had escaped from a place where the criminally insane are detained.

Climbing cautiously from the car, John Smith inspected the damage done. He could, he decided, extricate his car without help if the engine still ran. But first he must change the tire which had blown out. This he proceeded to do, getting the tools from the place he knew them to be, and applying the jack with fumbling, unaccustomed fingers. It took him all of an hour to do this. At last, weary from his exertions, he sat on the running board and smoked a cigaret while his mind wrestled with his problems.

His hand had started to bleed again. He wrapped the blood-soaked handkerchief tighter and frowned. He contemplate looking for a doctor in the next town, then decided against it. He could not afford to have any one recognize his picture, should it be published in the interest of his capture. No, better push on to Worthville. Better put himself in the old woman's hands.

"The old house is like a fort," he thought. "I could dig in there and stay indefinitely—"

A car was coming to a halt beside him. Breaks ground, tires skidded, and from the window of a gleaming coupe a tanned, hatless young man leaned out and called pleasantly, "Can I help you?"

"Thanks, no," John Smith replied in a gruff voice, not his own. His hat was pulled low over his eyes. He partially concealed his mouth and chin by manipulating his cigaret with his uninjured hand. "It was a blowout." Then he added, lying, "I was going the other way. Car turned completely around!"

"What you know about that!" exclaimed the young man, with surprised interest. "Well, you're lucky you didn't crash that tree."

"Yeah," replied John Smith. He was narrowly eyeing the nonchalant, clear-cut young man whose gaze was so direct and who wanted to be helpful. He wondered why the young man looked vaguely familiar to him. After all, he, "John Smith," hadn't been in this vicinity for 10 years. And 10 years ago that young chap must have been only 14 or 15 years old.

The young man lifted his hand in salute, shifted gears and drove on. Toward Worthville. An advertising cover on his spare tire said "McNeill Pumps make hard water unnecessary!"

John Smith lifted an eyebrow. So that was it. The McNeill boy, grown up. He was glad he'd kept his own face covered. The interview caused him to reconsider his plans. It was possible, even probable, that the McNeill family still lived next door to the old Hunter place. This boy might recognize him after the roadside meeting. Certainly he would recognize the injured car. John Smith decided to abandon the car and continue on foot until overtaken by a bus. The bus would carry him to Worthville. Here he would alight at some busy intersection, and from there would saunter, perhaps under cover of falling darkness, to the old house.

John McNeill, already forgetful of the incident just past, skillfully lighted his pipe without reducing speed. He'd signed up the dealer he wanted in Akron—the third such achievement in a month—and things looked bright for McNeill Pumps. The factory would soon be running full time again, if this sort of thing kept up.

"Dad would be proud as all get-out if he could see me carrying on," he thought contentedly. "I guess I'm going to be a fair to middlin' salesman after all."

Then, persistently, through these pleasant meditations recurred the image of the wiry, thin-faced slouching figure on the running board back there. "Where've I seen that guy before?" he asked himself. The question was unanswerable. He thought he had dismissed it, but the subconscious mind never dismisses the unsolved. Back, back through the years went the trail of his subconscious thoughts while his conscious mind took up a happier theme.

"Elaine!" he said aloud, and laughed in the wind. "Lord!" he said, "I believe I'm in love with her. I believe I'd rather have her for my wife than any girl on earth!"

He imagined her in his arms, in his house, in his life. Belonging in those places. Happy to be there. His pulses pounded harder and his eyes narrowed in determination.

"I'm going to let myself go," he decided. "I'm going to make love to her. I'm going to try to win her. Some hunch tells me I could!"

Then he thought of his mother, whom he loved and whose opinions he respected. He could imagine her saying in her sane, gentle way, "An unsuitable match, John! It would end in trouble. Maybe divorce—"

"But I want her anyway," John McNeill thought unreasonably. And that was how he knew that he loved her.

MILK SAFETY

Why should intelligent people worry about the danger of typhoid fever and other diseases transmittable by milk?

Leslie M. Frank, Sanitary Engineer in charge, United States Public Service, in a recent bulletin says, "Milk may be safeguarded so as to prevent it from transmitting such diseases as Typhoid Fever, Tuberculosis, Diphtheria, Septic Sore Throat and Undulant Fever by careful production and proper Pasteurization. NEITHER PRODUCTION PRECAUTIONS ALONE NOR PASTEURIZATION ALONE ARE ADEQUATE, BOTH ARE NECESSARY. Consumers may assure themselves that the milk they drink has thus been properly safeguarded by purchasing GRADE A PASTEURIZED MILK as defined by the United States Public Health Service ordinance."

Monroe and West Monroe are operating under this ordinance and the local Health Officers are rigidly enforcing it. Therefore the answer is obvious: Use Pasteurized milk and dairy products and SAFEGUARD THE HEALTH OF YOUR FAMILY.

'Dark Angel,' Romantic Drama, At Paramount Today

Frederic March and Merle Oberon, with Herbert Marshall, are co-starred in the romance that will make the heart of the world beat faster, "Dark Angel," the attraction at the Paramount theater today and Monday. Janet Beecher, John Halliday, Henrietta Crosman, and Frieda Inescort are in the notable supporting cast. The story was adapted from Guy Bolton's successful stage hit of the same name.

Here is William Powell and Rosalind Russell in a tense scene from his latest mystery thriller "Rendezvous," the attraction at the Paramount theater Tuesday and Wednesday. There is never a dull moment when you keep a date with William Powell, and here he is in a spy role that is the most interesting part he has ever played. It is the startling story of America's famous Black Chamber. You'll find him confronted with his most baffling mystery, trying to catch one girl, and trying to get rid of another. Between thrills you'll agree that he has picked a grand new screen sweetheart.

In a tender and eloquent love story, the Paramount theater presents on Thursday and Friday, Rochelle Hudson and Henry Fonda in that great American melodrama "Way Down East," with Slim Summerville, Edward Trevor, Margaret Hamilton and Andy Devine heading the notable supporting cast. Here is the stage's most sensational success. Now more gripping than ever as a talking picture that climaxes three generations of entertainment supremacy.

When Lee Tracy and Roscoe Karns start working their irresistible charms on an attractive young lady like Miss Patrick, the fun is sure to start as it does with this trio plus a fine cast in Paramount's "Two Fisted," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday. Centering around the amusing experiences which befall a fast talking fight manager and his moronic pug when they find themselves installed in swanky society by a Park avenue playboy the comedy reaches an uproarious finale. Kent Taylor, Grace Bradley, Billy Lee are in the cast.

Star Cast Featured In Picture

PROMINENT among the many things that recommend Samuel Goldwyn's latest offering, "The Dark Angel," which had its local premiere at the Paramount theater last night for top place on your "Must Be Seen" cinema list, is an opportunity to see the ever-lovely Merle Oberon, co-starred with Fredric March and Herbert Marshall, in her delightful new screen personality—shorn of her exotic make-up, bizarre garb and mysterious air.

Beyond this, "The Dark Angel," is, we think, the most powerful and gripping romantic drama to reach the screen since "A Farewell to Arms." Skillfully adapted by Lillian Hellman, author of "The Children's Hour," and Mordaunt Shairp, from a play by Guy Bolton, this beautiful love story, set in a quiet corner of lovely rural England, follows the life of Kitty Vane and her neighbors, Alan Trent (March) and his cousin, Gerald Shannon (Marshall).

Since childhood, Kitty has adored the indifferent Alan and Gerald has adored her. The war takes both men and in the trenches there comes to Alan a realization of his love for Kitty. Home on leave, he tells her, and they plan to marry at once. Then comes a sudden order cancelling all leaves. They spend their last hours together trying to forget that they may never see each other again. Alan is reported killed and Kitty's life is broken. After the war she resigns herself to an engagement to Gerald, but Fate steps in and provides a happy ending.

"The Dark Angel" has been brilliantly directed by Sidney Franklin. March, Merle and Marshall have never appeared to better advantage and the supporting cast, including Janet Beecher, John Halliday, Henrietta Crosman, Frieda Inescort, Claude Allister, David Torrence, Georgie Breakston, Fayl Chaldecott, Cora Sue Collins and others, is uniformly excellent.

Screen Life In Hollywood

By Hubbard Keavy

HOLLYWOOD.—There are dozens of fine actors in Hollywood, some of whom once were stars while others were lesser lights of the featured class, who have difficulty getting jobs.

They have talent, admittedly they have had worlds of experience, and they have "screen personalities." Yet they don't work very often. Why is this? Here is the answer a director, who prefers to remain anonymous, gives:

"Most directors feel that an ex-star evokes sympathy from the audience in the wrong place and at the wrong time. This is why they prefer less experienced and unknown players in comparatively minor roles. They do not want their audiences to feel sorry for a doorman who is not an intergral part of the story, or to arouse sympathy for a hotel clerk who is in the picture merely for atmospheric purposes.

"Maybe they are right in this belief. Maybe not. In fairness to these directors, to several at any rate with whom I am personally acquainted, I must say that while they will not give work to old-time stars, they contribute generously to the support of these unfortunates when the occasions arise."

Kings Of Burlesque

Fourteen years ago, Barney Girard, burlesque impresario, and Charles Hoey, vaudeville actor and writer, wrote a show called "The Girls de Looks." Hoey told Girard that he had a daughter of 17 whom he'd like to have with him when the show went on the road. Although the girl was inexperienced, Girard found a place for her—in the last row of the chorus.

Time passes. Hoey is dead and Girard retires. Girard comes to California to write his memoirs of 25 years as one of the biggest burlesque impresarios. He has hope also of selling a story, built around his experiences in the show business, to the movies. The title for his book, as well as for the scenario he is writing, is "The King of Burlesque."

One day he read that a studio is filming a story about burlesque shows—called "The King of Burlesque." And that the scenario is based on an original by Vina Delmar.

That Second Line Girl

And thus a strange coincidence comes to light. Charles Hoey's daughter, the girl who danced briefly in the "second line," is Vina Delmar. When she sold her story, it bore a different title and later was retitled—accidentally—"The King of Burlesque."

Twentieth Century, when it learned Girard had registered his title, offered to buy it from him. Or to change it.

When I talked with Girard, he had not made a decision. But he likes his self-given title pretty well and very likely he will demand a change.

Feminine incredulity: One of life's irritions to Dick Powell is that so many women write him to ask—"just between ourselves, you know"—whether the wave in his hair is natural.

A special Halloween party has been arranged at the Capitol theater Thursday night, starting at 10:45 p.m. A personal appearance of Selvin, internationally famous spook artist, and Miss Clarice Ostell will be made on the stage. Ghosts seem to appear among the audience all over the theater, often seated beside you. Selvin's reputation as an artist of ability was first established by his successful career in prominent theaters of the old world and he has appeared in the largest theaters of this country. The picture program features "The Shot in the Dark" with Charles Starrett and Marion Schilling, together with selected short subjects.

LABOR COUNCIL MEETS

The Monroe Labor council, at its meeting on Friday night, approved a motion to support WPA workers in their efforts to secure conditions similar to those enjoyed by union men. The hope was also expressed that ultimately these workers will be organized into a union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Described as the most terrifying villain the screen has ever known, Peter Lorre makes his first American screen appearance in the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture "Mad Love" which brings to the screen the strange drama of a mad surgeon whose desire for another man's wife turns him into a fiend. Francis Drake is seen above with Peter Lorre. Others in the exceptional cast include Colin Clive, Ted Healy, Edward Brophy, and Isabel Jewell. "Mad Love" plays at the Capitol Tuesday and Wednesday.

Grey's 'Wanderer Of The Wasteland' Provides Stirring Action

A colorful outdoor drama, "Wanderer of the Wasteland," outstanding because of its originality of plot and humaneness of characterization topped with rip-roaring action that marks the ageless popularity of Zane Grey westerns, opens at the Capitol theater today.

Laid against the picturesque desert country of the west in the days when bands of outlaws roamed the desert wastes preying on gold prospectors, "Wanderer of the Wasteland" centers its story about Dean Jagger, young easterner who, on his way to the badlands, meets and falls in love with Gail Patrick, also traveling to the gold country with her parents.

Upon his arrival, his ne'er-do-well brother is accidentally shot in a crooked card game and Jagger, unjustly accused of the crime, flees into the desert. Edward Ellis, a kindly old prospector, finds him half dead from exposure and thirst, and becomes his friend. Doomed to wander the wastelands, a fugitive from justice, unable to return to civilization, Jagger becomes a member of a gang of renegades, headed by Larry "Buster" Crabbe. Finally rebelling against their unscrupulous tactics on innocent prospectors, he revenges himself on them in a thrilling gun battle, when they attack his benefactor, Ellis, and hold Miss Patrick captive.

In a crashing dramatic climax that held this reviewer spellbound with its skillful blending of a tense but surprise finish, Jagger returns to the scene of the crime with Miss Patrick to give himself up, to find that the town has changed completely.

Dean Jagger, noted leading man from the Broadway stage, in his first Western role, brings a new type of likeable, virile Western hero to the screen in his impersonation of an innocent man hounded by the law. Gail Patrick, southern beauty, already well known to film fans, delivers her usual capable performance. Edward Ellis contributes a splendid character portrayal as the old prospector who befriends Jagger.

NEVILLE HIGH GETS 'TIMER' AS AWARD

Jean Ford, senior in Neville High school last year, who was awarded a gold watch as state prize for the best essay on the subject: "The Value of Time in Education," also won for her school a large and ornate athletic "timer," in the nature of a stop watch which is four or five feet in height and which will be used at the future ball games of the school.

While the award to Miss Ford was made some months ago, the "timer" was received only the past week by Neville High school, Dr. C. E. Kenney, principal, reported.

A large nationally known business concern offered a first prize for the best essay on the subject announced in each state, and also the high school winner was in each case not only to be rewarded but his or her school was to have the "timer" as award.

Miss Mary Hester is instructor in English at Neville High school and supervised the essay contest at her school in which Miss Ford made the successful entry.

'Dark Angel,' Romantic Drama, At Paramount Today

Frederic March and Merle Oberon, with Herbert Marshall, are co-starred in the romance that will make the heart of the world beat faster, "Dark Angel," the attraction at the Paramount theater today and Monday. Janet Beecher, John Halliday, Henrietta Crosman, and Frieda Inescort are in the notable supporting cast. The story was adapted from Guy Bolton's successful stage hit of the same name.

Here is William Powell and Rosalind Russell in a tense scene from his latest mystery thriller "Rendezvous," the attraction at the Paramount theater Tuesday and Wednesday. There is never a dull moment when you keep a date with William Powell, and here he is in a spy role that is the most interesting part he has ever played. It is the startling story of America's famous Black Chamber. You'll find him confronted with his most baffling mystery, trying to catch one girl, and trying to get rid of another. Between thrills you'll agree that he has picked a grand new screen sweetheart.

In a tender and eloquent love story, the Paramount theater presents on Thursday and Friday, Rochelle Hudson and Henry Fonda in that great American melodrama "Way Down East," with Slim Summerville, Edward Trevor, Margaret Hamilton and Andy Devine heading the notable supporting cast. Here is the stage's most sensational success. Now more gripping than ever as a talking picture that climaxes three generations of entertainment supremacy.

When Lee Tracy and Roscoe Karns start working their irresistible charms on an attractive young lady like Miss Patrick, the fun is sure to start as it does with this trio plus a fine cast in Paramount's "Two Fisted," coming to the Capitol theater Thursday and Friday. Centering around the amusing experiences which befall a fast talking fight manager and his moronic pug when they find themselves installed in swanky society by a Park avenue playboy the comedy reaches an uproarious finale. Kent Taylor, Grace Bradley, Billy Lee are in the cast.

Star Cast Featured In Picture

PROMINENT among the many things that recommend Samuel Goldwyn's latest offering, "The Dark Angel," which had its local premiere at the Paramount theater last night, for top place on your "Must Be Seen" cinema list, is an opportunity to see the ever-lovely Merle Oberon, co-starred with Fredric March and Herbert Marshall, in her delightful new screen personality—shorn of her exotic make-up, bizarre garb and mysterious air.

Beyond this, "The Dark Angel," is, we think, the most powerful and gripping romantic drama to reach the screen since "A Farewell to Arms." Skillfully adapted by Lillian Hellman, author of "The Children's Hour," and Mordaunt Shairp, from a play by Guy Bolton, this beautiful love story, set in a quiet corner of lovely rural England, follows the life of Kitty Vane and her neighbors, Alan Trent (March) and his cousin, Gerald Shannon (Marshall).

Since childhood, Kitty has adored the indifferent Alan and Gerald has adored her. The war takes both men and in the trenches there comes to Alan a realization of his love for Kitty. Home on leave, he tells her, and they plan to marry at once. Then comes a sudden order cancelling all leaves. They spend their last hours together trying to forget that they may never see each other again. Alan is reported killed and Kitty's life is broken. After the war she resigns herself to an engagement to Gerald, but Fate steps in and provides a happy ending.

"The Dark Angel" has been brilliantly directed by Sidney Franklin. March, Merle and Marshall have never appeared to better advantage and the supporting cast, including Janet Beecher, John Halliday, Henrietta Crosman, Frieda Inescort, Claude Allister, David Torrence, Georgie Breakston, Fayl Chaldecott, Cora Sue Collins and others, is uniformly excellent.

NEVILLE HIGH GETS 'TIMER' AS AWARD

Jean Ford, senior in Neville High school last year, who was awarded a gold watch as state prize for the best essay on the subject: "The Value of Time in Education," also won for her school a large and ornate athletic "timer," in the nature of a stop watch which is four or five feet in height and which will be used at the future ball games of the school.

While the award to Miss Ford was made some months ago, the "timer" was received only the past week by Neville High school, Dr. C. E. Kenney, principal, reported.

A large nationally known business concern offered a first prize for the best essay on the subject announced in each state, and also the high school winner was in each case not only to be rewarded but his or her school was to have the "timer" as award.

Miss Mary Hester is instructor in English at Neville High school and supervised the essay contest at her school in which Miss Ford made the successful entry.

SHOWER SPRAYS

Special hooks provided at a height to make an overhead shower over the bath, as well as lower to be used as a spray for washing hair, will add to the efficiency of the bathroom.

Kindergarten Modernization

Environment plays an important part during the first impressionable years that a child attends school. In this line, schools throughout the country are showing interest in the possibilities of modernizing kindergartens under the terms of the Federal Housing Administration's amended modernization credit plan. Through this method, funds in amounts up to $50,000 are now available at private lending institutions to "schools, colleges, orphanages, etc.", for improvement purposes. Above is shown an example of the modern kindergarten. Spaciousness, a long blackboard, cheerful furniture and woodwork, and a colorful floor make this room appealing to the youthful eye. Details concerning the financing of kindergarten modernization projects under terms of the National Housing Act are available at any office of the Federal Housing Administration.

Garage Space May Be Employed Effectively

Today the majority of American residences include garages. Usually these are well built, but frequently extra space is not utilized effectively.

Shelves can be built in to hold tools, extra parts for the car, etc. It is far easier to locate the hammer or screw driver on a shelf than to have to hunt through a pile of material to find them.

Often children's outdoor playthings can be stored in the garage. If there is a sloping roof, the rafters are usually left exposed, and frames for storing screens, ladders, etc., may be placed overhead.

If the basement does not have storage space for garden tools, a cabinet in the garage will make a convenient place for them, and even in a small garage space between the height of head room and well above the roof of the car can be utilized for extra storage space.

A flat-roofed garage may be converted into a very attractive roof terrace. A stairway leading up from the garden, a railing or boxes for hedges and flowers can be added. Deck chairs, sun umbrellas, and a table will make this area a welcome addition to the summer living space at very little cost.

For small children, if a high railing is installed, the top of a garage can be converted into a summer playroom. This is particularly advantageous for children in a crowded city, for it can be fixed to attract them and may overbalance their interest in the street as a playground.

The garage should be painted and kept repaired. It will deteriorate if not properly cared for, and a neat, well-painted garage adds to the value of a residence.

Funds for such work may be obtained from private financial institutions operating under the modernization credit insurance plan of the federal housing administration.

Housing Question Box

Q. What causes paint applied to metal to blister?

A. The blistering of paint on metal is probably due to the fact that the paint was applied on rusty metal.

Rust expands as it forms and therefore will soon push the paint off.

Blistering may also take place from painting over a damp or frosty surface for the same reason.

The remedy is to clean the metal thoroughly before any paint is applied and to be sure the surface is dry.

Q. What is the most satisfactory method for calking exterior window and door frames on an old house?

A. As a rule, the calking material is applied with a flat tool known as a calking tool. If it is applied under pressure, a special gun is used. Often the latter method is used on old houses, for it forces the compound well into the crack.

Q. What durable table-top material should I use on restaurant tables?

A. Various compositions are available in the commercial market. Many of these will not stain and are easy to clean. Consult a good contractor as to the relative merits of these materials.

Glass, treated wood and many other materials if properly used will make durable table tops. A smooth surface with a luster is easier to keep clean than a rough, dull surface.

Q. How many coats of aluminum paint will cover a stained or discolored surface?

A. The number of coats of aluminum paint to be used will depend on the quality of the paint and the degree of stain or discoloration on the surface to be painted.

One coat of first-quality aluminum paint may cover satisfactorily, but in many cases two coats will produce a most lasting metallic surface.

Q. I wish to finish a room in my attic, and I will have to add dormers for light and air. What is a good size if the room is 12 feet by 16 feet and how many dormers should I add?

A. Dormers should be kept as small as possible, for large ones are awkward and will ruin the lines of the house. It is sometimes better to raise a wall an additional story if particularly wide dormers are needed. One dormer on the short side, and two on the long side of the room should be sufficient to provide light and give cross ventilation. The dormer jamb should be reduced to a minimum. Nearly one foot in total width may be saved by the use of properly constructed narrow jambs. Consult a good carpenter on this question.

As for the dimensions, various types of houses have special types of dormers which harmonize with their designs.

Finance for this construction may be arranged through the modernization credit plan of tre Federal Housing administration.

Q. What flooring material should I use on a sun deck which is over a porch?

A. A heavy deck canvas is made for this purpose. The under-floor should be of good quality, tightly laid boards, with ridges and raised parts planed smooth. This is covered thickly with white-lead paste somewhat thinned with linseed oil. The canvas is then laid smoothly, and pressed or rolled tightly against the paste. Secure the edges with copper tacks.

When dry, paint the canvas with at least two coats of a good quality floor paint or enamel. Repaint every two years or oftener if the deck receives particularly heavy wear.

Q. The plaster in my hall is bulging and I fear may break away completely. How may I repair this?

A. It is best to remove this bulging section and apply new material. Investigate the lath or backing and if it has drawn away from the joists it should be refastened.

HOUSING HINTS

IRON CRACKS REPAIRED

Cracks and leaks in cast iron can be repaired with iron cement. This comes in the form of a fine powder. Mixed with water it forms a thick paste. Blend it well, for water and powder do not mix readily.

The cement must penetrate the crack. For a pipe, radiator, or other work which must be water tight, use a slender tool for widening the crack to a width which will permit the proper penetration of the cement.

Force the cement into the crack and pack it by hammering with a flat tool.

If there is considerable pressure in a pipe, reinforce the mended section with a hose clamp such as that used on water connections of an automobile engine.

If there is a possibility that the crack may extend and become longer, drill holes at each end and fill these with cement.

CHIMNEYS HEIGHT

The height of a chimney has a decided effect on its efficiency. Some authorities recommend 30 to 35 feet as a minimum height. Many one-story houses have efficient chimneys less than this height, however, drafts in low chimneys tend to be erratic in their action.

Strong prevalent winds, the height of the chimney above the roof, the presence of over-hanging trees, and other factors cause disturbances in the action of the drafts. These considerations will modify or increase any arbitrary minimums which can be set forth.

WALL FOUNTAIN

The sun room may be made more attractive by the addition of a wall fountain. It will add to the effect of coolness in this room.

Colored tile can be used to form a niche, which may hold a piece of statuary or a formalied decorative plant form. Blue-green tile is particularly effective in a room furnished with white wire furniture.

HOW TO OBTAIN REPAIR CREDIT

Suggestions To Prospective Borrowers Outlined By Administration

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A simplified list of suggestions on how to obtain loans under the amended modernization credit plan has been compiled by the federal housing administration.

By an amendment to the national housing act, the housing administration may now insure modernization credit advanced in amounts up to $50,000 for the purpose of modernization or the installation of new equipment or machinery in industrial, commercial, and commercial-residential buildings. Details have been simplified to a great extent. The procedure suggested to the individual by the housing administration is as follows:

Decide what is needed for modernizing building and equipment.

Consult equipment manufacturers and dealers and building contractor as to the cost of the modernization work planned.

Go to a bank or other local financial institution that displays the "house in the circle" sign, which means it has qualified for federal housing administration credit insurance.

Make application to the lending institution for credit in the usual way.

The carrying charges on credit insured by the federal housing administration are at the lowest rates. The maximum must not exceed the equivalent of a $5 discount per $100 face amount of a one-year note repayable in monthly installments.

The borrower may have up to five years to pay.

No down payment is required.

Loans are made on the usual basis of credit rating, but the federal housing administration considers collateral appropriate under the $50,000 extension, though not obligatory by regulation. Decision in each case rests, however, with the lending institution and not with federal housing administration.

The borrower may drive his own bargain with the lending institution as to the rate of interest and period of repayment, but in no case may they exceed the limits stated above.

The bargain the borrower drives depends on how good his financial statement and borrowing "character" are and how good a bargainer he is.

When the borrower bears a good reputation for reliability and capability, the lending institution may extend credit in amounts up to $50,000. This credit may be insured by the lending institution with modernization credit insurance by the federal housing administration for 20 per cent of their total. Considering that a unit of $100,000,000 thus insured has developed but .06 per cent loss up to July 15, 1935, this indicates the soundness of the program and process.

Any reasonable credit risk, where improvements enhance collateral value, stabilize improved realty, and tend to increase the borrower's business, will be expedited. Purchase of fixed equipment machinery, air conditioning, elevators, heating and plumbing systems, or to effect alterations or additions to property are given every assistance.

BASEMENT LAVATORY

The men of the house usually need a separate washroom located in the basement near the workshop.

A small washroom may be added for a nominal cost. It should have proper light and is more convenient if shelves for soaps, brushes, etc., are included. The walls and door should be painted a bright cheerful color in a good washable paint. It is a good idea to apply a ring of dark colored paint about the door knob, for this will not show up dirty finger prints like a lighter tone.

Usually, specially selected old towels and wash cloths are reserved for workshop use. A towel cupboard should be built for these.

Plan Given For Rural Community Activities

An attractive community center in a rural district may be made if one of the farmers in the community has an old extra dwelling and barn on his property. He and his neighbors who have felt the need for a meeting place can cooperate and remodel these old buildings at very little cost to each family.

The barn can be finished in an inexpensive wallboard, painted a warm yellow, and utilized as an auditorium and dancing space. A small stage and dressing rooms transforms this into a theater, where plays and entertainments for both children and adults may be given.

The house can be connected with the barn by an ample enclosed passageway and the kitchen reconstructed and equipped to serve large groups. The old living and dining rooms utilized for a pleasant room for women's club meetings, and a small bedroom upstairs converted into a nursery will add to the usefulness of this building.

Throughout the group, the woodwork and wall finishes should be simple and durable, painted in bright, well chosen colors, and furnished with plain but attractive and sturdy furniture. There are many built-in cases and cupboards, closets for coats and other conveniences, and these, though ample, can be inexpensively built of the scrap lumber which is left from the removal of the unused section of the house.

Each family can contribute a portion of the cost, and the income derived from the local plays, exhibitions, and lectures will provide sufficient money to maintain the community center.

ENOUGH CIRCUITS

A sufficient number of circuits is of the utmost importance in the wiring or rewiring of a house.

Adequate circuits mean safety and a minimum of trouble. Future additions of electrical outlets are easily taken care of if the architect or contractor is careful to provide enough circuits in the original structure.

It will pay to make all convenience outlets duplex outlets unless they are designed to serve only one particular purpose. For economy and safety, convenience outlets should not be placed on the same circuits with outlets for general illumniation.

SHOWER SPRAYS

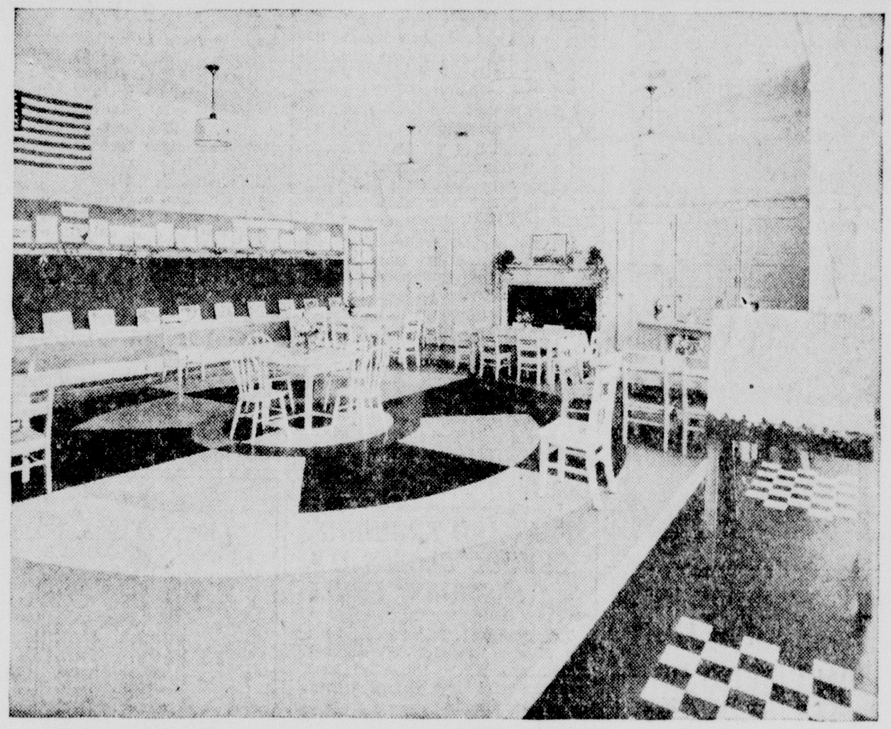
Special hooks provided at a height to make an overhead shower over the bath, as well as lower to be used as a spray for washing hair, will add to the efficiency of the bathroom.

Kindergarten Modernization



Environment plays an important part during the first impressionable years that a child attends school. In this line, schools throughout the country are showing interest in the possibilities of modernizing kindergartens under the terms of the Federal Housing Administration's amended modernization credit plan. Through this method, funds in amounts up to $50,000 are now available at private lending institutions to "schools, colleges, orphanages, etc.", for improvement purposes. Above is shown an example of the modern kindergarten. Spaciousness, a long blackboard, cheerful furniture and woodwork, and a colorful floor make this room appealing to the youthful eye. Details concerning the financing of kindergarten modernization projects under terms of the National Housing Act are available at any office of the Federal Housing Administration.

Garage Space May Be Employed Effectively

Today the majority of American residences include garages. Usually these are well built, but frequently extra space is not utilized effectively.

Shelves can be built in to hold tools, extra parts for the car, etc. It is far easier to locate the hammer or screw driver on a shelf than to have to hunt through a pile of material to find them.

Often children's outdoor playthings can be stored in the garage. If there is a sloping roof, the rafters are usually left exposed, and frames for storing screens, ladders, etc., may be placed overhead.

If the basement does not have storage space for garden tools, a cabinet in the garage will make a convenient place for them, and even in a small garage space between the height of head room and well above the roof of the car can be utilized for extra storage space.

A flat-roofed garage may be converted into a very attractive roof terrace. A stairway leading up from the garden, a railing or boxes for hedges and flowers can be added. Deck chairs, sun umbrellas, and a table will make this area a welcome addition to the summer living space at very little cost.

For small children, if a high railing is installed, the top of a garage can be converted into a summer playroom. This is particularly advantageous for children in a crowded city, for it can be fixed to attract them and may overbalance their interest in the street as a playground.

The garage should be painted and kept repaired. It will deteriorate if not properly cared for, and a neat, well-painted garage adds to the value of a residence.

Funds for such work may be obtained from private financial institutions operating under the modernization credit insurance plan of the federal housing administration.

IRON CRACKS REPAIRED

Cracks and leaks in cast iron can be repaired with iron cement. This comes in the form of a fine powder. Mixed with water it forms a thick paste. Blend it well, for water and powder do not mix readily.

The cement must penetrate the crack. For a pipe, radiator, or other work which must be water tight, use a slender tool for widening the crack to a width which will permit the proper penetration of the cement.

Force the cement into the crack and pack it by hammering with a flat tool.

If there is considerable pressure in a pipe, reinforce the mended section with a hose clamp such as that used on water connections of an automobile engine.

If there is a possibility that the crack may extend and become longer, drill holes at each end and fill these with cement.

CHIMNEYS HEIGHT

The height of a chimney has a decided effect on its efficiency. Some authorities recommend 30 to 35 feet as a minimum height. Many one-story houses have efficient chimneys less than this height, however, drafts in low chimneys tend to be erratic in their action.

Strong prevalent winds, the height of the chimney above the roof, the presence of over-hanging trees, and other factors cause disturbances in the action of the drafts. These considerations will modify or increase any arbitrary minimums which can be set forth.

WALL FOUNTAIN

The sun room may be made more attractive by the addition of a wall fountain. It will add to the effect of coolness in this room.

Colored tile can be used to form a niche, which may hold a piece of statuary or a formalied decorative plant form. Blue-green tile is particularly effective in a room furnished with white wire furniture.

Housing Question Box

Q. What causes paint applied to metal to blister?

A. The blistering of paint on metal is probably due to the fact that the paint was applied on rusty metal.

Rust expands as it forms and therefore will soon push the paint off.

Blistering may also take place from painting over a damp or frosty surface for the same reason.

The remedy is to clean the metal thoroughly before any paint is applied and to be sure the surface is dry.

Q. What is the most satisfactory method for calking exterior window and door frames on an old house?

A. As a rule, the calking material is applied with a flat tool known as a calking tool. If it is applied under pressure, a special gun is used. Often the latter method is used on old houses, for it forces the compound well into the crack.

Q. What durable table-top material should I use on restaurant tables?

A. Various compositions are available in the commercial market. Many of these will not stain and are easy to clean. Consult a good contractor as to the relative merits of these materials.

Glass, treated wood and many other materials if properly used will make durable table tops. A smooth surface with a luster is easier to keep clean than a rough, dull surface.

Q. How many coats of aluminum paint will cover a stained or discolored surface?

A. The number of coats of aluminum paint to be used will depend on the quality of the paint and the degree of stain or discoloration on the surface to be painted.

One coat of first-quality aluminum paint may cover satisfactorily, but in many cases two coats will produce a most lasting metallic surface.

Q. I wish to finish a room in my attic, and I will have to add dormers for light and air. What is a good size if the room is 12 feet by 16 feet and how many dormers should I add?

A. Dormers should be kept as small as possible, for large ones are awkward and will ruin the lines of the house. It is sometimes better to raise a wall an additional story if particularly wide dormers are needed. One dormer on the short side, and two on the long side of the room should be sufficient to provide light and give cross ventilation. The dormer jamb should be reduced to a minimum. Nearly one foot in total width may be saved by the use of properly constructed narrow jambs. Consult a good carpenter on this question.

As for the dimensions, various types of houses have special types of dormers which harmonize with their designs.

Finance for this construction may be arranged through the modernization credit plan of tre Federal Housing administration.

Q. What flooring material should I use on a sun deck which is over a porch?

A. A heavy deck canvas is made for this purpose. The under-floor should be of good quality, tightly laid boards, with ridges and raised parts planed smooth. This is covered thickly with white-lead paste somewhat thinned with linseed oil. The canvas is then laid smoothly, and pressed or rolled tightly against the paste. Secure the edges with copper tacks.

When dry, paint the canvas with at least two coats of a good quality floor paint or enamel. Repaint every two years or oftener if the deck receives particularly heavy wear.

Q. The plaster in my hall is bulging and I fear may break away completely. How may I repair this?

A. It is best to remove this bulging section and apply new material. Investigate the lath or backing and if it has drawn away from the joists it should be refastened.

HOW TO OBTAIN REPAIR CREDIT

Suggestions To Prospective Borrowers Outlined By Administration

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A simplified list of suggestions on how to obtain loans under the amended modernization credit plan has been compiled by the federal housing administration.

By an amendment to the national housing act, the housing administration may now insure modernization credit advanced in amounts up to $50,000 for the purpose of modernization or the installation of new equipment or machinery in industrial, commercial, and commercial-residential buildings. Details have been simplified to a great extent. The procedure suggested to the individual by the housing administration is as follows:

Decide what is needed for modernizing building and equipment.

Consult equipment manufacturers and dealers and building contractor as to the cost of the modernization work planned.

Go to a bank or other local financial institution that displays the "house in the circle" sign, which means it has qualified for federal housing administration credit insurance.

Make application to the lending institution for credit in the usual way.

The carrying charges on credit insured by the federal housing administration are at the lowest rates. The maximum must not exceed the equivalent of a $5 discount per $100 face amount of a one-year note repayable in monthly installments.

The borrower may have up to five years to pay.

No down payment is required.

Loans are made on the usual basis of credit rating, but the federal housing administration considers collateral appropriate under the $50,000 extension, though not obligatory by regulation. Decision in each case rests, however, with the lending institution and not with federal housing administration.

The borrower may drive his own bargain with the lending institution as to the rate of interest and period of repayment, but in no case may they exceed the limits stated above.

The bargain the borrower drives depends on how good his financial statement and borrowing "character" are and how good a bargainer he is.

When the borrower bears a good reputation for reliability and capability, the lending institution may extend credit in amounts up to $50,000. This credit may be insured by the lending institution with modernization credit insurance by the federal housing administration for 20 per cent of their total. Considering that a unit of $100,000,000 thus insured has developed but .06 per cent loss up to July 15, 1935, this indicates the soundness of the program and process.

Any reasonable credit risk, where improvements enhance collateral value, stabilize improved realty, and tend to increase the borrower's business, will be expedited. Purchase of fixed equipment machinery, air conditioning, elevators, heating and plumbing systems, or to effect alterations or additions to property are given every assistance.

Plan Given For Rural Community Activities

An attractive community center in a rural district may be made if one of the farmers in the community has an old extra dwelling and barn on his property. He and his neighbors who have felt the need for a meeting place can cooperate and remodel these old buildings at very little cost to each family.

The barn can be finished in an inexpensive wallboard, painted a warm yellow, and utilized as an auditorium and dancing space. A small stage and dressing rooms transforms this into a theater, where plays and entertainments for both children and adults may be given.

The house can be connected with the barn by an ample enclosed passageway and the kitchen reconstructed and equipped to serve large groups. The old living and dining rooms utilized for a pleasant room for women's club meetings, and a small bedroom upstairs converted into a nursery will add to the usefulness of this building.

Throughout the group, the woodwork and wall finishes should be simple and durable, painted in bright, well chosen colors, and furnished with plain but attractive and sturdy furniture. There are many built-in cases and cupboards, closets for coats and other conveniences, and these, though ample, can be inexpensively built of the scrap lumber which is left from the removal of the unused section of the house.

Each family can contribute a portion of the cost, and the income derived from the local plays, exhibitions, and lectures will provide sufficient money to maintain the community center.

BASEMENT LAVATORY

The men of the house usually need a separate washroom located in the basement near the workshop.

A small washroom may be added for a nominal cost. It should have proper light and is more convenient if shelves for soaps, brushes, etc., are included. The walls and door should be painted a bright cheerful color in a good washable paint. It is a good idea to apply a ring of dark colored paint about the door knob, for this will not show up dirty finger prints like a lighter tone.

Usually, specially selected old towels and wash cloths are reserved for workshop use. A towel cupboard should be built for these.

ENOUGH CIRCUITS

A sufficient number of circuits is of the utmost importance in the wiring or rewiring of a house.

Adequate circuits mean safety and a minimum of trouble. Future additions of electrical outlets are easily taken care of if the architect or contractor is careful to provide enough circuits in the original structure.

It will pay to make all convenience outlets duplex outlets unless they are designed to serve only one particular purpose. For economy and safety, convenience outlets should not be placed on the same circuits with outlets for general illumniation.

Salvationists' Group Said To Be Accomplishing Great Work

The officers of the Council of Social Agencies heartily endorse the work of the Salvation Army in Monroe. The following statement signed by Mrs. F. L. Cox, president, and Miss Bernice Wright, secretary, was issued Saturday:

"We as members of the Council of Social Agencies heartily endorse the Salvation Army's work and its campaign which begins Monday, October 28 and ends November 2.

"It is needless to say that the Salvation Army is a very worthy organization that gives assistance to many persons who would probably not be reached by any other organization.

"We wish them great success in their drive and a long continuance of their good work."

Further details of the work of the Army is outlined by Capt. G. W. Whitaker, officer in charge. He said:

"The character building of the Army cannot be overlooked nor overestimated. It is miraculous as to the actual transformation of individuals—poor, uncouth, unloved, and oftimes involved in things of questionable character. Junior probationer officers throughout the world could tell of many striking examples here—through Salvation Army channels. Life-saving organizations of the Army (Scouts and Guards) pursue the full scouting program and are interchangeable with Boy Scouts of America and other scout movements of the world.

"The purpose of the Home league is to train the mothers in the development of a normal, happy home. They are taught the arts of sewing, cooking, budgeting, home beautification, and problems of domestic life are dealt with to great advantage. Above all else, the world needs real homes and real love for families—the Salvation Army is trying to help meet this need.

"There are children's homes, young women's boarding homes, men's social departments, maternity homes and hosiptals, prison departments and day schools and summer open air camps for children and mothers to maintain and develop character.

"Truly so great a manufacturing plant as that of the Salvation Army merits the approval and whole-hearted support of all people everywhere, seeing that in these days of readjustment the need for this type of service is appalling. Help the Salvation Army shield those who need such protection as the Army gives by boosting, solicitation, and personal subscription. Be proud to wear the Army's 'Red Shield'."

TECH FRATERNITY WILL HELP NEEDY

RUSTON, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Sponsored by the Louisiana Tech chapter of the Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity, a "Share-Your-Thanksgiving" drive will be made between now and Thanksgiving to collect funds from which food and other essentials will be bought and given to the needy people in and around Ruston, fraternity officials announce.

This is believed to be the first movement of its kind ever started by a fraternity here.

Merchants of Ruston, students, faculty members and organizations of Tech will be invited to share their Thanksgiving with the most needy by contributing to the fund. Members of the fraternity will collect the money or food that is donated.

Distribution will be made on the afternoon preceding Thanksgiving to a list of people furnished by the local headquarters for federal aid.

The drive has been heartily approved by officials of the city of Ruston and by the local relief officials.

A canvass of the business houses will be made within the next few days, it was stated.

'DOVER ROAD' TO BE GIVEN HERE

Will Be Presented Early In December; Rehearsals Now In Progress

Preparations are progressing well on the production of "The Dover Road," by A. A. Milne, the initial play of the Monroe Little Theater this season, stated Herman Chapman, secretary. Mrs. Blanche Oliver is actively engaged in rehearsals. The date of the play, while not definitely set, will be early in December.

Milne, author of the play, is famous for his books for children, some of which are "Mr. Pim Passes By," "Winnie, The Pooh," and the Christopher Robbins stories.

The plot of "Dover Road" is based on the situation of two married women who ran away with each others' husbands and later meet at the same place. The situation which arises at the meeting is of a highly entertaining nature.

Rehearsals are being held three nights each week at the Municipal golf club house. The cast of characters will be completed some time this week. It is probable that several one-act plays of minor importance may be presented before "Dover Road."

MORE MEMBERS IN 'GYM' CLASSES ARE SOUGHT BY DIRECTOR

There are accommodations sufficient for 100 women in classes conducted in gymnasium work at the recreation center, 124 1-2 DeSiard street, sponsored by the Monroe Recreation department, it was stated Saturday. The room is large and well appointed and the director, Miss Lucyle Godwin, desires that a capacity house be enrolled.

The "gym" classes are conducted for women who seek to reduce or gain weight or improve their general health, at 8:30 a. m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. On Tuesday and Friday at 5:15 p. m. a special class has been arranged for working girls.

While the enrollment has been fairly good, it is sought to have still many more enter these classes, Miss Godwin said.

The Children's theater is gaining in popularity and a Hallowe'en party has been arranged for Friday night which will be open only to those in the membership of the Children's theater.

SEALING GROUND FLOOR OF BAPTIST STRUCTURE

The ground floor of the educational building of the Monroe First Baptist church, construction of which is proceeding by stages as finances are made available, is being sealed with brick preparatory to installing Sunday school partitions on the floor.

The front section of the floor is being temporarily sealed with a thin brick wall. At some time in the future, this wall will be removed and replaced with permanent stone blocks. The rear section of the floor is being enclosed with permanent brick walls.

Concrete framework of the two stories of the building have been completed. Four stories, in all, are planned for the structure, with two secondary auditoriums each having a seating capacity of about 375 persons.

TRAINING SCHOOL BARN DESTROYED

Building And Contents Total Loss In Blaze Saturday Morning

Fire which occurred shortly before 4 o'clock Saturday morning from unknown causes completely destroyed a hay barn and 40 to 50 tons of hay at the Louisiana Training institute. The loss to the contents was about $600 and the galvanized iron structure entailed an additional loss of $1,500 or more. There was partial insurance coverage.

The blaze was discovered in the early morning while men and boys were engaged in milking the cows of the dairy. From the outset the fire acquired rapid headway, although the fire department arrived quickly on the scene.

No other buildings were endangered, as the hay barn was located remote from other structures.

Junior probationer officers throughout the world could tell of many striking examples here—through Salvation Army channels. Life-saving organizations of the Army (Scouts and Guards) pursue the full scouting program and are interchangeable with Boy Scouts of America and other scout movements of the world.

"The purpose of the Home league is to train the mothers in the development of a normal, happy home. They are taught the arts of sewing, cooking, budgeting, home beautification, and problems of domestic life are dealt with to great advantage. Above all else, the world needs real homes and real love for families—the Salvation Army is trying to help meet this need.

"There are children's homes, young women's boarding homes, men's social departments, maternity homes and hosiptals, prison departments and day schools and summer open air camps for children and mothers to maintain and develop character.

"Truly so great a manufacturing plant as that of the Salvation Army merits the approval and whole-hearted support of all people everywhere, seeing that in these days of readjustment the need for this type of service is appalling. Help the Salvation Army shield those who need such protection as the Army gives by boosting, solicitation, and personal subscription. Be proud to wear the Army's 'Red Shield'."

OFF COMES POUNDAGE OF OPERA SINGERS!

Aware that the cash customers desire pretty forms to gaze upon along with pretty songs to hear, grand opera singers have declared war on overweight. Helen Jepson (left) is quite proud that she has "lopped off her bulges." Rosa Ponselle (center), Metropolitan soprano, is 50 pounds lighter than she used to be. And Grace Moore (right), who sang in the Baptist choir in her childhood at Jellico, Tenn., has become quite "streamlined" as compared with her plumpness three years ago. (Associated Press Photos)

TECH FRATERNITY WILL HELP NEEDY

RUSTON, La., Oct. 26.—(Special)—Sponsored by the Louisiana Tech chapter of the Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity, a "Share-Your-Thanksgiving" drive will be made between now and Thanksgiving to collect funds from which food and other essentials will be bought and given to the needy people in and around Ruston, fraternity officials announce.

This is believed to be the first movement of its kind ever started by a fraternity here.

Merchants of Ruston, students, faculty members and organizations of Tech will be invited to share their Thanksgiving with the most needy by contributing to the fund. Members of the fraternity will collect the money or food that is donated.

Distribution will be made on the afternoon preceding Thanksgiving to a list of people furnished by the local headquarters for federal aid.

The drive has been heartily approved by officials of the city of Ruston and by the local relief officials.

A canvass of the business houses will be made within the next few days, it was stated.

'DOVER ROAD' TO BE GIVEN HERE

Will Be Presented Early In December; Rehearsals Now In Progress

Preparations are progressing well on the production of "The Dover Road," by A. A. Milne, the initial play of the Monroe Little Theater this season, stated Herman Chapman, secretary. Mrs. Blanche Oliver is actively engaged in rehearsals. The date of the play, while not definitely set, will be early in December.

Milne, author of the play, is famous for his books for children, some of which are "Mr. Pim Passes By," "Winnie, The Pooh," and the Christopher Robbins stories.

The plot of "Dover Road" is based on the situation of two married women who ran away with each others' husbands and later meet at the same place. The situation which arises at the meeting is of a highly entertaining nature.

Rehearsals are being held three nights each week at the Municipal golf club house. The cast of characters will be completed some time this week. It is probable that several one-act plays of minor importance may be presented before "Dover Road."

STANDARD TRAINING SCHOOL CLOSES ITS SESSIONS FRIDAY

Nine churches of the district were represented and the average attendance was 90. Fifty-nine credits were awarded to those who completed the courses.

The churches represented and the credits that were given in each case were as follows: Methodist church of Columbia, 19 credits; First Methodist church of Monroe, 14 credits; Mangham church, 5 credits; Sterlington church, 5 credits; Little Creek church, 6 credits; First Methodist church of West Monroe, 4 credits; Gordon Avenue Methodist church, 3 credits; Oak Ridge church, 2 credits; Mansfield, 1 credit.

There were three courses of study open to those attending: "The Missionary Education of Children," by Mrs. R. R. Branton of New Orleans; "Senior Young People's Department Administration," by Mrs. L. C. Poindexter of Monroe; "The Adult Life of the Church," by Mrs. G. E. Brown, of San Antonio, Tex.

A few years ago, when transportation facilities were lacking in Brazil, beef cattle were started to market as calves so they would be mature upon arrival.

MORE MEMBERS IN 'GYM' CLASSES ARE SOUGHT BY DIRECTOR

There are accommodations sufficient for 100 women in classes conducted in gymnasium work at the recreation center, 124 1-2 DeSiard street, sponsored by the Monroe Recreation department, it was stated Saturday. The room is large and well appointed and the director, Miss Lucyle Godwin, desires that a capacity house be enrolled.

The "gym" classes are conducted for women who seek to reduce or gain weight or improve their general health, at 8:30 a. m. on Monday, Wednesday and Friday. On Tuesday and Friday at 5:15 p. m. a special class has been arranged for working girls.

While the enrollment has been fairly good, it is sought to have still many more enter these classes, Miss Godwin said.

The Children's theater is gaining in popularity and a Hallowe'en party has been arranged for Friday night which will be open only to those in the membership of the Children's theater.

SEALING GROUND FLOOR OF BAPTIST STRUCTURE

The ground floor of the educational building of the Monroe First Baptist church, construction of which is proceeding by stages as finances are made available, is being sealed with brick preparatory to installing Sunday school partitions on the floor.

The front section of the floor is being temporarily sealed with a thin brick wall. At some time in the future, this wall will be removed and replaced with permanent stone blocks. The rear section of the floor is being enclosed with permanent brick walls.

Concrete framework of the two stories of the building have been completed. Four stories, in all, are planned for the structure, with two secondary auditoriums each having a seating capacity of about 375 persons.

Y. W. C. A. DRIVE WILL START HERE NOV. 4

The Young Women's Christian association's drive will start on Monday, November 4, it was announced Saturday by Mrs. J. C. Sadler, general chairman. Mrs. C. K. Dickard, chairman of team captains, has secured for the eight teams the following captains:

Mrs. A. D. Tisdale, Mrs. C. C. Colvert, Mrs. Walter Rhodes, Mrs. R. B. Henry, Mrs. Ernest Holloway, Mrs. James Phelps, Mrs. Joe Renwick.

Mrs. Fagan Cox, executive secretary of the "Y", is asking in the name of the board of directors that the public give special thought to the important work being accomplished by the organization here and as generous gifts as possible are desired.

TRAINING SCHOOL BARN DESTROYED

Building And Contents Total Loss In Blaze Saturday Morning

Fire which occurred shortly before 4 o'clock Saturday morning from unknown causes completely destroyed a hay barn and 40 to 50 tons of hay at the Louisiana Training institute. The loss to the contents was about $600 and the galvanized iron structure entailed an additional loss of $1,500 or more. There was partial insurance coverage.

The blaze was discovered in the early morning while men and boys were engaged in milking the cows of the dairy. From the outset the fire acquired rapid headway, although the fire department arrived quickly on the scene.

No other buildings were endangered, as the hay barn was located remote from other structures.

TALONS OF DEATH

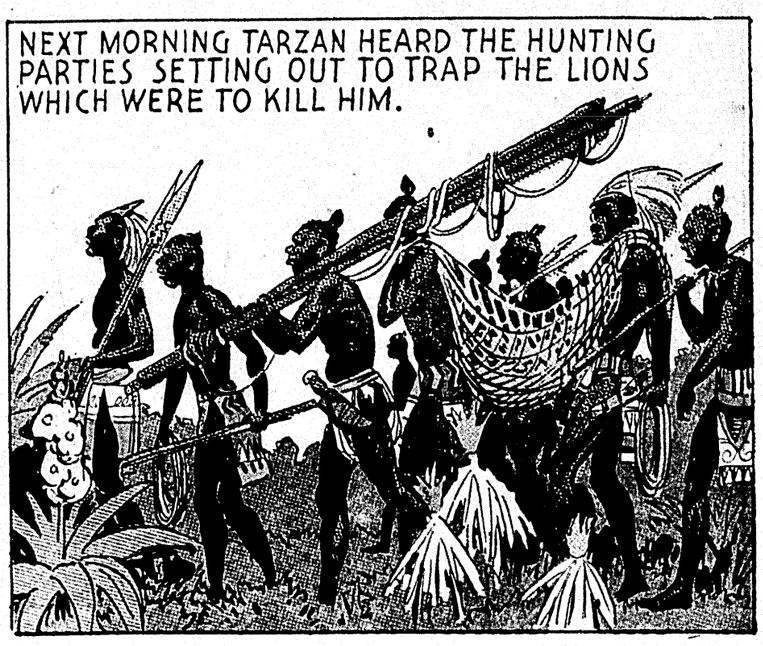
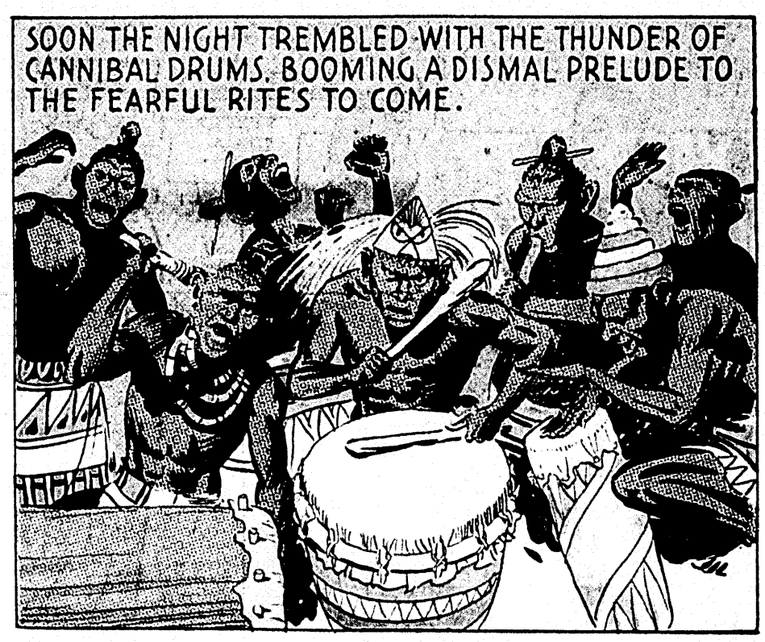
AND MENGO DELIGHTED IN BOASTING TO SIGREDA THAT HE HAD CAPTURED THE APE-MAN WHO HAD COME TO SAVE HER...



NEXT MORNING TARZAN HEARD THE HUNTING PARTIES SETTING OUT TO TRAP THE LIONS WHICH WERE TO KILL HIM.

TOWARD EVENING THEY RETURNED, AND SAVAGE ROARS ANNOUNCED THEIR SUCCESS.



SOON THE NIGHT TREMBLED WITH THE THUNDER OF CANNIBAL DRUMS, BOOMING A DISMAL PRELUDE TO THE FEARFUL RITES TO COME.

THEN THE CAPTIVES WERE DRIVEN FORTH TOWARD THE MYSTIC KRAAL—WHERE THE TALONS OF DEATH AWAITED THEM.

BRAVE SIGREDA SMILED AT TARZAN. "I KNOW YOU LOVE ME, BECAUSE YOU TRIED TO SAVE ME. NOW I CAN DIE HAPPY."

THEN MENGO, THE CHIEF, ADDRESSED THE PRISONERS, "YOU WILL DRAW LOTS TO DECIDE THE ORDER OF YOUR DYING!"

"NO!" CRIED SIGREDA. "I WILL GO FIRST!"

DICK TRACY

CHESTER GOULD

TRACY, YOU'RE DOING WONDERS! THE WHOLE TOWN'S TALKING ABOUT THE WAY YOU'VE PUT NEW LIFE INTO OUR POLICE DEPARTMENT.

THANK YOU, MR. MAYOR. WE'VE AT LEAST MADE A START IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

PETTY LAW VIOLATIONS — PARTICULARLY TRAFFIC LAW VIOLATIONS HAVE PRACTICALLY CEASED.

THIS IS OUR NEW RECREATION ROOM FOR THE MEN OFF DUTY.

SPLENDID.

IT'S ALL FINE, TRACY. YOU'VE INSPIRED THE WHOLE DEPARTMENT. THERE'S ONLY ONE THING THAT'S BOTHERING ME—

WHAT'S THAT, MAYOR?

THIS MAN FAMON THAT JUST FINISHED SERVING AN INCOME TAX SENTENCE AND CAME HERE TO LIVE.... HAVE YOU DONE ANY INVESTIGATION REGARDING HIS SO-CALLED "RETIREMENT TO A PEACEFUL LIFE"?

MR. MAYOR, THAT'S EXACTLY WHAT PAT AND I WERE PREPARING TO DO WHEN YOU DROPPED IN. WE'RE GOING TO PAY A CALL TO FAMON'S BROTHER WHO RUNS A FILLING STATION AT THE EDGE OF TOWN.

30 MINUTES LATER...

TEN GALLONS OF GAS, PLEASE, AND CHECK THE OIL.

WELL, IF IT ISN'T OUR NEW CHIEF OF POLICE. MR. TRACY!

CHIEF, THIS IS MY BROTHER, "CUT"! YOU'VE PROBABLY HEARD OF HIM.

HOW DO YOU DO, "CUT." WE'VE NEVER MET BUT I'VE HEARD ABOUT YOU. HOW DO YOU LIKE THE "QUIETER" LIFE?

OH, FINE, MR. TRACY, FINE. AFTER ALL, IT'S THE ONLY WAY TO LIVE. I'VE LEARNED MY LESSON.

BUSINESS MUST NOT BE SO GOOD WITH YOU, FAMON. I NOTICE YOU HAVE GAS IN ONLY ONE PUMP.

YES— ..WELL ..YOU SEE—

NO—YOU SEE.. THE WAY THEY'RE BUILDING MOTORS THESE DAYS... THEY DON'T TAKE MUCH OIL.

WHAT DO YOU THINK OF IT, TRACY?

THAT FILLING STATION IS JUST A "FRONT", PAT.. A "FRONT" FOR SOMETHING ELSE! WE'RE GOING TO KEEP OUR EYES ON THE FAMON BOYS.
